FRANCE IS FACING A FALLING BIRTH RATE

PARIS, March 14.—Facing a falling birthrate, and foreseeing 20 years hence but two French soldiers for every five German soldiers, the French legislature is busying itself with many solutions and near-solutions in the nature of bills calculated to encourage large families. The model tenements for poor and large families being built in Paris, and planned also for other cities, is but a manifestation of this national cry for larger families.

A measure called the "Cheron bill" is one of a number now before the chamber. This provides that each head of a family with more than three children under the age of 13 in his or her family shall receive a pension from the government, varying from $12 to $18 a year per infant after the first three.

For example, a family in which there were five children would receive from $24 to $36 a year. A widower with five children would get from $36 to $54 a year, while a widow under the same circumstances would receive from $54 to $72 a year. Children adopted or taken in charge after having been abandoned would be considered as children born in the family.

BABY DEATHS DOUBLE WHERE WOMEN DRINK

PARIS, March 21.—Tuberculosis has a little more than doubled in France since 1887, according to figures supplied to the Temps by Henri Schmidt, deputy, who is one of the leading figures in the temperance movement in France.

Deputy Schmidt traces statistically the effects of drunkenness on birth and upon the lives of children whose parents have been intemperate.

Infantile mortality in Normandy, where women drink excessively, is just double what it is in the temperate department of the Gers. Infantile morality is at its highest in those districts where absinthe drinking is prevalent.

The writer assembles figures showing that after the age of 60 sober men have one-third greater expectation of life than intemperate men.

HAS "OUTGROWN GRAMMAR."

PARIS, March 14.—That French has outgrown its grammar and that spoken French has become much more alive than the written language, is the substance of an article in the Revue Bleue here. The writer, a Frenchman of high repute, tends to discredit the belief that French is the best-nurtured and the most carefully watched-over of languages.

BALFOUR'S ACTIVITY.

Arthur Balfour, once Prime Minister and also formerly Unionist leader in the House of Commons, is to take a very prominent part in the negotiations for the settlement of the Irish question. He acquired a very extensive knowledge of the situation during his term as Chief Secretary for Ireland and he has had experience in the handling of delicate political problems, not the least of which was that arising over the split in the Unionist party over tariff reform.

When an agreement on the Irish question was first mooted last year Bonar Law, the present Unionist leader, immediately called Mr. Balfour to his assistance. Soon after the opening of Parliament Mr. Balfour had a long audience with the King and has been keeping in close touch with the leaders at Westminster.

The general opinion is that Mr. Balfour shares King George's view that some compromise should be arrived at and this will go a long way toward bringing the extreme Unionists into line. As it is, the large majority of the party desire a settlement but difficulty has been found in inducing the Ulsterites and the English "diehards" to come around to the [illegible] especially if it is thought that he expresses the wishes of the King, these irreconcilables will follow him. While Mr. Balfour has attacked the Home Rule bill from every angle and has referred to it as "lopsided federalism" not once has he referred to the Ulster threat of revolution or Ulster's general opposition to any form of Home Rule.

WOMAN'S GARB IN ENGLAND SIMPLER

Reaction Noticed in the Street Suits Shows Tendency to Tweeds.

LONDON, March 14.—Anyone who has ever toured England will be impressed by the almost Buddhistic calm with which the provincial English woman strides over all prevailing fancies of novelty clothes, fussy suits and piquant accessories. Watch her at the railway stations in Salisbury, York or Lincoln, and wonder at the immutability of that tweed suit, that collar and mannish tie, that big hat with its uncompromising posies.

Three-tier skirts and fussy boleros affect her no more than a prevailing fashion in China. Nothing can disturb the placidity of her tweed and four-in-hand. It is as much a matter of course as that at 4 o'clock she should commence to yearn for tea.

There is something compelling about this immunity from "style," and there is also something arresting about the comfort of the English woman's clothes. And at last the American public, tripped so long by French designs inured, too, to the fetters of tightly-girt duvetyn and brocade, are being brought around to the strictly tailor-made.

REACTION IN STREET SUITS.

Yes, there is a reaction in street suits! The English influence is at work in our costumes, and for awhile at least the public is going to be converted to the long-wearing tweeds, Donegals, cravenettes and kashmirs. We have had enough of skirts in which we could only hop, like the trained poodle at the circus, and this spring we are going to wear not only full, box-pleated skirts, but intend to swap the fragile and enfettering silk petticoat for knickerbockers.

"Suits are going to be plainer and more English in cut—frocks even more elaborate and intricate," is the predicion of one fashion oracle. Well, we can stand the discouragement of the latter clause, in view of the winged hope that appears with the durable street suit.

Many of these English walking suits which are shown have, as has already been mentioned, the box-pleated skirt.

ROOMY HIP POCKETS.

As for coats, these may be Norfolk or otherwise, but they are big, and many of them have hip pockets supplemented by a breast pocket, all of which are roomy enough to accommodate golf balls, tennis balls and extra cartridges.

Let it not be imagined, however, that these English suits are all merely utilitarian. Some, on the contrary, possess a very distinctive smartness and even beauty. Such, for instance, is the suit of rose-colored kashmir with pleated Norfolk jacket and skirt, showing groups of box pleats back and front, which is put forward by one shop.

With these common sense garments are worn felt hats that look well either rain or shine, or perhaps a rubberized sailor or a beautifully plain Panama. Frilly lingerie waists are, of course, entirely out of place with the mannish looking suit, and either the white Ascot or the four-in-hand knotted under the collar of the striped China silk or flannel shirtwaist must be recognized as their proper confederates.

KING ALPHONSO MAY GET ARMOR RELICS

PARIS, March 14.—King Alphonso, having expressed a wish to be pre- Philip II, his ancestor, now in the army museum here, probably will be given the relics, which he desires to place with the rest of the armor of Philip II in the palace at Madrid. In return, it is said, he will give to the French government a complete set of the Charles Quint armor, now in Spain's possession.

GRIEF TRANSFORMS NATURE OF MAN

CASSVILLE, Mo., March 14.—Elijah Shrum, the only actual cave dweller known in Southwest Missouri, has been arrested on a charge of cutting timber on other people's land.

For the last three years Shrum, with his two sons, one of whom is now 10 years old and the other 12, has lived in a cave on the property of the Scotch Land Company, in Roaring River township, in the southeastern part of this county. In the cave an old stove provided the fire, leaves were used for bedding and the father and little sons lived on what they could trap in the woods and catch in the streams.

Men who lived near them say they were sometimes forced to eat ground squirrels, and that there would be whole weeks when neither the father nor the little boys would see another human being.

Shrum comes from a good family and has a brother living in this county who is a prosperous and progressive citizen. Up until three years ago Shrum lived with his family at Butterfield and his manner of life was not different from that of other people. Immediately after his wife died he took his two youngest children and went back into the woods, where he took up his abode in a dingy old cave.

His brother and friends learned of this and tried to persuade him to get employment and provide a proper living for his children. But he would not listen to that and continued to live his secluded life.

Shrum's boys have been taken to the home of his mother, and if she is not able properly to care for them they will be turned over to the county probation officer.

GERMANY WILL NOT PROTEST IN OIL CASE

BERLIN, March 14.—The decision of the government not to protest in favor of the Standard Oil Company against the German oil monopoly bill conforms with the expectations of the German government, it was announced today.

It is generally understood here that the Standard Oil Company is not asking the American government to pro- the establishment of which is well within the prerogative of the German government. The company, however, wishes the American government to support its demand that the German monopoly bill be amended in order to compensate the company for its loss of business and in its investments in Germany.

MARRIAGE LAW IS GIVEN SETBACK

New Jersey Statute Is Held Suspended for Romance of Deathbed.

PHILADELPHIA, March 14.—A marriage law of New Jersey which requires that 24 hours elapse before the granting of a license and the ceremony was set aside to permit Howard Schemeley, on what he believed to be his deathbed, to marry Miss May Connelley, of 323 Pine street, Camden.

The ceremony was performed at the sick man's home, 614 South Third street, Camden. After he saw his bride led away after the wedding, Schemeley dropped back on the pillow unconscious.

Schemeley is 28 years old and his bride is 26. They have been friends since school days. Schemeley was a fireman on the Pennsylvania railroad, and when he received a promotion he planed to marry his sweetheart.

Fourteen months ago he was taken ill. Miss Connelley was his constant visitor and struggled to nurse him back to health. Schemeley grew worse, however, until he was told he could live no longer than a few weeks at the most.

Friends and relatives were about his bed yesterday when he suddenly grew worse.

"I feel that I am dying," he said. His sweetheart, always at his bedside, bent over him and whispered something. The sick man opened his eyes and shook his head in protest. The girl spoke to him again. This time Schemeley called one of his relatives to the bed.

"Tell them," he said in a weak voice, "to get a minister. May and I are going to be married before I die."

Several friends hurried to the marriage license bureau, which they found closed for the holiday. Morris Odell, an assistant clerk, was located and when he heard the story, he agreed to issue the license.

But there was another barrier—the 24 hours' law. A wait in Schemeley's case might mean too late.

The friends appealed to Public Prosecutor Kraft for an opinion. After he heard of Schemeley's death-bed plea, the prosecutor said that under the circumstances, the law could be waived.

A message then brought the Rev. Daniel Johnson, pastor of the Wiley Methodist Episcopal church, to the house where Schemeley lay sick. Schemeley reached out his hand and took that of his sweetheart, who stood beside his bed. The clergyman repeated the ceremony and pronounced them man and wife.

Physicians feared Schemeley would not live more than a few hours.

RUBNER VIEWS LIFE THEORY UNFOUNDED

Hygienic Living Cannot Much Prolong Normal Span, Says Scientist.

BERLIN, March 14.—Even the greatest progress in medicine and hygienic living cannot add more than a very moderate amount of time to life, declares Professor Max Rubner, Germany's most noted physiologist. In this opinion he takes issue with Metschnikoff and Metschnikoff's followers, who believe that life may be indefinitely prolonged. Rubner says that man does not die primarily of disease or of other avoidable causes, but because the stock of energy given him at birth is finally exhausted.

Metschnikoff represents man to be by nature a perpetual motion machine, which ceases to work owing to the wheels being ruined by friction. To Rubner man is not a perpetual motion machine, but an engine fed with a fixed, not increasable, stock of fuel, and such an engine must cease running when the fuel is all consumed.

WHOLE SCIENCE UNFOUNDED.

The whole new science of "macrobiotics," or lengthening life indefinitely by eliminating disease and unhygienic living, is, in Rubner's view, unfounded. It should be replaced by "the law of energy" which governs the lives of man and all other animals.

The law of energy is put by Rubner thus: Living substance keeps alive only as long as it is producing energy from the consumption of food. But the capacity of living substance to do this is rigidly limited. Every animal can produce a fixed amount of energy and no more, and when its capacity to produce energy is exhausted it dies. That, in fact, is death; disease not being the cause of death, but only being the cause of a decline in the energy-producing capacity of the cells. Disease shortens life. But entirely getting rid of disease will not very materially lengthen life. The most man can do is, by careful living, to slow down the process of using up his original capital of energy. This slowing is practicable only to a certain extent. The capital of energy is still being eaten into, even if slowly, and when it is exhausted death must come.

OPPOSES CURRENT DOCTRINES.

Professor Max Rubner is director of Berlin Physiological Institute, and was formerly Berlin University rector. He has held other posts. He followed the great Koch as director of Berlin Hygienic Institute, is president of the Imperial Health Council and is author of numerous works on biology and hygiene. His theory conflicts with all current doctrines of the cause of death.

Among these is Metschnikoff's "autotoxine" theory, which says that death is largely due to arterio-sclerosis, the result of poisoning by intestinal bacteria. Other theories which it opposes are Perino's that death results from accumulation in the system of injurious residues of nourishment; Petzoldt's, that death comes owing to an increase in the number of badly functioning cells, and Ribbert's theory that death is atrophy. All these imply that if only certain bodily lesions could be prevented man would live forever. To this Rubner replies that man, even if he enjoys the best conceivable health and avoids every one of these "causes of death," will nevertheless die. He will die when his initial stock of energy, all the energy which nature allows him to produce, is used up.

WHAT EXPERIMENTS PROVE.

Rubner's experiments prove that, with the exception of man, all the higher animals have approximately the same capacity to produce energy. The amount of warmth developed from food, and the amount of residue in the shape of carbonic acid, water and excrements, correspond with the skin superficies of the animal. So that, roughly, the animal produced energy in proportion to its size.

When an animal comes to maturity its cells have the capacity of turning a certain amount of food into a certain amount of energy. This certain amount of energy represents the animal's future life. Rubner has calculated the "duration" of this energy life in animals and man in calories. A calory is the amount of heat needed to raise the temperature of a litre of water by one degree C.

Compared with the lower animals man is favored. That accounts for his long life. For every pound weight of his body at maturity the average man produces and consumes 362,900 calories of energy before he dies. Death comes when he has consumed that amount. Nothing that he can possibly do will make his body produce, during adult life, more energy

BERLIN SEEKS TO REFORM ITS WAYS

Prussian Diet Declares That City Is Den of Vice and Seeks Moderation.

[illegible] years Berlin strove to become the greatest all-night city in the world. Now, when it boasts that distinction, there are widespread appeals for putting on the brakes.

Out of the 443 members of the Prussian Diet 370 have backed the assertion that the city is a den of vice and have petitioned the minister of the interior to "ward off the dangers to which the [illegible]

The forty members of the Progressive party in the Diet have not joined in the petition, but their spokesman declared that in a general way it expressed their desires.

Baron Schenck zu Schweinsberg, speaking for the Conservatives, made a bitter attack upon conditions in Berlin. The number of dissolute women, he said, was increasing tremendously with all the evils that follow in their train. "Berlin by night" had become an advertising slogan, known throughout the world. As a matter of fact Berlin by night was "the darkest spot in Prussia and in the German empire." Cabarets, dance halls and dangerous drinking places were destroying the youth, and when a move was made against them, the cry went up that the police were threatening business. The baron also attacked the cinematograph as a factor in demoralization.

ALL-NIGHT LIFE.

A free Conservative representative, Herr Voster seconded Baron Baron zu Schweinberg's statements. The city's night program, he said, is made up as follows. From 8 to 11 o'clock theater; 11 to 2, wine restaurants or dance halls; 2 to 4, bars, and 4 to 6 "night resorts." The advocates of all-night revelry, he said, defended their attitude by declaring that Berlin is one of the world's great cities and must cater to visitors from abroad. They overlooked the fact that the public places in London close at midnight and on Paris boulevards at 1 o'clock.

"He who knows our night life knows what demoralization it causes among our youth," said the deputy.

Representatives of the Clerical and National Liberal parties also attacked existing conditions. Dr. Schroeder of the National Liberals deplored that fact that these conditions were not confined to Berlin. The smaller cities, too, were becoming infected, he said.

Johann von Dallwitz, minister of the interior, declared that there were great obstacles in the way of a successful campaign against the dangers of present conditions. He said the government was trying to reduce the number of doubtful resorts and had actually effected a considerable reduction in the number of places holding all-night licenses. It was hoped eventually to abolish entirely the so-called "animation bars," where female waitresses urge the guests to drink as much and as often as possible, and he expected much from the new measure about to be laid before the Reichstag for the regulation of the liquor traffic throughout the empire.

DEFENDS THE HABIT.

No earnest defender of the night life of German cities [illegible] yet replied to the attacks in the diet, but one apologist has directed attention to a reason justifying later hours for restaurants and cafes in Germany than in other countries. This is the manner in which the working day is divided. The average business house suspends operations for from one and one-half to two and one-half hours at noon, when the big meal of the day is taken, and close only at eight. This forces the employees to work into the evening, and if they wish to visit theater, moving picture shows or concert, they must go directly from their place of business without pausing for supper. The after-theater supper is not a luxury for them but a necessity, and they make up a big part of the crowd that fills the public eating and drinking places from 11 until 2 o'clock.

WOULD ABOLISH LOTTERY.

HAVANA, March 14.—President Menocal has sent a message to congress recommending the abolition of the national lottery.

CELLS LOSE CAPACITY.

Man's 362,900 calories per pound of weight, his whole store of life, are produced in the "bions," as Rubner calls the living elements of the cells. The "bions" are being constantly exhausted and constantly being renewed, and with every calory of energy produced in them by the combustion of food the cells lose so much of their capital of energy-producing power.

Thus, after a man has produced and consumed 162,900 calories of energy for every pound of his weight, he will produce in future only 200,000 calories, and when these are produced he must die.

After he has produced and consumed another 100,000 calories only 100,000 calories remain to him, and this 100,000 represent what life he has left. If all men lived absolutely healthy lives, avoided exhaustion and excesses and could escape accident all lives would be about the same length. The great difference in the length of life among those who survive to maturity is due to the fact that some men use up their 362,900 calories far more quickly than others. They do this by living at too great a pace, by excesses of various kinds which absorb quantities of energy, and finally by disease.

FEVER SHORTENS LIFE.

Fever hastens enormously the production and consumption of energy, and hence, even where apparently recovered from an attack of fever, it shortens life. The bacterial toxines, which Metschnikoff thinks kill, do not kill directly. But they put on the body cells the labor of producing antitoxines in vast quantity and thus squander energy.

By avoiding exhaustion, excesses, disease and auto-intoxication the capital of 362,900 calories would be spent much more slowly than it is now. Indeed, Rubner holds that with most men more energy is wasted on these than is spent profitably on the necessary functions of life. But although the capital may be made to last considerably longer than is at present the case it must, nevertheless, some day come to an end.

SPRING FEVER STRENUOUS MALADY

(By W. A. WIELAND.)

There are two kinds of spring fever, the spring fever passivus and the spring fever activus. The symptoms of the first form of the malady are a drowsy feeling coupled with the absolute inability to do any hard work. The activus variety, on the other hand, is manifested in a stirring of the spirit of vagabondage, and a strange desire to roam into the country and to keep a-roaming. When one gets [illegible] the seasonal malady, take my advice, and become afflicted with the [illegible] variety. I speak as one who knows out of the fullness of bitter experience. [illegible] it happened.

I allowed one of the boys' clubs with which I am connected to contract the second form of the malady. Also I must confess I had myself fallen prey to its ravages. Well, the result was that we arranged a hike out into the country. It was some hike that we laid out, and the members of the Virginian Club, staunch West Oaklanders that they are, were just the boys to do what they had planned, to finish what they had started. They finished it all right and me, too.

ARRANGE RENDEZVOUS.

We arranged a rendezvous at the corner of Seventh and Peralta streets for 9 o'clock last Sunday morning. I arrived there very close to 8, and commenced to "rendezvous." I continued to engage in this delightfully quiescent occupation until 9, assisted from time to time by members of the club who arrived in a straggling procession. Some of the party had to be awakened and roused from bed, notably "Arab" Allen. Then there were two who just wouldn't arrive, Bill Stickel and Frank Cumbra. We finally gave them up, and took the car, much downcast in spirit because we couldn't [illegible] of these boys from any Virginian party.

Our trip was arranged to be from the [illegible] the Fourth-avenue car [illegible] the roadway of the Oakland, Antioch and Eastern Railway to Lafayette, thence homeward along the tunnel road. Our first adventure, after leaving the car, was the big railroad tunnel. We had expected to go through this tunnel, but we were intercepted and stopped by a guard, a very peremptory person who had the reddest whiskers you ever saw off the vaudeville stage. So we climbed over the hill and took the Moraga valley road. We walked until 12 o'clock, at which time the party struck, and refused to do another thing until the lunch had been disposed of. So we sat down by the creek near Pinehurst and started to "dispose."

Most of my time was spent in witnessing the most marvelous exhibition of food-demolition I have ever seen. I had helped Eddie Porter carry his lunch, and I am ready to swear that it weighed 15½ pounds, but the way the boy sailed in—whew!

PLENTY TO EAT.

Ten ham sandwiches, 8 boiled eggs, 14 doughnuts, 5 pieces of pie, 19 or 20 oranges, sundry apples, bananas, pieces of cake, all disappeared in a wonderfully short time. No, I wasn't seeing double. It was all there and then it wasn't. Just disappeared, that's all. Suddenly Eddy, who was facing the road, let out a shout. [illegible] I looked at him in blank amazement. He repeated his extraordinary performance. Then from the direction of the road I heard a bloodcurdling response. I turned around, and there on the road I saw Frank Cumbra, one of our lost ones, in the act of emitting the last strains of his terrible "Butcher's war-cry." He was accompanied by Bill Stickel, whose appearance had occasioned Eddy's shout of "Sticks!" The late ones had followed on our trail and overtaken us.

It's a long hike from Pinehurst to Lafayette. If you don't believe me, just try it. We hit up a good pace and held on to it. Occasionally we stopped to rest. On these occasions I committed various lapses into quasi-poetry. This is a terrible fault of mine. Once I mentioned the "soft and velvety carpet of verdure that covered the hillsides." One of the boys said that they had been looking at that carpet for some time and that a sight of the bedroom carpet would be more cheerful, for a change.

PARTY DIVIDED.

As we went on the party became divided in a military manner into an advance guard and a support. The support consisted of the stragglers. It was commanded by Captain Porter, with "Arab" Allen as lieutenant, and "Babe" Lemos as private. They managed to keep about a half a mile behind their advance guard. The "old man" was still with the advance, thank you, for spelling. As we approached Lafayette somewhat late in the afternoon, I offered to "buy" for anyone that would beat me into the town. Then our progress became a mad, disorderly rout. "Sticks" lit out at a 2:40 clip, "Stilts" Cardoza was right behind him, and Cumbra, emitting his war-cry, broke into a run. The poor "old man" was left in the dust.

EARN COOL DRINK.

We ran the last half mile into Lafayette, and all of the advance guard except one earned their long, cool drink of soda. I told the boys I could have overtaken them all, and so I could, only I saw the sign in the road which says "Lafayette—slow down—speed limit, 90 miles an hour." Then, of course, with that warning, I couldn't exert my full powers. I don't believe that "Sticks" [illegible] all the way he tore after that drink.

We waited for the rest of the party in the town, and our homeward march commenced. It was not very eventful, except that as it became moonlight some of the party started to sing. The results they obtained were indefferent, except when they sang "Aloha." Given some moonlight, a little longing feeling, and a good bit of fatigue, and there isn't any bunch that can't get some harmony out of the sighing strains of "Aloha."

Well, we arrived home finally. The [illegible] when I awoke my attack of "spring fever activus" was gone, quite gone.

Merry Maids' Club Play the Part of Hostesses

The Merry Maids' club of the Oakland Social Settlement were the hostesses at a very enjoyable social and dramatic evening held at the settlement house last Tuesday evening. Miss Ida Green, general secretary of the Young Women's Christian Association in Oakland, together with the civic section of the organization, were guests of the young ladies. The big feature of the evening was the presentation of a one-act play by Miss Ruth Alma Farley, entitled "Sassy Susan Sulks." This piece was well performed by a cast of girls who are members of the Merry Maids and was coached by Miss Mildred Schmidt, who is director of the club. The cast of characters follows:

Miss Kittie Mean	Margaret Garvy
Susan Miles	May McClean
Hazel Bright	Katharine Quirk
Mary Black	Sarah Pergola
Clara Gray	Myrtle Doody
Amy Smart	Ramona Ring
Bella Fair	Effie Miller
Theresa Monte	Mabel Friguero

There was also another unique sketch on the program. This was entitled "Her Mother's Prayer" and was written by the two girls who appeared in it, Carmel De Cilis and Alma Hulin. Miss De Cilis enacted the role of Gwendolyn, the rich girl, while Miss Hulin appeared both as Mother and as Bethel, the poor girl.

A piano solo by May McClean, a violin selection by Dorothy J. Wobbs, a piano duet by the Misses Garvy and Simas, and a piano solo by Consuela Wobbs, completed the program. After the stage performance, a dainty supper was served by the following committee: Miss Regina Moraglia, Myrtle Doody, Mabel Triguero and Lillas Simas, and the evening concluded with a social dance.

COLORED BOYS' ATHLETIC CLUB NOW ORGANIZED

With an initial membership of 11, an athletic club of colored boys that bids fair to cut a great figure in Oakland amateur sports, was organized last Saturday evening at the Oakland New Century Settlement. The club will be known as the Flirtation Club, the connotation of this unique title being a secret with the boys. The club has already a fast basketball team, and a track team is being formed. A baseball team will also be organized this spring, and several of the boys have announced their intention of competing in swimming events. The activities of the organization will be not be confined to athletics, however, as musical and dramatic work are to receive their share of attention. The following boys comprise the present membership of this club: Leo Derrick, William C. Haynes, Oscar Ramey, George Swasey, Lawrence Turner, Joseph Turner, Floyd Jordan, Joseph Ramey, Frank Burrill, Lee Purnell and Robert Mayes.

"Clubs of Athletic Girls" Is Slogan for Parks

Clubs of athletic girls is now the slogan in the Recreation Department of Oakland, and a committee composed of the Misses Winifred Van Hagen, Elizabeth Clow, Pearl Banks and Anna McClure, supervisors of girls' activities, has just turned in a report proposing a scheme or organization for such clubs. One of the objects of these clubs will be to promote competitive athletics among the fair sex, without making travel from one play center to another necessary, since the establishment of several clubs on each ground is planned. There are to be two classes of clubs, according to the report. These are the senior clubs, composed of girls from 12 to 18 years of age, and the junior clubs, comprising girls over 9 and under 12 years old. It is proposed that a uniform costume be adopted for all girl athletes, this uniform to consist of a middy blouse and bloomers. Prizes will be awarded for regular attendance and participation in at least one hour of supervised exercise each week. The prize will probably consist of a badge or the right to wear the playground block-letter. There will be two field days for women each year. One of these will be in the nature of a play-day, during which competitive folk dances and folk games will be played. This will be held during May. The other field day will be a formal athletic meet, the events to be competed in not having been as yet decided upon. It is proposed to hold this event in September. Members of the Women's Outdoor Clubs of the various parks will unite with the girls in both events.

MOSSWOOD PARK HAS A NEW SUPERVISOR

Mosswood park, the pride of Oakland's recreation centers, has a new supervisor at the present time in the person of Stanley McFadden, [illegible] recreation department, whose ability in physical educational work has recommended his temporary appointment as the director of Mosswood playground. McFadden is taking the place of R. F. O'Hara, the regular supervisor, who has a leave of absence from the department.

O'Hara has occupied the post at Mosswood for a year, in which time he has produced some great results. Before coming to Mosswood he was stationed at Bella Vista playground, in East Oakland. Previous to this he was in charge of the [illegible] This spring he has succeeded in developing a baseball team, which is probaly the most remarkable aggregation of playground athletes in this city. The team was known variously as the Mosswood senior team and as O'Hara's All-Stars, and has an enviable record of victories, having beaten the University of California on several occasions, besides defeating other strong combinations.

"Initiation Jinks" Introduced Entirely New Scheme

The dramatic club of the Oakland High school employed a novel scheme of initiation at its "initiation jinks" held last Wednesday afternoon in the O. H. S. gymnasium. All the initiates took parts in a skit written by Miss Margaret Henry, who has charge of the dramatic work in the high school. The rites of initiation were comprised in the skit and were directed by the Queen, Miss Marion Finger, and her maids of honor, the Misses Frances Drury and Lindal Jacobs. The candidates for initiation took the following roles:

Pocahontas	Etta Wilson
Portia	Virginia Bluell
Caruso, Kid	Marion Petra
Maud Muller	Josephine Verselli
Maud Adams	Abe Gluckman
Mephistopheles	Horace Beverly
Booker T. Washington	James Smeaton
Diogenes	Finley Cavanari

This skit, which provoked a good deal of merriment, was only one of several exceptionally good numbers on the program. A sketch performed by members of the Dramatic Club was very cleverly done. This was Thayer Smith's "My Lord in Livery." The cast of characters was as follows:

Lord Thirlmere	Carl Ma[illegible]
Futler	Oliver Kisick
Footman	Carlton Kendall
Sybil Amberly	Marion Bummel
Rose, a friend to Sybil	Lena Young
Laura, ditto	Ruth Berlin

The whole program was directed by Carlton Kendall, with Oliver Kisick acting in the capacity of stage manager, and Wells Whittemore acting as electrician.

UNIVERSITY STUDENTS IN POPULAR CONCERT

Students of the University of California contributed most of the numbers to a popular concert held last evening in the gymnasium of the Oakland New Century Settlement, on Peralta street, in this city. Vocal and instrumental music, besides recitations and a short lecture, made up a very enjoyable program, which was well received by a large audience of people living in the neighborhood of the settlement. A lecture on the customs of the Chinese by Tin Koo Ching, a Chinese student at the Berkeley institution, was an attractive feature of the [illegible] Another enjoyable number was the singing of a number of Hawaiian airs by James H. Dodson Jr., who is a senior at the University. Mr. Dodson has for some time been interested in settlement work in Oakland, and has been unsparing of his support and service. Others who took part were: Martino Martino, N. J. Clecak, Helen Sheridan, Walter Morgan and Mildred Mortenson.

Allendale Playground Baseball League Formed

Under the auspices of Allendale playground a baseball league has been formed which includes teams from Dewey, Jefferson, Fruitvale, Hawthorne and Allendale schools. Each school has entered two teams and much spirit is being shown in the oncoming series. The teams are classified into Juniors with a maximum age and height of 17 years and 5 feet 10 inches, Intermediates 15 years and 5 feet 5 inches and Midgets, 13 years and 5 feet. The schedule of games is as follows:

Juniors—March 18, p. m., Jefferson vs. Fruitvale. March 28, p. m., Allendale vs. Fruitvale. April 1, p. m., Allendale vs. Jefferson.

Midgets—March 20, p. m., Allendale vs. Hawthorne. March 21, a. m., Fruitvale vs. Jefferson. March 27, p. m., Dewey vs. Fruitvale. April 4, a. m., Fruitvale vs. Allendale. April 8, p. m., Allendale vs. Dewey. April 10, p. m., Jefferson vs. Dewey. April 11, p. m., Allendale vs. Jefferson. April 15, p. m., Dewey vs. Hawthorne. April 17, p. m., Hawthorne vs. Jefferson.

The Laurel school is also entering a little team under the bantam classification, 12 years old and 4 feet 10 inches. They will contest a series of three games with the Allendale bantams.

The league is designed to get as many players as possible from each school interested in the game. All the games will be played at the Allendale diamond and the playground furnishes all the physical equipment for the players. The boys of this vicinity are famous for their good spirit in games and whether winning or losing always give the opposing team a good "holler" at the end of the game.

HYNES ELECTED CAPTAIN OF BASKETBALL TEAM

Ernest Hynes was elected captain of the Oakland High school basketball team for the season of 1915. The selection was made by the members of the team last Thursday evening at a banquet tendered to the players by Oliver Kisick at the Saddle Rock Cafe. An enthusiastic gathering was held, which was [illegible] the boys had just experienced at the hands of the Berkeley High quintet. The following were guests at the banquet: Captain-elect, Ernest Hynes, Roland Milliken, Roy Fowler, Edwin Jolly, Russell MacDonald, William Bannon and Donald Stewart.

Tompkins Playground Basketball Team Wins Game

The Tompkins Playground 110-pound basketball team defeated the San Francisco Boys' Club 110-pound team in a fast post-season game, played last Saturday evening in the gymnasium of the Oakland New Century Settlement. The final score was 17 to 11. Some fast work on both sides failed to save the game from being a rather poor exhibition of basketball. In some ways the playing of the losers was superior to that of the winners. The passing of the San Francisco boys was good, and they seemed to have a better notion of teamwork than did the Oakland lads. However, the tenacious guarding of the Tompkins players, and their superior accuracy in basket-throwing, won the game for them. Pinguatoro scored six points for his side while Russo came through with two baskets and one foul. Porter, with two baskets, and Arena, with one, completed the score for the winning aggregation. Cullen of the San Franciscans did the most execution for his side, while McQuaide, at center, did excellent work. The line-up follows:

Tompkins—Pinguatoro and Russo, forwards; Porter and Arena, centers; McNally, Porter and Stickel, guards.

S. F. Boys' Club—Cullen and Lauterwasser, forwards; McQuaide, center; Simpson and Morton, guards.

There will be no return game, as both of the teams have decided to play no more games this season.

GRIDIRON HERO YIELDS TO BASEBALL

Soccer Season Closes on the Local Playgrounds; Mask and Mitt Appear.

The soccer football season has closed on the local playgrounds, and the gridiron hero has disappeared for the year. He has given way to his brother of the baseball diamond; the inflated ball has been thrown in a corner, and the mask and mitt are again in evidence. On all the local athletic fields the alluring sound of the impact of boot and pigskin has given way to the intoxicating music of the crack of the horsehide and hickory. But it was a great football series that has lately been closed, and despite some very serious drawbacks, a very successful season. The regular series was [illegible] fully interrupted by the winter rains, which never seemed to miss a day on which a game was scheduled. Then this enforced inactivity caused the dissolution of a number of teams, but with all that, there was a good number of most exciting contests. One of the great results of the series has been that it demonstrated the excellence of association football as a playground game. The disciplinary opportunities of the game were apparent, the no-substitute rule making everyone careful about unnecessary roughness. The costliness of fouls also makes a boy learn to use considerable self-control, and that in a game one must play with all his might, and in which one gets not a little excited. It's a fine game for physical development, too, since it requires both speed and endurance.

HOW CHAMPIONSHIPS WENT.

The championships in the series went to the following teams.

The members of the winning teams are to be awarded the new standard playground trophies, which consist of a medal on which are athletic figures symbolizing various athletic activities, and a bar, which hangs below this medal and contains the name of the sport, and the year in which the championship was won. Only one medal is awarded to any one athlete, but he receives as many bars as he is a member of winning teams. Thus, the "class" of a boy athlete may speedily be determined by the length of the string of bars [illegible] playground medal.

OAKLAND BASEBALL SEASON.

The baseball season has started in earnest in the Oakland Recreation Department, and the young players of the local playgrounds are all warming up and making ready for the spring series of games. The league this year will be divided into five classifications, thus giving every young athlete the opportunity to compete against others of his own size. The five classifications are known as the Bantams, the Midgets, the Intermediates, the Juniors and the Seniors.

The Bantam teams are made up of players who are under 12 years of age, and do not exceed four feet and eight inches in height.

Players in the Midget division must not be older than 13 years, nor taller than five feet.

The Intermediate division comprises athletes who are not more than 15 years old, and whose height is less than five feet and six inches.

The Junior players must be 16 years or under in age, and must not exceed five feet and eight inches in height.

There is no height in restriction in the Senior division. All playground players who are under 21 years in age are eligible to play in teams in this division.

Competition has always been keen in the baseball leagues of the recreation department. This year owing to the greater attendance at the playgrounds, there will be even more excitement than usual in the series. Mosswood, Bushrod and De Fremery Parks will enter teams in all the divisions, while even the smallest playground will be represented by at least three teams. The first league games will be played the last Saturday in the month. The games in most of the divisions takes place on Saturday mornings, commencing about 10 o'clock.

Noted Authority to Visit Oakland Play Parks

George A. Bellamy, probably the most noted authority on public recreation in this country, will be the guest of Oakland tomorrow. Bellamy is making a tour of the United States under the auspices of the Playground and Recreation Department of America, lecturing in all the larger cities and towns on the subjects of public recreation and city planning. He will be entertained by the recreation commission of Oakland at a luncheon at Mosswood park tomorrow noon and in the afternoon will be taken on a visit to points of interest in the city. In the evening he is to deliver an address at the city hall on the subject of "The Problem of Public Welfare Recreation." This lecture will be under the auspices of the Commercial Club and the city planning exhibition [illegible].

Bellamy is the founder and head of Hiram House in Cleveland, Ohio. Hiram House is the largest and most noted social center in the United States. In addition to its gymnasium, auditorium and classrooms, Hiram House has in connection with it a playground which is [illegible] the weather permits. The facilities of Hiram House accommodate at times as [illegible] people. It has been called by some the "Recreation University," and it is in the attitude of an Alma Mater that the institution is regarded by those who partake of its advantages.

BUSHROD TO PLAY A TEAM OF FRESHMEN

The Senior baseball team of Bushrod Park is to play a team of freshmen from the University of California on next Thursday afternoon at the Bushrod diamond. Baseball is one of the regular [illegible] California, and this team is one of many that are developed each year. The Freshmen are coached by [illegible] of the physical culture department of the University, while Clifford L. McElrath has trained the Bushrod Seniors. This latter aggregation of players have been putting up a good brand of ball, and they are out for the scalps of the collegians.

DETAILS LITERALLY TRUE.

"Some of the details we know from government reports and investigations to be literally true. Others may perhaps be exaggerated, but they are not the essential ones.

"The play is more effective than a sermon, for it actually shows the trapping of the innocents, instead of telling about it; and also because the moving picture reaches so many people who won't go to church."

The Macdonough Theater will be closed for three weeks immediately following the engagement of "Traffic in Souls." It will not reopen until Easter, when it will be entirely remodeled and redecorated under the direction of Hans Ledeboer, the well known mural artist. When it reopens with Evelyn Nesbitt Thaw at Easter it will be one of the prettiest theaters in the West. "Within the Law" will shortly afterward play a return engagement.

ORPHEUM.

Marie Lloyd, the noted London music hall comedienne, is the headliner for the coming week. Miss Lloyd in her coster girl impersonations and comedy songs, is a stage favorite on the other side, and comes to America with many successors as her asset. Marie Lloyd is a sister of Alice Lloyd, so well known to theater goers that she is all but Americanized. The sisters, however, are of different type and taste, and one would scarcely recognize them as of the same family.

A company of five Belgians advertised under the stage name of the Hockney Company brings to the playhouse this week a novel mixture of gymnastic and unicycle maneuvers. The ladies of the cast show clever turns, and the act is ful of inteerst.

Madge P. Maitland comes to the Orpheum this week with a bunch of character songs, especially written for her. The departure from the well-worn rag and popular songs is a breezy relief and Miss Maitland holds the lover of the old regime with her clever comedy work, which has created for her a niche in vaudeville circles. Her 'Come All Ye'' provokes a riot of laughter.

Collins and Hart bring a delicious bit of travesty in their strong man act, the novel manner in which they spring their stunts excruciatingly funny. The feats performed are a hoax from beginning to end, but are so cleverly done that the audience forgets for the moment the sham. This team is just completing a three years' successful world tour, and upon reaching New York, are booked for a second time, all of which bespeaks for the success of the act.

A new act offered under the caption of "Who's Who" will be presented by Foster and Lovett, and is a singing number.

James F. Kelly and Emma Pollock hold the boards for the puns, songs, steps, etc., this week, and they can do it, too. "Ginger Snaps" is one of their best offerings. Miss Pollock will be remembered as the original Maggie Murphy in "Reilly and the 400"—the tough girl role.

Billy Rogers, the only man possessing the ability to present exact reproductions of the tones of almost every musical instrument, will give demonstrations this week, at the Twelfth-street playhouse. He not only imitates instruments, but birds, beasts and humans. His act is clever and interesting.

The Indian Club and athletics are in the hands of the Throwing Tabors, and their clever manipulations elicit rounds of applause while they hold the center of the stage. It is necessary to excel in order to hold an Orpheum audience, and this team presents an act full of interest from start to finish.

COLUMBIA.

Commencing with the matinee today, Dillon and King with their associate players will present their latest musical farce-comedy, "Frivolous Flo." The forthcoming production is a worthy successor to the sterling attraction presented at the Columbia during the past week. The comedian's newest laugh provoker is the sort of entertainment that keeps the audience in a state of happy expectation from curtain to curtain. Being of the farce variety, "Frivolous Flo," contains an abundance of laughable scenes, ludicrous situations and snappy dialogue. There is the usual plot of course in which Mike and Ike are the central figures. The author, has woven a complicated web about the Irishman and Hebrew and their entanglements are many. The musical program will contain the cream of the latest musical hits while the Ginger Girls will appear in a series of spectacular ensemble scenes. Something unusually attractive has been promised in the costuming line and the scenery will be of a pretentious nature.

In conjunction with "Frivolous Flo," Dillon and King will introduce for the first time in this city, the celebrated English aviatress, Lilly Irvine in her sensational act entitled, "Novel Electric Art Poses." The distinguished bird-woman is accompanied on her brief theatrical tour by her husband, Captain James V. Martin the celebrated aviator and manufacturer of the Queen-Martin aeroplane. The couple are presenting their novel vaudeville act to promote and advertise their entree in the proposed trans-Atlantic flight endorsed recently by the directors of the world's fair. Mrs. Martin, better known in the field of aeronautic sports as Lilly Irvine, was the first English-speaking woman to operate an aeroplane and the first woman to fly in America. Her vaudeville act is said to be truly marvelous and worthy of a place among the world's headliners.

Captain Martin has a wonderful record as a flyer, scientist, manufacturer and instructor. Martin was the organizer of the Harvard-Boston aviation meet and personally imported Claude Graham White to this country when that famous flyer established a new world's record in his flight around the statue of liberty. Captain Martin is now perfecting the plans for his flight across the Atlantic ocean in the near future. The Martins will appear only at the Columbia theater during their brief stay in the city.

PANTAGES

The local Pantages Theater is rapidly acquiring the reputation of giving its patrons something new on every bill and for the week starting with the matinee today, there will be no exception. Manager Pantages has secured the well known Harry Girard, composer of "The Alaskan." Mr. Girard will present his newest effort, a musical dramalet of the frozen north, entitled, "The Luck of a Totem" and for it he has written several original musical numbers, such as "Lassie Lou," 'Mother Did," "Totem Pole," and "There is Gold Along the River." There are a number of character types in "The Luck of a Totem," such as "The Boy," "The Southerner," "The Half-Breed," "The Irishman," "The Easterner," "The Westerner," "The Cockney," "The Sky-Pilot," "The Eskimo," "The Sheriff," and "The Girl." A special set of scenery shows northwestern Alaska in summer. Miss Agnes Cain-Brown, one of the Henry Savage forces, being featured for two season's in "The Shogun," is one of the principals. A company of 15 actors and singers are in the cast. Miss Zena Keefe, together with Gaxton and Cameron and a company of ten choristers, will present a rollicking musical tabloid entitled, "College Town." Tuneful musical numbers, superb costumes and special scenery marks the production. Walter Schrode and Lizzie Mulvey, popularly known in Oakland as bright comedy stars, will present a rattling good farce entitled, "Fun in a Theatrical Agency." These clever artists always provide a whole cargo of laughs and are therefore welcomed. The Hughes Musical Trio, balladists and instrumentalists on brass, reed, string and novel musical instruments. Mann and Belle, two attractive young women, known as "The Ragtime Maids," two reels of motion pictures and the big feature, the Pantages Prize Baby Contest, with its $75 in gold to the winning youngster, makes up the best bill of [illegible] presented by Manager Pantages at popular prices.

BROADWAY THEATER

An uproarious burlesque of life and customs at a frontier post, "The Battle of Picklehill," will be presented at the Broadway theater this afternoon by the greatly enlarged Broadway Musical Comedy Company. Types and characters long associated with military life will be amusingly burlesqued, and the musical tabloid will close with a farcical battle with Indians.

The two comedians, Bob Carter and Lew Dunbar, will appear respectively as General Hardtack and Corporal Schultz, who always twists the orders about, while Lawrence Bowers will be the brave frontier post hero, Lieutenant Jack Crawford. Fred Snook will appear as Buckskin Bill and Miss Grace Dorsey as Calamity Jane, while Miss Lucille Palmer is cast as Grace Pomeroy, the belle of the post, and Miss Lylian Mason as Mrs. Hardtack, the general's nagging wife.

The "1915 Girls," that lively, pretty, graceful bevy of chorus girls, will have plenty to do in taking part in the following musical interruptions: "The West Pointer" and "Girl in the Heart of

A very interesting meeting was held and the ritual was exemplified.

At the close of the meeting the members and their guests were invited to the banquet hall, where refreshments were served. During the banquet the chairman of the committee called on a number of the members and comrades who responded with interesting talks. The department president was the recipient of a bouquet of carnations. She congratulated the members for the manner in which they exemplified their work. Several members were reported sick.

MACCABEES.

Oakland Tent No. 17 held a splendid meeting Monday evening, March 9. Six candidates were elected and three were initiated. The disability report was quite lengthy, but all the afflicted ones are improving. Sir Knight Emil Axelson who was in East Bay sanatorium for nearly six months, has returned to his home at 4210 Aqua Vista avenue. Sir Knights Pearce Mayne and Drury Garrett have both undergone operations for appeidicitis and are recovering. The baseball team which got off to a bad start, has fully redeemed itself and is now one of the best teams in the Rock Ridge league.

WOODMEN OF WORLD.

Forest Camp No. 102, W. O. W., met Monday night and held a long and interesting session.

The committee appointed to conduct the big "get together" campaign have determined to secure enough members to make the nine per cent increase demanded. Open meetings, banquets and entertainments have been decided upon and new and unique features have been invented to inspire the membership with the necessity of making the campaign a success.

The sick benefit department is growing.

At the last meeting of Oakland Camp, No. 94, Monday night, several applications were presented for membership and accepted. Three candidates were initiated, receiving the full protection degree.

The camp is preparing a very interesting initiatory service in amplified form, which will soon be given by the officers and degree team of the camp.

The "Greater Campaign" for the increasing of the membership of the several camps as indorsed by the head consul, has been taken up with a vim by this camp and no doubt several hundred members will be added to the ranks, making the camp one of the largest lodges or camps in the city of Oakland, of over one thousand members.

The camps of Alameda county will soon publish a local paper for the purpose of boosting the order and the camps in this vicinity. Many camps have already passed resolutions endorsing the project.

OAKLAND PHOTO

"The Pride of Jennico," the celebrated romantic play by Abby Sage Richardson and Grace Livingston Furniss, famed as one of the greatest successes of the American stage, is to be presented in motion pictures at the popular Oakland Photo Theater, starting today and continuing until Wednesday night. It is a tale of heart interest interspersing with the clash of rapiers and the glint of [illegible] thetic character study, "The Pride of Jennico" is a stirring tale of the gallant days of old, of romance and roses and cold steel, when fortune and glory were carved by the sword, and daring deeds performed for the smile of a lady fair. The exterior scenes were all photographed in Cuba. Of notable beauty and depth, these scenes taken in the tropics lend a warm and colorful atmosphere to the romantic story. Historic old Moro Castle was used for many of the settings, permission to use the castle being granted as a big favor by the Cuban officials.

ALCAZAR.

Herbert Kelcey and Effie Shannon, two of America's foremost stars and most distinguished artists, will continue for a second week beginning tomorrow night, their successful engagement at the Alcazar theater in the first production in the west and at popular prices of David Belasco's latest and greatest success, "Years of Discretion."

The story of this play is a particularly delightful one. It has to do with a charming widow of 48, Mrs. Farrell Howard, who has allowed the years to tell on her spirits and personal appearance.

MUSIC AND MUSICIANS

Interest in music circles for this week centers in the Chicago Grand Opera Company, which will be heard at the Tivoli opera house in San Francisco. Other musical events during the seven days are unimportant by comparison, with perhaps the single exception of the Gerardy concert today. This recital will also be in San Francisco.

Gerardy, assisted by Gabriel Ysaye, violinist, and accompanied by Carl Bruchhausen, pianist, appeared at Ye Liberty theater Thursday afternoon. It is nine years since the last visit of the famous cellist to California. Since that time he has reached an unusual degree of perfection in his art, a perfection that was predicted many years ago when Gerardy began his musical career as a child.

At a concert given three weeks ago in Boston the program presented by Gerardy, Eugen Ysaye and Leopold Godowski was regarded as amazing by critics, particularly enthusiastic applause having been won by the rendition of Boellman's "Variations Symphoniques."

Thursday's concert included some remarkable productions among them Handel's "Concerto" in three movements [illegible] Pergolese's "Tre Giorno," Popper's "Gavotte" and the "Serenade" of Victor Herbert.

At today's concert in San Francisco, important numbers will be the Beethoven "Sonata in A-Minor" for the cello, the Saint-Saens "Concerto" in A, and Popper's "Hungarian Rhapsodie."

His program at the opening concert last Sunday included the Boccherini "Suite"; Bach's "Air"; Schumann's "Evening Song," and the Popper "[illegible]." Gabriel Ysaye's numbers included "Reve d'Enfant" of Eugen Ysaye, the Saint-Saens "Havanaise," Beethoven's "Romanze" in G and "Airs Russes" by Wieniawski.

Frank la Forge, who was to have accompanied Gerardy and Gabriel Ysaye was taken ill just before their departure from New York. His place has been ably filled by Carl Bruchhausen.

Gabriel Ysaye and Carl Bruchhausen gave a concert Tuesday afternoon to the school children of Berkeley in the auditorium of the Berkeley High School and Friday afternoon under the auspices of the School Women's Club they gave a similar recital for the school children at Ye Liberty.

Giffen, reader.

In the program were the Rubenstein "Trio" in B-flat; a reading, "Marpesa" of Stephen Phillips; cello solos, "Cantabile" of Cesar Cui, "L'Arlequin" of Popper, and vocal solos, "Caro Mio Ben" of Giordano and "The Linden Tree" of Schubert.

MISS KEMBLE IN RECITAL.

Miss Margaret Kemble, who was heard two weeks ago in a recital of Franz Schreker's opera, "Der Ferne Klang" gave the second of a series of these affairs Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Rudolph Spreckels in San Francisco. Her subject was the last Carpentier opera "Julien, or the Poet's Life," in which she was accompanied at the piano by Miss Esther Deininger. Miss Kemble gives excerpts from the opera giving her audience an idea as to its general type, Miss Deininger's clever piano work serving to further illustrate her remarks.

The opera "Julien" recently had its first performance outside of Paris at the Metropolitan Opera House with Caruso in the title role and Geraldine Farrar as Louise in the prologue, as well as in the later acts, in which she carries out five impersonations.

LORING CLUB.

The Loring Club gave its third concert for the season Tuesday evening. The program was perhaps more varied than any other that has been presented before by this organization. It included songs for men's voices, others for an accompaniment of strings, piano and organ, and others for choruses with tenor solos.

The concert was under the direction of Wallace Sabin. Gino Severi was principal of violins in the string section. Frederick Maurer Jr. presided at the piano, and J. C. Fyfe at the organ.

A feature of the evening was the presentation of W. Frank Harling's "Before the Dawn," a Persian Idyll. Easton Kent was the tenor soloist and the cello obligato was played by W. Villalpando.

Mrs. Flora Howell Bruner sang the soprano solos in Max Filke's cantata, "Spring Night," and in Mendelssohn's "The Lord Hath Commanded." She also sang a scene and romanza from Puccini's "Le Villi." Other notable numbers on the program were a group of three old Irish folk songs and English folk songs; Longfellow's "The Dawn"; Bruno Huhn's "Invictus," and Farrari's "Wake to the Hunting."

IN BERKELEY

Among the musicians who have recently come to Berkeley to make their home are Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Frederick Freeman, formerly of Indianapolis and Los Angeles. They have taken a house at 2808 Oak Knoll Terrace in Claremont Court and plan to remain here permanently. Mrs. Freeman, formerly Hanna Wolff—is a native of Holland and was a pianist and composer of prominence in that country before coming to America. Since then she has concertized extensively in the East where she played with the Thomas Orchestra.

She expects to continue her work as a concert pianiste even though keeping permanent residence in this section and is in fact now playing and lecturing in the Middle West in which latter capacity she spoke recently before the Matinee Musicale of Indianapolis on "The Futurist in Music."

Before returning she expects to fill engagements in Bloomington, Ill., Chicago, Detroit, New York, and Los Angeles.

Mr. and Mrs. Freeman were both pupils of Leopold Godowsky in Berlin for a number of years.

SOCIETY

THIS week, opening with a wedding, closed last evening with a dance at the Claremont Country Club—not at all a bad record for Lent, which this year, as usual, was inaugurated with the threat that social gayeties would be completely forgotten during the six long weeks.

While observing the penitential spirit to the degree that no very formal affairs are given, society is, nevertheless, still enjoying itself in a round of informal parties—luncheons, teas, bridge afternoons, dinners, and the favorite dinner dances—which, every bit as much fun as the larger function, have the advantage of requiring not too much trouble on the part of [illegible] telephone invitation to dinner and "dance afterwards" implies much less bother than the issuing of formal invitations. At the same time, it soothes the feelings of those who believes in enjoying life and those who think that enjoyment should be lessened during Lent.

The week that opens today is the one glorious exception to the general rule. Micareme brings its own license, and every night of the next seven days will be taken up with some sort of gayety such as has not been seen in the past three weeks. It is the breathing space allowed to the socially inclined. The micareme ball at the Hotel Oakland will be the signal for a number of elaborate dinners, some of which will be given at the hotel; others at the homes of Oakland, Alameda and Berkeley. For representative society from each of these places will be there in force, making use of the opportunity to indulge in public in the new tango steps learned at the Lenten "classes."

Last evening the Claremont Country Club presented a gay appearance, when the members, with the addition of a number of guests, assembled for a dance. As a matter of fact many of them were there more than half the day, the third of the series of "the dansants" having been held there in the afternoon. It was decided at the first of these affairs that it is quite the easiest thing to remain at the club for dinner, and after dinner what in the world is there to do but dance?

Tables are engaged from week to week, and while many of the parties include only two or three, there are others whose guests number eight, ten or a dozen. One very pleasurable surprise of yesterday afternoon was the appearance of Mr. John P. Neville, who has been so seriously ill for the past four months. It was the first time that he has been seen at anything of the kind and friends gathered around his table to congratulate him on his recovery.

Miss Dorothy and Miss Phyllis Capwell, who returned last week from Coronado, were the guests of Lieutenant Underwood at one table. His other guests included Miss Frances Ramsey, Ensign Boynton and Ensign Scofield, and a very merry afternoon was enjoyed by this interesting group.

Mrs. Thomas Crellin and Miss Mona Crellin presided at another table, and Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Arthur Perry were also there with guests. Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Carter had with them Miss Katherine Carter, Miss Madeline Carter and Mrs. W. A. Blair. Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Brayton were in another group. Others who took part in the gayety were:

Miss Dorothy Love, Miss Ada Nason, Miss Isabelle Nason, Miss Largene Hubbard, Miss Carol Eberts, Miss Margaret Eberts, Miss Liila Lovell, Miss Margaret Morbio, Miss Margaret Webber, Miss Alice Warner, Miss Josephine Johnson, Miss Bernice Blaisdell, Judge and Mrs. Harry Manville Wright, Mr. and Mrs. John Black, Mr. and Mrs. William Campbell, Mr. and Mrs. George Russell Field, Mr. and Mrs. William Cavalier, Mr. and Mrs. Challen Parker, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Proctor, Mr. and Mrs. George W. McNear, George Bowles, Jack Neville, Spencer Brush, Spencer Kales, Charles Keeney, Philip Wiggin, William Leib, Herbert Shuey, Robert Sharon, Richard Lyon, Lyman Grimes and Griffeth Henshaw.

MISS LANDERS BRIDE AT PRETTY WEDDING.

One of the prettiest weddings of the week took place Monday in San Francisco, when Miss Eleanor Landers became the bride of John Speyer. Mrs. Speyer is quite as much identified with affairs of the younger set of Oakland as of San Francisco, as she lived here for some time after giving up her home in Los Angeles several years ago.

The ceremony took place in the little Swedenborgian church, in San Francisco, and the reception which followed was in the garden of that church, quite an ideal place for an affair of the kind. The garden is completely surrounded by high fences to keep out the gaze of the curious, and within the walls are all sorts of exquisite flowers, trees, in blossom at this season of the year; everything, in fact, to make a pretty setting for a bridal party.

Pink and white, the colors of the decorations, were carried out in the masses of Easter lilies and roses, the latter shading from the pale La France through all the tones to the deep American Beauty rose.

Mrs. Landers gave her daughter into the keeping of the groom. The bride made a charming picture in her handsome gown of white charmeuse elaborated with shadow lace. A design of hand embroidery in threads of silver added to the beauty of the dress and clusters of orange blossoms were fastened to her train. Instead of the usual Juliet cap, Miss Landers' tulle veil was held in place by a wreath of orange blossoms and her bridal bouquet was a glorious shower of lilies of the valley and tulle.

Miss Lulette Mauvais was her only attendant. Her gown was one of the loveliest creations seen this year—an effect of shaded pink taffeta trimmed with shadow lace. She wore a picture hat and carried a shower bouquet of Killarney roses and maidenhair ferns.

William N. Gray was the best man and the ushers were Philip Mills and Carleton Gray. Only relatives and very close friends were in attendance, the size of the church not permitting more than thirty or forty guests in all. Among the number Monday were Mrs. Charlotte Speyer, the mother of the bridegroom; his sisters, Miss Helen and Miss Ethel Speyer; Mrs. William J. Landers, the mother of the bride, and her sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. John G. Johnston, and their son, Roland Johnston, Mrs. Zeno Mauvais, Mr. and Mrs. John A. Landers, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Wolff, Mr. and Mrs. William Penn Humphreys, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Zeile, Mr. and Mrs. James Jordan, Mrs. Frederick W. Tallant, Mrs. Henrietta Zeile, Mr. and Mrs. Jefferson Moffitt, Mr. and Mrs. Pierre Moore, Mrs. Horry Meek, Mrs. George Wheaton, Miss Marian Zeile, Miss Ruth Zeile, Henry Wolff.

Mr. and Mrs. Speyer are now in the southern part of the state, where they will remain a week or so longer before returning to San Francisco. Their marriage is the outcome of a friendship of long standing; in fact, for the past two years friends of the bride were continually trying to persuade her to admit the betrothal. Mr. Speyer has been devoted to her ever since Mrs. Landers and Miss Landers arrived from Los Angeles, and that was several years before the debut of this popular girl. It was only late last fall that Miss Landers finally admitted that she had decided to change her name.

MISS MAUVAIS TO BE BRIDE OF NEXT MONTH.

The same office that Miss Lulette Mauvais performed for Mrs. Speyer at her marriage last Monday will be filled by this young matron at the wedding of Miss Mauvais and Roscoe Glover Downs on the 15th of next month. The only difference will be in the change of title.

The two girls have been very close friends for years, and it was at a luncheon given for Miss Landers that Miss Mauvais announced her betrothal. Miss Landers also entertained at luncheon and bridge in compliment to Miss Mauvais just before the latter's departure for Los Angeles, where she spent three weeks.

Miss Mauvais will have one of the most elaborately appointed weddings of the season. It will be an evening affair at the home of her mother, Mrs. Zeno Mauvais, in Van Buren street. The ceremony will be performed by Rev. A. W. Palmer of the Plymouth Congregational church.

An attractive feature of the bridal party will be the group of children, several of them nieces and nephews of the bride, who will fill the positions of ribbon-bearers, flower girls and ring-bearer. For the latter office Miss Mauvais has selected little Donald Watson, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Watson. The ribbon-bearers will be her nephews, Zeno Mauvais and Hempton Mauvais, Kenneth Barbier and Laurence Tyson. Little Miss Helen Mauvais and Miss Betty Jane Cook will be the flower girls. There will also be a maid of honor, Miss Mary Merrick, and a bridesmaid, Miss Norma Umphred. Hillyer Deuprey of San Francisco will be the best man.

With this marriage Oakland will lose one of her most popular girls, as Mr. Downs will take his bride to Los Angeles, where he is engaged in business. He formerly lived here and has a host of friends, both on this side of the bay, in San Francisco and in Mill Valley, where his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. S. L. Downs, make their home.

It is a matter of great regret that Mr. Downs' sister and brother-in-law will be unable to be present at the wedding. They are leaving next Saturday for the Orient, where they plan to spend several months in travel. Mr. Downs has recently been ill, and the trip is being made with the hope of completely restoring him to health. Their little son will accompany them on the journey, which will include a lengthy tour of Japan, as well as a visit to China and the Philippines.

"ROBIN HOOD" HEARD AT THE GREEK THEATER.

Although not scheduled as a social event, the performance of "Robin Hood" at the Greek theater Wednesday afternoon certainly resolved itself into a gathering of the socially elect. Everybody who could manage it was there, the day being ideal and an open-air performance of the favorite opera not to be enjoyed every day in the year.

Not waiting for Easter to bring out their new hats and gowns, the audience gave the appearance of a fashion show, the dresses suggestive of late summer rather than the dawn of spring. The warmth of the day permitted the majority to sit throughout the performance without coats, and many of the newest silk one-piece dresses were given an outing for the first time this year.

Shaded taffetas seem to have been the favorites, and many of the fashionably-gowned women wore the elaborately draped models in this new silk, relieved by touches of vivid color. Notable also were their parasols, carefully held up to protect from the sun's rays the attractive hats that also were making their appearance for the first time. Cerise here, vivid purple there, yellow in all its varying shades, king blue, Alice blue, and now and again a sunshade of plaid or Persian patterns that combined all of these colors. And there were parasols of every known shape, the wide flatbrims introduced last year, the small hand parasols just to protect the face, the bell-shaped affairs that to the observer seem more ornamental than useful, and even one or two of the new models—the Cubist parasols that have taken such firm hold on the affections of the woman of fashion.

Throughout the performance groups chatted across the seats with groups, or in the intermission left their places to exchange the latest gossip with a dearly beloved half way across the theater. It was more like a garden party than a theatrical performance.

Following the production a number of the parties motored to the Hotel Oakland or to the Claremont Country Club for tea.

The guests included a large number from both sides of the bay. Mr. and Mrs. Egbert Stone were among the number who came from the other side, bringing in their party Miss Harriett Stone, Miss Doris Wilshire, Miss Helen Stone, Miss Dorothy Deane and half a dozen men.

In another group were Mrs. James [illegible], Mrs. Leon Bocqueraz, Miss Christine English and Mrs. Henry Dieckman. Mr. and Mrs. George W. McNear and Miss Ernestine McNear entertained a group of friends, as did Professor and Mrs. Charles Mills Gayley.

Mr. and Mrs. William G. Henshaw, Mr. and Mrs. Tyler Henshaw, Mrs. Harry Chickering and Miss Florence Henshaw formed another party. Mr. and Mrs. Louis Finlay Monteagle had with them their sons, Paige and Kenneth Monteagle. Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hamilton Sherwood, Mr. and Mrs. George Newton, Miss Mary Sherwood and Warner Sherwood made up an interesting family party. In another group were Mr. and Mrs. Harry Alston Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Ratcliff, Miss Corona Williams and Miss Florence Williams. Mrs. Martin Kales was there with her daughters, Mrs. Thomas Knowles and Mrs. Brendon Brady.

Others seen in the audience were: Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Johnson, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. John J. Valentine, Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Sutton, Mr. and Mrs. James Black, Professor and Mrs. E. C. Clapp, Miss Edith Clapp, Miss Barbara Sutton, Miss Helen Jones, Miss Elena Brewer, Miss Edith Treanor, Miss Helen Van Wyck, Miss Ysabel Beaver, Miss Alice Grimes, Miss Charlotte Tuttle and Miss Josephine Johnson.

SHOWERS BEING GIVEN FOR ENGAGED GIRLS.

The return to the good old-fashioned shower is causing a tremendous amount of joy to the hearts of the engaged girls. Showers of one kind or another are quite the order of the day as soon as a betrothal is made known, and where a few years ago engagement cups were the only gifts received, nowadays the bride is presented with everything, from hand-embroidered lingerie to a kitchen spoon. And it is usually in the form of an afternoon or evening party that these things are presented.

Miss Mildred Boyne, whose wedding to Charles Kutz is scheduled for April 15, was given a kitchen shower last evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas F. Boyle in San Francisco. Their daughter, Miss Nina Boyle, by the way, is to be one of the bridesmaids. Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Comper, the latter of whom is a sister of the bride-elect, gave the affair with Mr. and Mrs. Boyle, and, of course, Miss Nina helped to receive the guests. All sorts of kitchen utensils—frying pans, tea kettles, cake tins, bread pans, knives, forks, spoons, chopping bowls, etc., were among the household articles presented to Miss Boyne.

Her wedding will be an evening affair at St. Paul's Episcopal church. Rev. Alexander Allen will read the service. The bridal party will include Mrs. Oscar Comper as matron of honor, Miss Dorothy Taylor as maid of honor, and Miss Nina Boyle and Miss Mildred Jones as bridesmaids. The best man will be [illegible] English, and the ushers will be James Kutz, Franklin Bangs and Frank Jordan.

Linen showers are quite a usual event, as are jam and jelly showers, when the bride-elect usually lays in a large store of preserves, enough to last until the ghastly time when she is ready to "put up" her own preserves. Unique in affairs of the kind, however, was the shower given Friday afternoon by Mrs. James E. French for Miss Elaine Standish, the fiancee of Dr. Andrew Moon Massie. Since the announcement of her engagement this popular girl has been extensively feted. Showers of one kind or another have been included in the round of [illegible], and it was not the easiest thing in the world to hit upon something novel. But Mrs. French managed it. The guests invited to her Berkeley home were simply told to bring their thimbles—not their sewing—and on arriving they were presented with dainty little garments which the hostess had cut out for the bride. With an hour or two of hand work they were completed, and Miss Standish has in consequence about three dozen pretty little boudoir caps, matinees and pieces of lingerie to add to her trousseau. It was one of the most enjoyable affairs given for a bride in many a day and Mrs. French is to be congratulated on her originality. Incidentally, Miss Standish is to be congratulated on her gifts, every article in the number being exceptionally pretty and attractive.

Health and Beauty Hints

By MRS. MAE MARTYN

A. D. C. That itching and profuse dandruff plainly indicate an unhealthy scalp, and when this condition is overcome your hair will take on its former richness and beauty. Shampooing occasionally with a teaspoonful of canthrox dissolved in a cup hot water cleanses and invigorates the scalp and results in healthy, beautiful hair. This shampoo is very inexpensive and you will not only enjoy each shampoo, but the results will be very gratifying.

Janet: You and your husband both can easily get rid of the surplus fat if you follow these simple directions: Get 4 ounces parnotis from your druggist and dissolve in 1½ pints hot water, when it cools take a tablespoonful before each meal. This reduction method is gradual and positive in its action and does not depend on diet or exercise for results. The skin will be left firm and free from wrinkles.

Inquisitive—Your pimples and sallow complexion are caused by impurities in your system. Try this old-time blood purifier and tonic and I am sure you will obtain excellent results: To ½ pint alcohol add 1 ounce kardene (from drug store) then ½ cupful sugar and hot water to make a full quart. Take a tablespoonful before each meal and your skin will grow clear and the color of health will come back to your cheeks. This tonic is good for aches and ills prevalent in cold weather and tends to cleanse body of poisons causing rheumatism and kidney and liver troubles.

[illegible] are beautiful [illegible] and sparkling, [illegible] if cared for properly. I put 2 or 3 drops of my simple homemade tonic [illegible] day. When they are tired [illegible] show any tendency to inflammation [illegible] bathe entire eye [illegible] To make the tonic I put an [illegible] of the drug store and [illegible] in a pint of clear, cold water.

[illegible] to care, you can have a clear velvety, pink-and-white complexion if you care enough to give it a little attention each day. I advise discarding powder and using a plain lotion made by dissolving 4 ounces spurmax (get from druggist) in ½ pint witch hazel or hot water, to which should be added 2 teaspoonfuls glycerine. This is easily applied, dries quickly and imparts a delightful tone to the complexion. Especially good for oily, sallow skins and cannot be detected when on.

Pearl—Your wrinkles might be caused in many different ways, but without regard to the cause, I am giving you a certain relief which my friends and I have proven. This is inexpensive and is made as follows: Into ½ pint water stir an ounce almozoin (from any druggist) and add 2 teaspoonfuls glycerine. Apply the jelly cream plentifully on retiring and massage well into the skin, then in the morning wash off and apply a little more. A few such treatments will soon clear the skin of wrinkles, reduce the large pores and give you a velvety complexion.

Clara M.—You can help nature beautify your hair by keeping your scalp perfectly healthy and free from dandruff or itchiness. Make your own tonic and massage a little into the scalp and hair roots once or twice a week. I use ½ pint of alcohol, to which I add 1 ounce quinzoin and ½ pint water. This quinzoin tonic soon puts the scalp in a healthy, pliant condition, overcomes dandruff and oiliness and gives to the hair roots the strength necessary to produce a luxuriant [illegible]

Cara — Objectionable fuzzy or hairy growths are easily banished if you mix enough powdered delatone with water to form a thick paste and apply to hairy surface for 2 or 3 minutes then rub off, wash the skin and every trace of hair is gone. Excepting in very aggravated cases, one application of delatone is enough. No harm will result, but be certain you get delatone.

Easy Way to Remove Freckles and Eruptions
Some women have skin of such texture they occasionally are annoyed by the sudden appearance of freckles, slight eruptions or fine lines. March winds usually play havoc with skins of that kind. In such cases if one will procure an ounce of common mercolized wax at any drug store, apply a little of it before retiring, like cold cream, she can easily overcome the trouble. When the wax is washed off next morning, flaky skin particles come [illegible] moved in this way in a week or so, with all its defects. No bleach could so effectually remove freckles or blemishes. The new surface is smooth, clear, fresh looking. No pain or inconvenience accompanies this simple treatment.
In case of wrinkles which sink beneath the outer skin, a solution of saxolite, 1 oz., dissolved in ½ pt. witch hazel, makes a face bath which is wonderfully effective.

AROUND THE LIBRARY TABLE

BY MOLLIE E. CONNERS

THREE California writers came before the public this month with new books of literary values Myrtle Glenn Roberts Frona Eunice Colburn and James Hooper

Myrtle Glenn Roberts has given to her book the poetic name "The Foot of the Rainbow" Always to man has the rainbow brought its message of promise Its wonderful colors shine out after a stormy gale, telling the story of hope or renewed courage. And at the foot of the rainbow, somewhere out in the Land of Promise man knows that many rare treasures lie hidden And the book its worthy of its name It is a beautiful story written in drama form picturing a spiritual episode that every human life may claim, in fact for its own It is expressed in a rare literary style, with fine artistic feeling and much spiritual insight The publication date of the book is March 15, and it will be brought out by Paul Elder and company It is a Princess edition an exquisite volume printed on creamy toned, feather-edged Normandy vellum and bound in delicate Strathmore boards stamped in gold Several pages are delicately illumined in colors in a restrained and dignified manner There are wonderfully uplifting things to be read in this new book, "The Foot of the Rainbow" For instance one reads

When has a man found the treasure? When he has found his soul When he is filled with joy and peace When he knows that love for man and beast and things is life '

"O man, joy taken from another cannot live It dies when it leaves the victim, and hangs a dead weight upon your soul It is only when we give that we really live It is only when a man forgets himself . . . that God possesses him

I would make you a Princess Then I would not be a true Princess To be a true Princess I must strive for the treasure and win it for myself It is the striving for a thing that wins the crown not the possession of it"

"The Foot of the Rainbow' Here with you! Yes, you tried to tell me but I was too dull and gross to hear But now I hear and I know You are telling me that when I find myself, there is my treasure You are telling me that love must rule the world and all who fight against it are but beating and bruising their wings You are telling me that we must love, love love Every human being everything that lives and breathes in this world and out of it, every stone beneath our feet and in the sky above Now I see and I know Love is the treasure It is here—in myself.

"YERMAH, THE DORADO."

One of the powerful novels of the year is Yermah the Dorado, by Frona Eunice Colburn who was known to the reading public some years ago as Frona Eunice Waite

Mrs Colburn received some of her literary training as a journalist, and she is known as one of the best students on the coast She is versed in Indian lore and traditions and she is an authority on Indian mythology and on the archaeological researches of Mexico Her book is of wonderful value to Californians, and of rare interest to those who know how to enjoy the romance of life

The romantic tales of Ebers in depicting Egyptian life have a counterpart here in this romance of other days What Ebers has done for antiquity Mrs Colburn has tried to do for California. One finds in the book the following foreward

This book, "Yermah the Dorado" was first published at The Sign of the Lark, San Francisco, in 1897 The issue was limited to 500 copies mostly subscribed for by personal friends of mine The notes, manuscript and plates were all lost in the fire of 1906

The date of publication is of the utmost importance because the Llama City, Tlamco the scene of this romance, was located in Golden Gate Park, where it was destroyed by earthquake, in the long ago

Since the actual occurrence of 1906 the original story has been slightly revised, but not a line of the description of the earthquake has been changed nor an incident added Whoever lived through those days as I did, will not need to be told why The use of aeroplanes and wireless telegraphy, with the recent visit of a huge comet are additional reasons impelling me to reprint what is very like a pre vision of things to be

To me Golden Gate Park is a hallowed spot As a place of refuge I saw an ephemeral city reared in a night of stress and misery The beauty of a rebuilt modern metropolis will but serve to recall the vanished glory of the dream city ruled by the man who was the real El Dorado

FRONA EUNICE WAIT COLBURN

It is said that "Yermah the Dorado" is an idyllic love story, with all of the allurement fascination and charm of modern realism

It unfolds a quaint tale of treasure-seeking, a quest which finally realized the highest of all aspirations The book is big, primal and wholly American in conception treatment, environment and incident. The telling is simple, classic and beautiful

It is a brave tale of the doing of a fair haired young prince of a vanished white race—once the over-lords of the Americans — before the red race poured in from Asia and drove them south prior to exterminating them

The rugged description of the catastrophe which sank the island of Atlantis, separated Asia and America by submerging a mountain chain into the Aleutian group of islands plowed out the Golden Gate entrance to San Francisco bay, turned the southeast into a desert and brought on the ice age, is worthily done

California is the world's true melting pot — a link in the universal scheme of things From time immemorable it has been and is today a meeting place for all of the peoples of the Occident and Orient.

In this western romance the titanic struggle of the elements sets the action, but does not detract from the interest in the characters thrown together by such extraordinary circumstances The suspense the anxiety of the leading personage are shared by the reader and the mysticism pervading the situation is rational, convincing and deftly interwoven with transpiring events

There is much wisdom in the book, one learns many lessons therein And the information is given in such a charming fashion, that one does not know one has really studied deeply, while one has read a most interesting story. No California library should fail to have on its shelves "Yermah the Dorado" and the book is a distinct acquisition to the romantic stories of mythology and folk lore of this western continent

JIMMY HOPPER'S LATEST

'Coming Back With the Spitball,' is the latest story by James Hopper, the "Jimmy Hopper" of University of California days It is primarily a book for men who love baseball, and one reads of it.

"A living bit of the history of that fierce warfare we call baseball, a live cross section lifted out of the game and placed before your eyes in all its thrilling baseball from within, its moments of glory and its hours of gloom, you will follow every play, with the whole-souled abandon of the most enthusiastic fan

A WISE SON.

Readers remember with the greatest pleasure one of the admirable books of last year, "He Comes Up Smiling," by Charles Sherman It was a book of much literary distinction one with a sense of humor which lived up to the name of the book and there was an uplift in it as well The author has again given us a book very much worth while He has named the novel "A Wise Son

It is an admirable book There is in it sparkling humor plenty of mirth the appeal of tender pathos and the glow of romance and love

One of the leading clergymen of New York City may properly be allowed to join in the criticism

When "A Wise Son" was still in page-proof form, a set of these proofs were sent to Bishop Frederick Courtney of St James' church, New York City who is also president of the Church Temperance society of the Protestant Episcopal church bishop addressed a letter to the publishers part of which is here given so impressed was he with this bit of fiction that so successfully carried an earnest plea for better living with it without detracting from the very enjoyment of the story

"I have carefully read over the story 'A Wise Son,' and think that it will in a measure help the cause of temperance perhaps chiefly by inducing some of those who are more or less related to victims of strong drink to love them and treat them with self denying helpfulness instead of self-righteously setting them at a distance and condemning them The sin of drunkenness is so deadly, the evil wrought by it so widespread, and the problem of how best and most wisely to deal with it and its victims so complex, that every method which gives any promise of successfully combating it must be tried and certainly love is the mightiest power known to man whereby those who are 'tied and bound with the chains of their sins' can be enabled to break their fetters and be free"

'A Wise Son" is a story of a youth finding out and realizing the obligation in the book the futility of careless living, and the characters that teach one the story are immensely fascinating One could ask for no finer entertainment than this story affords It is one of the leading books of the early year, and is sure to score a marked success.

NEWS OF LITERARY PEOPLE

News notes of literary people are always welcome and so one reads that for the scene of his new novel which will appear this season Sir Gilbert Parker leaves South Africa where his last romance was staged and has chosen Western Canada

Horace Annesley Vachell is another English author who is indebted to the United States for his literary beginnings His first novels were written while he was ranching in California nearly 20 years ago and had their scenes laid upon the Pacific Coast

"The Dark Flower" is proving the most popular in this country, of all of Mr Galsworthy's books It is now in its third large edition

LITERARY REGRET ANSWERED.

One hears, on many sides comparisons between the literature of today and that of a century ago There is regret expressed that we have now not leaders worthy in every way of the name this a leading writer makes answer

Surely Lucas Malet, Wells, Ridge and a dozen others have more a superficial knowledge of the life [illegible] great novelist that is a point that m well be argued There is assuredly Balzac of cotemporaneous London by and large there is a great deal admire in contemporary English fic and if the Twentieth Century has veloped no writers of the stature Thackery and Dickens as yet, we to find much of the color the humor pathos and the philosophy of Lo life in the works of fiction that cross ocean."

YEAR OF FIGHTING.

Since a year of war with its accompaniments of wholesale bloodshed, rapine and plunder, has enabled the rebels to accomplish so little, how much longer will it be before they can conquer the rest of the country, which is the richest and contains four-fifths of the population? As they advance southward, they will move further from their base, while Huerta will concentrate his forces nearer his base and will gradually, if beaten, draw into the capital, which is well supplied with artillery and garrisoned by veteran troops, most faithful to him and paid when others go penniless. The struggle appears to have just begun.

If the rebels should succeed, what improvement would the murderous bandit, Villa, be upon the murderous drunkard, Huerta? What possibility would there be that Carranza, even if Villa remained faithful to him and even if he made an honest attempt, would succeed in establishing constitutional rule with such material? Would not a rebellion against Carranza and Villa follow that against Huerta and the whole bloody drama be re-enacted? Can such schooling qualify the indifferent, loot-loving Indians to found a democracy as we understand the term?

Another revolution is threatened there. "Why another?" asks the Wichita Beacon. Further it says.

Felix Diaz, who is said to be planning a new revolution for Mexico, ought to find a site for it before he goes too far with his plans. Mexico is generally understood to be well covered with revolutions at the present time. So many factional rebellions are in progress there now that the student of Mexican political history must maintain a card index to keep himself informed. If Diaz wants to do something worth while for Mexico why doesn't he establish a few Hagues or endow some agricultural colleges?

URGES INTERVENTION.

The Buffalo News, in urging President Wilson to interfere, and abandon his former policy as hopeless, on account of the people with whom he is dealing, says:

President Wilson is certain to have the weight of sentiment in the country with him if he shall deem it our duty to intervene in Mexico. Of course, his function is that of advising Congress. The war power is exclusively in the hands of Congress.

A President who wished to get his country into trouble might readily so act as to compel Congress to sustain him as a matter of honor, but nothing of that sort will occur with reference to Mexico.

Almost every one sees that when the rebel general, Carranza, denies the right of the United States to take care of foreigners, when foreigners have expressly stated that they confide their interest to the United States, the case is only that Carranza simply defies the United States.

The President is right in feeling that a country of our size and weight can be patient and calm and take no action until the time and circumstances squarely demand it. Certainly there has not been more consideration for a distracted neighbor in recent times than has been shown Mexico, not only on the part of the United States, but other powers as well, for, as stated, they have all committed the interests of their subjects to our care.

Perhaps it is a little curious and perhaps it is not that Huerta, as far as he has personal control, has been able to keep strictly within the line of international duty, but he is ignored by the President, while the rebel interests with whom we have been flirting for months are most defiant, most lawless, most indifferent to every consideration of international conduct.

HAS MANY AGREEMENTS.

Apropos of the Mexican situation, the Spokane Spokesman-Review goes on to arbitration in general, and the Wilson policy in particular. On arbitration, as a general thing, it prints the following:

America has agreements with 25 of the civilized nations for limited arbitration of questions that diplomacy can not adjust. These are the treaties of arbitration negotiated by Secretary Root as the first actualization of arbitration on lines of blocked out by The Hague conferences. They expressly exclude questions affecting the honor, independence, sovereignty and vital interests of the signatory powers. But they represent the limit to which the United States can go [illegible] mit disputes to adjudication, and still have its word mean anything.

Some of these treaties have already lapsed, others will lapse within a year or two. The sweeping reach of their capacities for usefulness in delaying an onset of war is apparent from the fact that the first group of these treaties comprise those with England, France, Italy and Japan, while in the second group stand those with Austria, Brazil, China and Holland. Russia is mentioned, the treaties with England, France, Japan, China and Brazil of themselves constitute great guarantees to the peace of the leading nations and their world-wide possessions.

The appeal of President Wilson for the renewal or extension of the treaties deserved the favorable consideration with which it met from the committee of the United States Senate on Foreign Relations. There should be no delay or factious opposition in the Senate. The structure of arbitration that has already been built up, however imperfect or inadequate it may appear, has cost too much and is too precious to be suffered to be put in jeopardy. It would be difficult, perhaps impracticable, to renew these treaties upon the expiration of their term of life. It may easily become the case, in the tension between the powers of Europe and the recrudescence of militarism last year and this, that the existence of a renewed treaty of arbitration between America and any one of them or Brazil or China or Japan might prove the one thing needful to prevent a war.

VINDICATION FOR SENATOR IS LESSON

Charged with a serious breach of the law and of manhood, Senator Gore has been placed on the grill, and has emerged thescatheless—a thing that seldom occurs under like circumstances. A good name, especially that of one high in the public service, is easily smirched. Senator Gore has been vindicated, and his vindication preaches a sermon that is instructive.

The Portland Telegram points out this lesson clearly in its comment on the Gore affair. It says:

While the verdict of the Oklahoma jury was for Senator Gore, there doubtless are many people who, hitherto having nothing but admiration for the senator, are now in a mood to question whether or not the Bond woman really told the truth; whether the senator, relying on his position and conditions, may or may not be the man that his admirers have thought him. There is no chance that there can be anything like general rumination of this character; but there may be enough of that sort of thing to put what we might term a smirch on a public man of prominence and of absolutely upright character.

It is the distinction to encounter even this suspicion of unsavory reputation that often makes the blackmailer successful against innocent people. And in politics the chances of success in a game like this are ordinarily augmented. It is a most malignant game—one from which there scarcely can be absolute vindication and escape unless those who play it are punished as they deserve, and those upon whom it is sought to be practiced throw down the gauntlet and fight it out.

The Butte Post, commenting on the Gore situation, says:

Senator Gore's vindication was emphatic. It came from a jury made up of citizens who live in the region where his foes as well as his friends dwell. It can be accepted as home testimony. Undoubtedly this outcome gratifies the large public throughout the country. There has prevailed a sentiment of kindly regard for him along with admiration for his uncommon ability and his fitness for a federal senator's rank. If in any social sense he merits criticism, nothing of the sort was ever intimated respecting him, until his enemies started the scandal that reached its finish yesterday in the Oklahoma courtroom. The news summaries sent to the press led the public to believe that the senator would be cleared—the evidence was in indication of a plot that was wicked in its inception and coarse in its details. In its verdict the jury declared that it would have decided in his favor even if the senator and the witnesses for the defense had given no testimony.

CHILD LABOR, AND PROTECTION FROM EVIL

Advocates of protection to children against child labor are complaining bitterly about the neglect of Congress to incorporate a clause in the new tariff law which would bar the products of foreign child labor from importation.

The question appears a very difficult one. How is the American representative abroad going to find out whether children under 14 are employed or not, more especially where they are not under the ban of the law?

It may be that the Buffalo Evening News voices the most logical view of the agitation in the following editorial:

It will be more to the credit of our own people if we first cleared up the factories and canneries in our own country that make use of child labor and in the busy time use it to such an extent as to become a positive public evil.

It is true that there is wisdom in sending missionaries to Asia before America is completely and profoundly Christianized and it may be that we should extend our vigilance to goods made abroad with the aid of child labor, before we have abolished all such labor in our own land, and yet we must admit that there is such a thing as going too fast for public opinion.

It is not so much by methods of force as by those of persuasion that the parents of children are to be taught the evil and danger that befalls the young who are set to work too early and kept at it too steadily, especially in occupations carried on in mills and factories and tenement houses and all such places as compel the breathing of impure air, accompanied in too many instances by unsanitary conditions otherwise.

Of the blind greed which is exploiting child labor in this country, the Milwaukee Leader says:

If the children whose labor is being exploited in the United States were to be organized and led in procession across the continent, they would make an army, if marching in single file 12 feet apart, 5000 miles long.

The national child labor committee, which has been active in getting child lbor legislation enacted, is seeking to enlarge its membership that the work may be more vigorously pushed.

The United States has been backward in its industrial legislation, but there is now manifest a strong tendency to correct many of the evils and abuses which have grown out of the laissez faire policy.

If permitted to continue unchecked, it would destroy the efficiency of future generations of workers.

Our factory and mine lords have been blinded by their greed. They have done their utmost to kill the goose which has laid their golden eggs.

HIDES $800 ROLL; IT BURNS.

SCRANTON, Pa., March 14.—Lack of confidence in the safety of banks resulted today in Anthony Smith's roll of $800 going up in smoke when fire destroyed his home, on Brook street. Smith kept his money in the pillow on his bed, and when the fire was discovered he tried to get to his room, but was too late.

Smith conducted a saloon on the first floor of the two-story building and the saloon was also burned.

STATUS OF WOMAN, INFLUENCED BY OCCUPATION AND ABILITY

Troubles of Fair Sex Partly Due to Limits of Employment

MRS. CHARLES GILMAN asserts that as human beings "women are far behind men." She questions whether civilized women can do many more things than their savage sisters. Her thought is that woman has stood still as a household drudge, whereas man has forged ahead through developing industries, arts and sciences.

What there is to Mrs. Gilman's argument is a widely disputed point responsible for a large number of dissertations on the subject of woman. Woman's employment, her fads and foibles and her aims and claims are all rehashed again as "The Gilman argument," says the Spokane Spokesman Review, "conceals a fallacy. The achievement of the race is confused with the capacities of the individual. Man collectively has harnessed the powers of water, steam and electricity and put them at the service of men individually. But the individual has no more mastery of these powers than is demanded for pushing a button to turn on the electric light or throwing a lever to let the steam drive the engine.

Similar confusion resides in the thought that women as a sex have fallen behind men in human progress. Men have in the main been the inventors of the modern sciences, industries and arts, but it does not follow either that their busying themselves with machines is more productive of capacity than occupying themselves with farming or that the numerous activities of "the household drudge" are unfavorable to the acquirement of the capacities of "human beings." Such disparities between men and women as exist spring partly from fundamental differences originated by nature and transmitted through heredity and partly from the radical difference in the education of boys and girls and the social careers of men and women. It is impossible to assent to Mrs. Gilman's assumption that difference in their occupations has made women increasingly inferior to men.

PROGRESS OF WOMAN.

As civilization has progressed, it has opened more doors of opportunity to women as well as men. The multipublication o fnew occupations and the specializing subdivision that is constantly going on in each benefit women. The women of 1914 have far more vocations open to them than "the household drudge" of 1814. The success and readiness with which they have occupied these new fields hardly suggest that the sex has fallen behind as human beings." Women in the eighteenth century may have been "the sleep of the race." She certainly is anything but that in the twentieth century.

The Chicago News, commenting on the status of woman, says there's nothing new in it, and then proceeds to cast what it believes new thoughts on the matter—if printing is any sign in belief of newness. It says:

There is nothing new in the problem of the calling and status of woman. It is as old as the human race. History and ethnology tell us of the developments in this sphere from most primitive times down to the present. The woman problem as such has never entirely ceased, although at times it has undergone noticeable changes, but it has been concealed underneath fixed relations and generally acknowledged customs.

OPEN TREATMENT.

The difference is that in our day the problem is openly treated and agitated while formerly it moved with the silence and concealment of a natural process. In our situation we easily—all too easily—forget that the problem is not solved by formulating and circulating up to date views on the subject, for men must find an offer a personal solution in their entire being and existence and in their social life. That is to say, the problem is practical and the solution must be practical.

The whole modern woman movement is not a question of woman as such. The question consists really of a conjunction of diverse movements in a special sphere. The woman movement embraces the modern intellectual, social and industrial tendencies, so far as these concern woman's world. The struggle for sufficient means of subsistence, for equal pay for equal work, for equality and independence of all individuals, for a satisfying content of life, for personal freedom in the conduct of life—all this combines in the movement for the betterment of woman's situation. These tendencies are diverse, if not in part contradictory. But one tendency attracts one class of women

NOT INWARD UNITY.

Consequently the woman movement is not inwardly a unity. This is impossible, owing to the different points of view and interest from which it takes its departure. Now one, now another, of its manifold elements preponderates. But there is one thing that is common to all the elements involved and that is "emancipation." The effort is to cure the ills of womankind by helping woman to an independent position, liberating her from the limitations of traditional customs and opening to her the whole field of vocational activity, which formerly was occupied by man alone.

This is the common thing in the woman movement. The various parties differ only a sto the degree of emancipation that is considered right and expedient. The radicals clamor for total emancipation; the conservatives for a partial, restricted, stipulated emancipation. But it is around emancipation that all parties and all aspects of the problem revolve.

The truth or error, the good or evil, of this emancipation—that is the crucial and serious test of the woman movement.

The status of woman and her employment are so closely allied that one might hardly consider one without the other. A teacher [illegible] abused, overworked, and dealing with the hardest imaginable types, in both parents and children, can hardly be expected to rise and develop arts, sciences and the world generally in her spare time. She's too busy earning a living in a very different way. The Chicago-Record-Herald quotes a few of her difficulties as follows:

If the precedent set by a distinguished poet were followed this editorial might be inscribed "To a louse on seeing one on a child's head in school." The poem, at any rate, which contains one of the most frequently quoted verses in all literature, is a warrant for plain speaking. We are going to enter a schoolroom for the purpose of seeing what actually happens; not in order that we may smooth away the facts, but that we may form some idea of the difficulties and the need of school discipline and of the offensive conditions under which school work is done.

JUST A LOUSE.

The teacher noticed not a louse but the lice on the child's head. She had received written complaints from the mothers of children who sat near this child; the school nurse had sent to the child's home the request that the child's head be given a thorough cleaning. So the teacher made the child go to her mother for the care she needed.

Twenty minutes later the mother appeared at the door of the schoolroom and called out: "What did you send my girl home for? If she had lice she got them from the damned dirty [illegible]!"

The teacher replied: "Madam, I do not wear one," and this retort was shot back at her. "Well, you scratch your head with the pencil and she gets them off of you that way. Don't you ever send her home again."

The teacher replied: "I shall send her home any time she has lice in her head," and received this defiance. "No, you won't. You think you are so damned smart because you are a teacher. You think you can do anything."

The woman then went on with her abusive talk before the school children until another teacher, attracted by the noise, came down the hall and ordered her out of the building.

NEED OF ACTION.

Anyone, we should suppose, could testify to the impression left by this scene from a tingling sensation and a desire for action. Certainly there is [illegible] enlarge upon it for the purpose of emphasizing a lesson, but the question is, "How are the teachers to be protected and how are such scenes to be prevented?" Suppose that all major problems of discipline were to be handled through a thoroughly equipped official especially selected for the purpose, some one who should devote all his time to the question of deportment in all the rooms and meet all comers from outside? If the principal is occupied necessarily with other things there should be plenty of work for such an assistant.

Here is another incident that suggests the same need. A boy who was drawn out of the line one day for some misconduct struck the teacher ten or twelve times as hard as he could, and no action was taken in the interest of discipline. So it seems that though a teacher may not strike a child a child may strike a teacher. Few persons advocate a resumption of corporal punishment in the schools, but under an effective system of discipline that boy would not have dared to do what he did. And what are the teachers to do? They cannot punish themselves eternally by staying after hours to punish children by keeping them in. They cannot deal effectively with irrational and abusive parents. What is required is a general clearing house for all cases of discipline where tact shall not be wanting but where there may be an unyielding strength and firmness. Toleration of such conduct as has been described is grossly unfair to the teacher and thoroughly demoralizing to the pupils.

They used to consider marriage as an occupation, these critics of women; in fact women themselves did. Here's another change in the woman of the present day. Her views are changing—and less married women show the result. The Spokane Spokesman Review, commenting on this alarming condition, says:

"OLD MAIDS" INCREASE.

"The old maid" came to be considered a disagreeable epithet and is used as seldom as possible by the kindly and well bred. But the spinster is more with us than ever, thanks to the modern multiplication of opportunities for women to support themselves until the man may arrive who seems worth marrying. The bachelor girl, the business woman, the professional woman, the woman with a career, are all, if unmarried, the maid of old under another name. The new names for her, since they express her economic independence, are not resented. The rose smells [illegible] is the same rose.

Why so many more unmarried women proportionately in this year of grace than in our grandmother's day? Feminism or the secular emancipation of women to new freedom is part of the reply to the query.

YOU ARE WHAT YOU EAT

Says Lillian Russell.

"DIET IS WITHOUT QUESTION THE MOST ESSENTIAL AND AT THE SAME TIME THE MOST ABUSED HYGIENIC CANON AMONG WOMEN WHO REALLY DESIRE TO REIGN QUEENS IN THE WORLD OF BEAUTY AND TASTE. . . WHEN WE HAVE MASTERED THE SECRET OF EATING WE SHALL HAVE REACHED A HIGHER DEVELOPMENT, BOTH MENTALLY AND PHYSICALLY."

[Copyright 1914 By Lillian Russell.]

DO you know that everything you eat contributes in some way to your beauty of face, form, and character? If your body is not properly nourished your face will quickly show it. If you eat too much you are sure to be unlovely in both body and mind. That common complaint—biliousness—which invariably produces a yellow skin and blotches on the face, is generally the result of something you should not have eaten.

Complexion defects, in most cases, are due to improper diet. Young women who suffer from that disagreeable facial disfiguration—blackheads—may do much toward effecting a cure by giving up pastry, cakes, and sweet foods.

Diet is without question the most essential and at the same time the most abused hygienic canon among women who really desire to reign queens in the world of beauty and taste. When you are baking a cake you are careful to see that the components are weighed and measured so that the right quantity of each shall be used. Too much of one thing or too little of another means a cake failure. So your diet should be balanced. The body and blood should be provided with the proper quantity of food elements to make a harmonious whole.

How Average Girl Eats.

The trouble with eating begins in girlhood. How does the average young woman eat? A cup of coffee and perhaps some heavy indigestible griddle cakes for her breakfast—carefully avoiding an egg and rasher of bacon which contain real nourishment. For luncheon she may eat a pickle, a piece of cake or pie, and a doughnut. She will take tea in the afternoon with rich cakes, thus spoiling her appetite for a good wholesome dinner. She will eat all sorts of candies between meals. Perhaps once or twice a week she will eat a wholesome meal. If she includes meat in her menu it is tolerated only after roasting, frying or grilling has reduced it to a state of complete indigestibility.

What is the result of such habits of eating? In her early twenties—just at the age when nature intended she should be as flexible as a willow sapling—her eyes are dull, her teeth not white, her gums pale, her lips wan, her flesh unyielding. In fact all the sap of her womanhood is undeveloped or destroyed.

Around a dish containing the proteid element in greatest proportion the properly balanced diet is built. Meat, fish, or eggs are factors in this classification, as well as cheese and nuts. The starchy element is provided by bread, potatoes, rice, hominy, macaroni, noodles, cornmeal, or cereals. Vegetables and fruits are necessary to supply the nitrogenous element. Such vegetables as string beans, cabbage, cauliflower, carrots, peas, onions, tomatoes, turnips, asparagus, artichokes, and lettuce should be on the table throughout the year. There should be fruit not less frequently than once a day—twice if possible. Plenty of water between meals is recommended.

"What's One Man's Meat——"

A necessary element in a properly balanced diet is fat, in the form of butter, cream, or meat fat. Some people find meat fat objectionable, but can eat plenty of butter, which is a good, if more expensive, substitute. Olive oil is also a splendid help.

Of course, there can be no hard and fast rules made on diet. That trite saying, "What is one man's meat is another man's poison," has much truth in it. Never eat anything that you know disagrees with you, even though it is highly recommended.

The great trouble with us Americans is that we eat too much meat. The idea that meat must be eaten to produce strength is proved false by the elephant and the horse—two of the strongest animals known. They never eat meat. My mother was a vegetarian all her life. She lived to be 74 and never tasted meat. Nuts gave her muscle and sinew. She ate nuts at every meal. Eggs, vegetables, and occasionally fish made up her diet.

The Buddhist religion to my thinking is beautiful in that its followers never kill. The products which spring from the earth make up their diet. Rice is the sacred food. They accept the eggs given to them by the hens, the milk from the cow—but to kill and eat is sacrilegious. The lamb gives the wool, the cow the milk, the hens the eggs, and, according to Buddha, that is all God intended them to furnish.

Bad for the Skin.

Women who lead inactive lives should be extremely cautious in the matter of eating meat. The smaller quantity they eat the better, for meat heats the blood and causes heaviness. If you exercise a great deal, on the other hand, and use up the vitality in your system meat may be eaten more frequently. For nutritive power and its easy digestibility soups made from good, rich stocks are always excellent. Highly seasoned foods, indulged in, will exercise most deteriorating effects upon a delicate complexion. The woman who has no capacity for restraining a gluttonous appetite will acquire before she is 30 a heated, blotched face.

SPOILING APPETITES FOR A GOOD WHOLESOME MEAL WITH AFTERNOON TEA AND RICH CAKES.

"I DON'T CARE WHETHER I'M FAT OR NOT" THE RESULT OF TOO MUCH MEAT AND TOO LITTLE EXERCISE.

DRINK PLENTY OF WATER BETWEEN MEALS.

TO BE BEAUTIFUL NOWADAYS, YOU MUST BE MENTALLY ALERT AND MENTAL ENERGY MUST BE GENERATED THROUGH RIGHT FOODS.

All alcoholic drinks and opiates concur to produce a general unhealthy action of the skin, which soon shows dryness, pimples, blotches, and discolorations. A beautiful girl or woman who makes a habit of taking spirituous liquors deliberately becomes a conspirator against her own fortune.

In all cases of overeating the only remedy that can be applied is the simple one, "Don't do it."

Do you know that cheerfulness and patience—irresistible qualities in a woman—can be easily gained by adopting a digestible diet? The curse of a bad temper [illegible] student of dietetics, because when the stomach is not filled with indigestible and irritating foods [illegible] the power to see things in their true light. Fruit has been rightly termed the specific food for cheerfulness.

To improve and increase your brain power should be the aim of the up to date, modern woman. This is an age when beauty is not measured alone by physical charms. A woman to be beautiful must be mentally alert. Mental activity depends upon nerve force for its motor energy and nerve force must be generated through right foods. Your nervous energy is deficient when you say your "brain won't work" and you cannot concentrate your mind upon a subject for any length of time. If you feel cross and cranky and your head aches incessantly, don't try to stimulate your brain with wines, liquors, or opiates. Look to your [illegible] nervous disorder to flight.

The best foods for brain [illegible] Lean meat, game, fowl, fish, dairy food, fresh juicy fruit, fresh green vegetables, and tomatoes. Starchy food should be taken in small quantities, because it is not as easily digested as the foods mentioned above.

Effects of Foods.

1 Vegetables are the specific food for producing a good quality of blood which results in a spotless skin.

2 Fresh juicy fruits take the place of stimulants, such as alcohol, beer, tea, coffee, tobacco, and so on.

3 Animal foods (meat, game, fowl, fish, dairy food) nourish the brain.

When we have [illegible] of eating we will have reached a higher development, both mentally and [illegible] will no more take food indiscriminately than we would now take medicines.

Remember: The quality of the foods we eat has a much greater influence upon the quality of our minds and bodies than is generally considered.

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

L. M.: It seems difficult to make women realize that next to health their habitual mental attitude is the most powerful influence to make or destroy their beauty. Often the mental state is more important than health, for a thought vividly held in the mind has the power to affect the health itself, making the sick well or the well person ill, according to the quality of the thought. Women who realize the power of thought and feeling upon health will not worry or let vexation or depression upset their mental poise. After a little practice they will find they need not be slaves to surroundings, nor even be affected by them. They will have found the philosopher's stone, which is not a stone at all, but simply a mental attitude. They have found a power at whose touch the base metals, care, trouble, misfortune, are changed into the pure gold of spiritual development. Then woman enters into her kingdom, serene beauty and infinite power—the mother of all good, the mother of all life.

B.: Have you ever stopped to think that you might have some internal trouble that causes the puffy condition under your eyes and sallow complexion? Water is a good complexion clearer. I would also advise you to take olive oil each day, or lemon juice unsweetened. The external trouble cannot be remedied permanently while the internal cause exists. Bathe the eyes each morning, using an eye cup, and massage gently underneath them. This will help remedy the circles. I would not advise you to use cocoa butter in preference to a skin food. It is too heavy and is liable to cause a growth of hair. I shall send you a bleach for your neck and formula for the skin food if you will send me a stamped addressed envelope.

H. H.: I would not advise you to use cocoa butter in connection with facial massage. It is too heavy to use on the face, and is liable to cause a growth of hair. However, it is excellent for developing the bust, and I shall send you instructions for bust development if you will send me a stamped addressed envelope.

F. E.: There is little you can do to stop perspiration of the face. Alum and water are good, but this is too drying to the skin and it is not advisable to use it on the face. Alcohol may help you, but do not use too much of it.

* *

S. A.: When the skin is dry, care must be taken in regard to the kind of soap one uses and the frequency with which it is applied. When one has to apply grease to the face frequently, which is the case with those who have dry skin, almond oil is the best to use, as it is less likely than any other kind of grease to cause the hair to grow. It should be applied with pieces of absorbent cotton, and then rubbed in with the tips of the fingers, after which a fresh piece of absorbent cotton should be used to wipe off the oil that has not been absorbed. There are many remedies which are recommended, but one should be careful in experimenting with them, for no two skins are alike, and even when [illegible] the application which will bring healing to one will cause irritation to another.

"THEY do these things better in France!"

How many times has that been said! Sometimes the remark was justified, sometimes it was the result of prejudice. It has been said by Frenchmen outside their "belle France," trying vainly to find something exactly as it is done in their native country; it has been said by others who have visited France and been delighted with "la touche equise," which the Frenchman imparts to everything.

It has been said of French architecture the theater, literature, dancing—in short, of everything. But of one thing it is more than justified; their fashion magazines!

They treat fashion seriously; they have placed it among the fine arts. Perhaps that is why Paris leads the world of fashion? Fashion with them is not a frivolous thing, nor is its exploitation merely commercial. And their fashion journals, as a consequence, are delightful.

A MERE JOB.

In New York it is considered a secondary phase of art to draw for fashion magazines; artists who do so are dubbed "fashion illustrators," and are passed over with a shrug by their colleagues. The "fashion illustrators" themselves try to defend their departure from more noble ideals by the plea that they must live. Then they add hurriedly that, of course, they will never, never give up their hope of some day doing "big things." This is only temporary, they declare from the mire into which they have been cast; some day they will rise, hold up their heads and paint!

THE FASHION WRITERS.

It is the same with fashion writers. They are, as a general thing, not classed with literary workers.

But in Paris it is not so. Fashion articles and drawings are not treated as perfunctory as they are here. Our magazines, until the last few years, show the stiffest drawings imaginable, depicting patterns, rather than fashions, with directions for cutting and basting and hemming and trimming. The tone of the paper, its attitude, has been most apologetic. Now, to be sure, our magazines are more and more combining fashions and art in printing, drawing and written matter.

But the French papers—ah! they are exquisite. There is La Vie Heureuse, and there is Femina, always a delight. And one, a magazine that is a work of art, a joy to look at and to read! It is not sold anywhere in America and may be had only on subscription. And—its price in the States is not less than $25 a year!

Wonderfully gotten up, perfect as only the French can perfect a thing, it reflects the light in which they regard Dame Fashion. It is not a large clumsy sheet like so many of our fashion periodicals, but a graceful, convenient book size. And, also unlike our flimsy papered things, is printed on heavy paper live vellum. The leaves, too, are loose, so that one page or attractive plate may be taken out without mutilating the magazine.

ARTISTIC ADVERTISEMENTS.

The advertisements, instead of being sprawled over pages and pages, with ugly illustrations, flaring print and silly rhymes, are confined to only a few pages, delicate and dainty and artistic as the rest of the paper.

Thus a delightful bit called "Le Vin et le Gibier," shows in its decoration a girl in hunting togs with a dog returning from the chase, gun slung over her shoulder, holding up a hare, with a grapevine clinging to the top and side of the page. The succeeding pages are just as appropriately decorated to illustrate the text of the story, and the whole is done in lovely russet, grays, browns and greens, all beautifully blended.

A story about little baubles, rings, "les plisses," will be illustrated with beautifully drawn and colored little sketches, unusual fantastic, full of startling originality, and wholly delightful.

DECORATIVE DEVICES.

The monthly resume of the theaters, called "Le Gout au Theater," is headed by a delicately drawn, tiny sketch, set in an oval. The other pages, too, are full of charming sketches and miniature figures set in corners of the pages that greet you gayly in all their fascinating coloring. Every page is decorated. Another story called "Cadeaux" (presents) is illustrated with beautiful sketches showing wonderfully artistic combinations of articles.

Most wonderful of all, though, are the colored plates of gowns and wraps made by the greatest of Parisian creators. The magazine is, in fact, by seven of the leading maisons: Cheruit, Doeuillet, Doucet, Paquin, Poiret, Redfern and Worth, who collaborate with the magazine by sending each month a new creation to be described and illustrated by one of the artists.

No mean artists are those who contribute to the magazine, for no mean artist could turn out such expuisite work, for which the paper is noted. Boutet de Monvel, the charming painter of children, is one of them; others are A. E. Marty, George Barbier, Georges Lepape, Dress, Fabius, Gose, Andre Puget and Pierre Brissand. The plates are beautiful; nothing at all like our stiff, doll-like fashion ladies, who just stand and gaze into space with a sickly smile and look ridiculously silly. Their plates show life, action, grace. Their chic femmes do things, instead of looking petrified. The background of the picture, the detail, coloring—nothing is lost or eliminated in order to emphasize the purpose of the picture.

A REDFERN GOWN.

The results they achieve are charming. One plate, illustrating a "robe de tango de Redfern," shows the wearer of the exquisite gown dancing the tango in a gay restaurant. Just as much detail is given to her partner in his conventional evening dress as to the Redfern frock, and the background of the picture, the setting, together with the figures, might be taken for an exquisite illustration of a story. Other diners are shown interestedly watching the dancers. Against the walls of pale yellow are shown lattice work columns of green, quaint Chinese lanterns of red and yellow and green, floral festoons strung gracefully from column to column. In the left foreground is the sturdy, brilliantly blue coated back and bald head of a musician, sawing away on his contrabass. How much more attractive is such a fashion illustration than a stiff, trussed up dummy figure!

The pictures even have titles! The one in the center of this page is called "La Joyeuse de Theorbe." Yet it is intended merely as an illustration of an evening wrap by Paquin. What grace, though, there is in the lovely figure playing the lute, in the rich background with the classic frieze, in the glourious coloring! The panelling is in soft gray and black, the frieze in wonderful tints of Pompeiian red, gray and green upon a background of black, the music stand in silver with suspended tassel of brilliant crimson, and the mantle of rose and black velvets, brown fur and silver embroidery. It is as lovely a picture as can be imagined.

Gold and silver are used in abundance, charmingly combined with the colors and tending to emphasize certain details of the picture. One delightful story by Andre Puget of the "Princess Lucien Murat" is illustrated by a half page panel showing a poster lady in striking black, white and gold. Puget is the artist as well as the author.

The stores are just as fascinating as the picture. Not a word about the amount of material required for misses' sizes, not a mention of cutting on the bias. In a few words the plates are described on a separate page in the back of the magazine. Nor are the descriptions lost in a maze of stupid and disgusting advertisements, proclaiming the merits of bust developers and hair removers, dress shields and whiskies. The articles are delightful, dignified yet entertaining, chatty without spluttering, and, above all, poetic, lyric, typically French.

THE PARIS INFLUENCE.

Our young artists, however, those who have been so keen to adopt the new French feeling, are bound to influence our fashion articles and periodicals. Their work is greatly in demand, for the charm of it is wholly appealing. Perhaps we, too, shall some day come to treat fashion as a fine art!

Attic and What Can Be Done With It

Much advice has been given on the rejuvenation of attics and still more advice on the furnishing of model flats on a capital of packing boxes. Decorative suggestions of how to make a catch-all out of a dust pan gilded or a receptacle for pussy willows and autumn leaves out of one of brother's old "sneakers" have found their way to a welcome niche, but though such items, far more original than beautiful, flutter into print to flutter later to the ash barrel, the attic seems to hold its interest.

The attic has an atmosphere that not only rouses in the housekeeper a desire for a "redding up," but also an ambitious wish to make a habitable room out of its mustiness. The one thing that helps most in encouraging the desire for change is the view from its windows, which is always interesting whether of roofs, orchard or park. Then, too, there are often quaint angles and odd corners that no woman with an eye for the picturesque can resist. If the family junk with which the place is littered is too unwieldy to be tucked into nooks and corners in other parts of the house it can be banished to a cellar bin and safely ignored. With attractive windows and uncluttered space a rom shapes itself.

YOUTH AND ATTIC.

An attic room never goes begging. It is usually the college boy who grabs it for a den or it may be some daughter, feeling the need of its silence that the first stirring of individual expression may grow unhampered.

An attic den that is the pride and joy of the boy looks out onto the roofs of opposite houses. On the window sill—and the window hasn't the shred of a shade or curtain are some potted plants, for, of course, a boy likes plants; he likes all growing things. Over the window from a ring hangs a punching bag. On the wall are a couple of tennis rackets and beside the window is a carpenter's bench fitted completely and neatly with the necessary tools. An ideal place to potter and drill.

A girl's room is charming with dark staind floor, white woodwork and mission furniture. The windows are curtained in muslin with side drops of linen embroidered with raffia in a simple but effective design. A single book shelf fills the corner between the windows and underneath is the couch, its cover embroidered like the curtains and with plenty of pretty cushions. At its head stands a small round table holding a most comfortable looking reading lamp. In the corner opposite the couch is an old model table settee, and next it is a writing desk with a Remsen burner attached to the wall. Beyond the desk is the dressing table with a jolly ig paper basket beside it. It is worth while to picture for a moment what this dainty room must have resembled before a mige hand made it livable.

Two rooms splendidly interesting in their expression of individual taste are well worth describing. One is simplicity itself, with a fine dignity in the placing of the few pictures and in the long lines of the well filled bookcases that stretches between two windows. It seems just the room to drop into when tired, and, after fussing a bit among the books, to settle down in for a serenely quiet read with no sound but the flutter of a turning page.

AN INVITING SPOT.

The other room is a stimulating contrast in its suggestion of a varied taste. Over the fireplace are books and interestingly effective photographs of people. A window couch shows plenty of light for a smoke or a talk. The designs of the wall paper and the rug before the fireplace are full of character.

These are but a few pictures to show into what the lovingly despised attic can be made. In a new house the problem of planning a room is simple, but where the house is an old one, with a genuine family garret, it takes on the attributes of a campaign.

GOSSIP FROM SAN FRANCISCO WEEKLIES

Melodrama With a California Setting

California from its earliest day has been a land of romance, and it has always had a literature of its own, from the period of Bret Harte down to the present time. Anything may happen in San Francisco, and in fact the social, political and commercial history of the town is stuffed with tremendous episodes of romance that transcend the wildest dreams of melodrama. So much may be said in prelude to introduce a diverting tale by Robert Herrick which opens with a bang, being the murder of a California captain of industry and financier slain by "the Southern Pacific crowd," inspired by a covetous desire to get hold of the old man's multifarious possessions. Now this conception of the Southern Pacific as the incorporated bogieman of melodrama is distinctively entertaining and suggestive. Alas, poor corporation, having [illegible] it is now kicked back into melodrama, as a monster capable of anything in the gamut of crime, from murder to white slavery.

Such is the startling introduction to "His Great Adventure," which hits all the high places on the continent of North America. Here, for instance, we find a well known San Francisco character introduced under the fictitious name of Eddie Hollinger, but otherwise identified in the book by his description as "the president of the San Francisco fight trust." Eddie is not the chief protagonist of the adventure, but we meet him as a sort of hero de luxe enjoying all the comforts of a drawing room on the Overland Limited and smoking cigarettes specially manufactured and bearing his monogram worked in gold. By these marks you may always recognize the hero of modern melodrama. But Eddie appears to be an unexpected sort of hero, for we learn that he beguiled the tedium of an overland journey by laboriously working his way through Milton's "Paradise Lost" with the help of a dictionary.

Although Eddie is only the incidental hero of the book, introduced to give local color of the California sort, he is the most interesting character in the story, being a gay conspirator, God bless him, and an ingenious moralist given to making upsetting remarks about the graft prosecutions in San Francisco. The nominal hero of the tale is rather a stick, but serves the purpose of a hunted animal pursued by an infuriated stenographer. Oh, no, there is nothing of the sort that you suspect. There is not a hint in the book of white slavery or sex hygiene. This is a strictly moral circus, and although the stenographer may have had a scarlet past, her sins are not played up in this diverting tale for the tired business man.—Candid Friend in News Letter.

Enter "The Missionites" Into the Field

"Mission Jim" will have perused by this time the articles of incorporation of "The Missionites." What emotions that perusal evoked may be imagined by those who know our mayor, for he is sensitive to attack, he deprecates opposition and the alienation of a friend he regards as a great political calamity. "The Missionites," as their name implies, hail from that section of our glorious metropolis to which we are indebted for "Mission Jim." They are, therefore, in a special sense, his constituents; they are, moreover, in many instances, his erstwhile friends, with the emphasis, if you please, on "erstwhile." I have read the articles of incorporation of "The Missionites." I find no mention therein of Mayor Rolph, but I have a suspicion that "The Missionites" are unfriendly, not only to the mayor, but to all members of the municipal administration, who regard him as their bellwether. Among the purposes for which "The Missionites" have incorporated I find mentioned the pursuit of politics "as distinguished from the betterment of hypocritical politicians." Also, "promote particularly the welfare of the Mission District, the oldest section of San Francisco, in all proper ways, and vigorously to combat any existing view that said district has become the habitat of 'claimers' and 'trimmers.'" If these statements do not cloak a serious purpose to make war upon our mayor I am a very awkward guesser. Whisper it not in Valencia street, but there are a lot of people in the Mission once friendly to the mayor who do not hesitate to accuse him and his cabinet officers of political hypocrisy and trimming. I do not know whether "The Missionites" are going to make war on Dr. Aked too, but one might gather from another paragraph of their articles that the Aked brand of uplift is not to their liking. It is their purpose, they say, "to offset by all proper means the efforts of insincere reformers to direct the morals of San Francisco, firmly believing that reform with them is a pretexted consideration, used only for mercenary purposes and to help hide a personal existence less righteous than the people and conditions they speak of." I submit that that is rather neatly put.—Town Talk.

After Long Engagement

No one was surprised at the news of Charlie Kenyon's engagement, for his devotion to pretty Mrs. Elsa Cook Greenfield for the last couple of years has not slipped by unnoticed. Young Kenyon burst before the public eye when his play "Kindling" was put on with much success in New York several years ago, with Margaret Illington in the leading role. Since then he has written several other one-act plays, which have been put on at various New York vaudeville houses. Kenyon is the oldest son of Dr. and Mrs. C. G. Kenyon of this city. He is a graduate of the University of California, a member of the Bohemian Club and the Lambs' in New York, and has always been one of the most popular beaux in society as well as in dancing sets and literary circles. Mrs. Greenfield is the daughter of "Bob" Cook, the famous Yale athlete, who makes his home in Paris, and she is a granddaughter of the late Calvin Wells, one of the first steel millionaires of this country. Since her divorce Mrs. Greenfield and her small son "Teddy" have been making their home here. The wedding is to be an affair of the very near future.—The Wasp.

Gladstone and Dr. Charles Aked

As a Christian minister Dr. Charles Aked has a certain wayward and amused affection for an outworn faith that he has never understood. As a skeptic and cosmologist he has a mass of negative testimony and rationalist argument on which he relies to refute the Scriptures. A student of Huxley and Renan, he appears in the Examiner as one of their small-bore disciples, and gives us a rehash of the Biblical criticism that was rampant among the superficial rationalists of England about the time that Froude wrote "A Plea for Free Discussion." In politics, Dr. Aked is a Progressive, but in religion he is early-Victorian. In his skepticism there is nothing new except the little that is untrue. By untrue we do not mean matter of controversy on which we dissent from Dr. Aked, but we mean misstatement of fact. For instance Dr. Aked tells us that No student of science is able to [illegible] the story of the flood, adding, "Mr. Gladstone once suggested that 'the voice of natural science has not been, and probably is not at present, uniform on this subject,' and sought to leave upon the minds of the readers of his entertaining little book the impression that there may be some degree of authority for the flood story." Thus would Dr. Aked leave the impression upon the minds of his readers that Mr. Gladstone practiced a subtle bit of deception. Mr. Gladstone was a very sincere Christian. Intellectually though less pretentious, he was perhaps not inferior to the gentleman who is now dissecting the Bible for us. Mr. Gladstone read Huxley and Renan, and he was not carried away by their arguments. Indeed he undertook to refute them, and he wrote what Dr. Aked calls "his entertaining little book." The title of the book is "The Impregnable Rock of Holy Scripture." Rather a defiant title, isn't it? Mr. Gladstone wrote this book as he said himself "to arrest a prevailing mischief," and from fear "lest any portion of the public should lose or relax unawares their hold upon the book which Christendom regards as an inestimable treasury, and thereby bring upon themselves as well as others, an inexpressible calamity." Thus we learn what Gladstone thinks of Aked. Now, Gladstone did not, as Dr. Aked tells us, merely suggest that natural science was not "uniform" on the subject of the flood. Mr. Gladstone practiced no deception. Dr. Aked has. This is what Gladstone said: "The idea of a flood has not been summarily dismissed by the luminaries of the scientific world, and the grounds of Huxley's dismissal of the story are not of recent discovery, but were fully open to the geologists of the last century." Instead of merely suggesting, Gladstone quoted three distinguished scientists of his day who maintained the doctrine of a deluge. According to Gladstone there has been a double confirmation of the creation story of Genesis: the first by natural and the second by historic science, and he quoted particularly Mr. Howorth, who had gathered an immense mass of paleontological evidence that pointed to a widespread calamity involving a flood, and who said, "I do not see how the historian, the archaeologist or the paleontologist can avoid making this conclusion in future a prime factor in their discussions." Mr. Gladstone went to the trouble of consulting one of the leading engineers of England with reference to a proposition in hydraulics set forth by Huxley by way of demonstrating that the waters would have rushed down from the Mesopotamian plain in a "furious torrent." The engineer supplied certain figures that made it clear that Huxley didn't know what he was talking about. So much for Gladstone. Now the truth about Genesis which Dr. Aked has yet to learn, is that [illegible] call scientific explanations it avoids conflict with the scientific conclusions of modern times.—Town Talk.

A Memorial Service for Wm. G. Badger

In loving memory of William Gilman Badger a service will be held this Sunday evening at 7:15 o'clock in St. James' church, Clement street and Sixth avenue, the Rev. S. J. Lee, rector of the church, officiating. This is a service held annually by friends and former members of St. Alban's church and Sunday school, of which Mr. Badger was the organizer and beloved superintendent, and in whose memory, long ago, they placed a memorial window in St. James' church. This window will shortly be moved to the new edifice soon to be occupied by St. James' congregation. In the seventies Mr. Badger was instrumental in building the first St. James' church in San Francisco, on the site now occupied by the Olympic Club. This church afterward became the property of the congregation of St. John's Presbyterian church, and historically endeared to them by memories of their pastor, the Rev. Dr. Scott, was moved first to the corner of California and Octavia streets and finally to its present location on First avenue. Mr. Badger, in his life work, was not only prominently connected with the civic advancement of San Francisco from its pioneer days, but was an earnest worker in all betterment movements. He was one of the organizers and the first president of the Young Men's Christian Association and one of the founders of the Mercantile Library. During the Civil War, he was a co-worker with Thomas Starr-King in the sanitary commission, and his life-long patriotism was best evidenced by his formation of the Bunker Hill Association, of which he was president for more than forty years. His was a quiet, unostentatious life, but a fruitful one. The work nearest his heart was the uplifting of youth. His Sunday school sometimes numbered more than a thousand members, and his interest in its pupils was not a merely general one, just for Sunday, but a personal one. For the boy who came into his office during the week he always had a cheerry greeting, a pleasant smile. If he wanted work, it was obtained for him and often the nice new suit with which to make a start in the business world. A recommendation [illegible] where, for the boys under his kindly influence proved so trustworthy and efficient that merchants were glad to employ them, and many of them today are among our most successful and influential business men, and hold his memory dear.—Town Talk.

He's the Darling of the Goddesses

Here is a pen picture of Professor Herbert L. Cory of the English Department in the University of California, taken from the Oakland TRIBUNE:

"Professor Cory has been largely, until today, the idol of the women students of the university. He has been picked up on all committees which have had to do with choosing of play casts, the review of plays and dramas. His way of carrying his hat in his hand with high disdain of the headgear instead of wearing it on his head, has been half-worshiped by the co-eds as that sort of masculine individuality which appeals to all feminine hearts."

The professor has written and printed an article about the women students, as to which we learn:

"Women students of the university in particular, and men students and the faculty in a less intimate way, are discussing today nothing else than Pro[illegible]cle in Brass Tacks anent co-education, Woman's Day, and feminine foibles. There are various degrees of wrath exhibited by the women with regard to his statements from a mere uncertainty as to their truth to an absolute denial that they have any truth whatsoever."

Similar statements have appeared in other papers, from which one might infer that Professor Cory is no longer the darling of the ladies. I am quite aware that "woman's sphere" is always a thorny subject, but having read the professor's article, I am quite unable to understand how any intelligent woman could take offense thereat. No doubt Mr. Cory realized that he was treading on treacherous ground, for he kindly explains that he felt constrained to put a severe restraint on his sense of humor as he wrote. He dared not be as funny as he could. It is appalling to contemplate what might have happened had he let himself go!—Candid Friend in News Letter.

Adventures of Bogus Nobleman

Bakersfield society is sorely distressed because it has been "worked" by an impostor posing as Lord Decies. It appears that the bogus nobleman was lavishly and effusively entertained by "the best people" in the town, and the hotelkeeper offered him the freedom of the hotel during his stay. A quantity of American beauty roses was ordered to grace his special table when he supped. Many ladies who had dined repaired to their rooms, decked themselves in their finest and dined a second time in order to catch a glimpse of the notable.

Now why should the spirit of mortal be peeved over an amusing derangement of social status like this? An imitation nobleman, for social purposes, is quite equal to the real thing. In fact, a lord is just as good as he looks, and no better. In the final analysis he is not for use, but for show. Real or spurious, nobody would think of putting him to any practical purpose other than that of an ornament to society. We are all familiar, although not on speaking terms, with the stage lord of melodrama, and we find him on the whole superior to the son of a hundred earls who is usually embarrassed and oppressed by a superfluity of fathers. Why, then, should Bakersfield feel peeved because it has entertained a stage lord unawares? Was anything the matter with his "table manners?" Did he commit any faux pas that might offend the refined sensibilities of Bakersfield? In fine, was he not altogether au fait, as we say in society? No, Bakersfield should not feel badly because a part of it mistook the bogus for the genuine. How are we to know the difference? In real life the mock turtle does not wear a calf's head or assume the guise of an obvious monster out of wonderland. If Bakersfield got any satisfaction out of its mock lord, why, that is all velvet. Indeed, it might pay a traveling impresario or bear leader to employ a staff of mock lords for exhibition in towns that smell of oil.

Let us confess that San Francisco has more than once been caught in the same trap, and possibly it might be admitted further that on the whole we got more for our money from the bogus than the genuine. It is a tradition of the Pacific Union Club, or rather of the Union Club before it consolidated with the Pacific, that a real Scottish duke of vast possessions and exalted lineage, being a guest of the club, took occasion one warm afternoon to divest himself of his shoes and go to sleep in the reading room. The same distinguished nobleman sat in a box in the old California theater, wearing a flannel shirt, while he acted as escort for a lady of the highest social standing in this city. Now I am certain that Bakersfield's mock lord would not have behaved like that—Candid Friend in News Letter.

Happy Go Lucky Mendocino Sanitation

The happy-go-lucky sanitation of the town of Laytonville in Mendocino county, where half the population is suffering from smallpox is thus described in a report furnished by the county health officer, Dr. Liftchild:

"Hotel proprietor suffering from smallpox, greets all visitors at the train and welcomes the tourist. Postmaster and his two children, with advanced attacks of smallpox, handle the mail of the town. Two barbers, suffering from disease, play chess when not engaged in tonsorial work. Stage drivers sick with disease continue their work except for an occasional layoff. Public dances every Saturday night are held in which smallpox patients dance indiscriminately with other partners. Dr. Liftchild reported that he had established a reasonably rigid quarantine since his arrival, and broken up the Saturday night dances."

What did the doctor expect? Did he want the whole town to go to bed? It is not everywhere that we can find a village unanimously sick of smallpox and glad of it. I once saw a whole town unanimously drunk at 6 o'clock in the morning. It was in Sisson years ago, just after the railroad had been opened and the town [illegible] July fell on Monday, and the town started in to celebrate on Saturday night, keeping it up with accelerated pace until the Fourth dawned in glory and painted red. That was years ago, and now Sisson is the most respectable of villages.—Candid Friend in News Letter.

Secret Leaked Out Easily

No girl as popular as Enid Gregg could hope to keep the day of her marriage a close secret—there were too many interested persons. The news that the greatest belle in San Francisco was to become the bride of Stuart Haldorn at the First Presbyterian Church last Monday morning was bound to leak out, and the newspaper photographers were in readiness to snap the happy pair after the ceremony. The presence of young Dalton Mann in the picture was surely significant. The wedding party included only Wellington Gregg, father of the bride; Miss Ethel Gregg, Mrs. James Murray, mother of the groom, and Dalton Mann who, rumor says, is the suitor of Miss Ethel Gregg. One of Mrs. Haldorn's reasons for a quiet wedding was her mother's illness. None of the Greggs are fond of display, but the wedding was especially casual in order to spare Mrs. Gregg any[illegible] apartment at the Fairmont for several months with heart trouble and it was a great disappointment that she could not be present at her daughter's marriage. According to testimony, Mrs. Haldorn is as well equipped for matrimony as for the stage, the profession which some of Miss Gregg's friends once thought she would adopt, being a good cook and a clever seamstress.

What girl is there in society that one may compare with Enid Gregg? I look around from one set to another and find nobody. Girls there are who are like her in this, that or the other endowment, but none with such an all-round fascination. Her beauty alone would make her distinctive anywhere. Her chic face, her wonderful flashing eyes, her poise, her splendid carriage, draw all eyes to her at ball, tea dance, reception, any place. Her taste for dress is individual, charmingly daring. But there is a great deal more than that to Enid Gregg Haldorn. She has an amazing nimble wit in conversation that makes intellectual men and women seek her company. She dances like a professional, sings beautifully and is perfect mistress of the piano, whether for classic etude or ragtime. And with it all she is quite natural and unspoiled. Pretense merely amuses her. No social set contains her. The interesting people of all sets are her friends. Stuart Haldorn has married a girl in ten thousand.

To few girls was the description "dashing belle" ever more applicable. Without any ostentatious effort she seemed to do everything in a more spirited manner than most girls. When no more than 20 she had the poise of a woman of the world, and yet retained the flavor of girlishness. Perhaps it was because her parents (themselves young for parents) allowed her individuality its natural development and expression. There is a good deal of the Gallic energy and taste in her. We are told often about young ladies in social circles who could if they wished make "hits" upon the stage. Enid is one who could, for her dancing has long since passed the amateur stage, and with her stunning form, studious bent and dramatic temperament I for one have a sort of regret that she didn't venture into stageland before assuming the prosaic responsibilities of matrimony in the provinces. One hears the loveliest things about her husband, Stuart Haldorn. He is a young man of sterling character, has good looks and plenty of money. So the outlook for the couple is delightful.—Town Talk.

Some Interurban Sarcasm That's Sharp

When the incautious newspaper man accuses a town of being flooded, he ought to know that this is fighting talk. [illegible] no floods in California for publication, and therefore when the Los Angeles Times recently headed up a dispatch from Sacramento with the line "Streets of Capital Resemble Canals," it invited reprisals which were not long delayed. The way for these was opened by the terrific downpour that a little later flooded the whole country south of Tehachapi, and S. Glen Andrus of the Sacramento Chamber of Commerce took occasion to rub it in with playful sarcasm, assuming that the Times' staff was merely practicing with prophetic sense on Sacramento the better to be able to describe what happened later in Los Angeles. It was like this, writes Mr. Andrus:

"Undoubtedly, with the wonderful ability of some newspapers to foretell coming events, you had inside information regarding the terrible, drenching and inundating floods which were to come to your locality and sweep with almost resistless force down the wonderfully improved streets of the great city of Los Angeles. Knowing this in advance, and being jealous of the efficiency of your newspaper staff, you were undoubtedly training your headline writers for the coming events in Los Angeles. My conclusion, therefore, is that the words regarding the 'streets resembling canals' were written to fit an article which you knew would have to be prepared to describe the scenes in Los Angeles when the flood came."

Mr. Andrus humbly apologizes for his unjust suspicion that the Times wanted to knock Sacramento.

The Los Angeles paper was merely afflicted with a timely sense of prophecy. Now let it be understood in future as a law of interurban comity that there are no floods in California and no earthquakes. Forget it.—Candid Friend in News Letter.

Here Are Some New Things in Dances

One learns from a contemporary historian that the tango, hesitation waltz, the maxixe—all the modern dances—have been eclipsed, and the old Indian war dances, not so much unlike the tango of modern times at that, say the fair dancers, are holding the boards at the Oakland playgrounds. The ancient war dances of the Indians are being rehearsed daily by the Campfire Girls. The playgrounds are ringing with the sound of [illegible] dancers dip and glide in the tomahawk dance or the rattlesnake dance. The rattlesnake dance is serpentine in movement; that is to say, wriggly, and the anthropologists suspect that these are North and South American varieties of Indian folk dancing.—News Letter.

Old and the New at Mills College

The resignation of President Luella Clay Carson of Mills College, and the causes assigned therefor, constitute an interesting and instructive sign of the times. Whether these times are better or worse than those of an older day, we may not here determine. They represent facts which must be accepted for better or for worse, as a phase of social evolution. We learn from the statement attributed to one of the faculty that Miss Carson "was not wholly in sympathy with the boisterous fun that goes with college athletics, and as a result there have been no college yells on the campus for two or three years. Her ideals of womanhood and maidenly deportment are of the very highest, and she does not approve of the spirit of unrestraint in college amusements. In most matters of this kind she has been guided by the opinions of the majority of the faculty, but her objections were known and felt [illegible] scholarliness and her splendid womanliness have endeared her to all, but it is an unfortunate and most regrettable fact that she had not successfully brought the school through the period of transition from a seminary to a college, and the girls have preferred to attend other colleges where there is a freer life and instead of growing, as we had all hoped it would do, the institution has been losing ground."

In other words, Miss Carson's ideals of womanhood and "ladylike" behavior were old fashioned of the sort that we have come to describe as mid-Victorian. We saw the same conflict of ideas brought out in a dramatic way in the play "Milestones" that recently held the stage in this city, and with the same result that the old was made to give way to the new. Thirty years ago, young women who went in for athletics and the boisterous adjuncts thereto, would have been sternly suppressed with the comment that their conduct was most unladylike. Now, as ever, the old must give way to the new, or suffer the consequences of neglect.—News Letter.

Here Is One on Harry Woodruff

Here is a very pretty story about Henry Woodruff, who is appearing now at the Orpheum. A number of years ago when playing The Imp in "When We Were Twenty-one," with Goodwin and Maxine Elliott, he made the hit of his career and everywhere he went was made much of in clubs and society. Henry is very popular in society in all the large cities and always has letters from folks that count "back East" that gain him the entree in other places. But during his engagement in San Francisco with the Goodwins, where do you suppose he found time to pay a daily visit? To the Crocker Old People's Home. He had a letter from Boston to that wonderful aged lady Mrs. Elizabeth Allen, whose life up to 60 had been in an environment of wealth and culture, chiefly in Boston, but who, at the age of nearly 90, found herself forced to accept the bounty of San Francisco friends who paid for the care of her declining years in the Crocker Home. She was a marvelous person—not only in her physical vitality, but in her mental preservation. Harry Woodruff presented his letter of introduction, called upon her, sent her flowers and was as attentive as if she had been a social leader. One afternoon some society ladies of San Francisco who had a habit of dropping into the home to see the old folks found Mrs. Allen "in the dumps."

"Goodness, dear, what can it be that makes you so blue?" they asked.

"Blue, I am dyed in indigo. I've lost my beautiful little beau, I fear. Yesterday he knocked at my door. I didn't hear him, as you know I am so deaf. But I was reading aloud an essay upon old age which I had just written, so he walked in. He saw me without my wig! Of course, I couldn't clap it on before him. Today he didn't call—he just sent those roses. Oh! how I hate myself for being old—so old—and needing a wig! Run along, dears, I am too depressed to talk to you today."

But the next day Harry called in his own bright young person and chatted away as if he had been paying court to a queen dowager. And the dear old lady during the rest of his San Francisco engagement took pains early in the day to adjust her wig and "titivate" as if she had been in the prime of her youthful loveliness.—Town Talk.

Now Comes Call of "Back to the Bike"

"Back to the bike" is the prescription written by Dr. Effie L. Lobdell of Chicago, who laments the disappearance of the athletic girl, and says: Mentally, physically and emotionally the languishing, willowy type of miss of the present decade is not up to the standard of her sister of a decade or two ago. Except in a few isolated instances, the athletic girl is no more. The reason for her decline is that the modern girl, even of the middle class, has everything done for her. Automobiles relieve her of the necessity of walking any considerable distance. All the exercise she gets is of the impassive variety applied to her by a masseuse."—News Letter.

A Great Sporting Writer

Seldom is the newspaper fraternity as much impressed by the death of a comrade as it has been by the loss of W. W. Naughton. The profession is strenuous and excitement succeeds excitement so rapidly that there is little time to ponder, even when a companion loses his place in the ranks forever. The Herculean dean of the sporting writers had been so many years identified prominently with leading newspapers, and known as the president of the Press Club, that he occupied an unusual position in his profession and in the esteem of his fellow writers. His death was regarded by them as in the nature of a personal loss and they congregated to pay the last respects to him as at the funeral of a [illegible]

As to the professional merits of W. W. Naughton, all that need be said is that it was no error of judgment to place him at the head of the sporting editors of America. He was head and shoulders above most of his rivals and his place will not be filled.—The Wasp.

A Few Great Women in the World

Whatever distinguished women are finally chosen to be our guests in 1915, without doubt all those suggested by Mrs. Garrett McEnerney will receive serious consideration, and in all probability there will be no question as to two of them. In the field of current literature there are no women who rank higher than Selma Lagerlof, the story-writer, and Mrs. Meynell, the poet and essayist. The Swedish woman is not so well known as Ella Wheeler Wilcox, but she has received a Nobel prize, and that is some proof of merit and distinction. Mrs. Meynell being an English woman, is pretty widely known in this country, but it is in the highest literary circles of England, among people of taste and discernment that she is most esteemed. Mrs. McEnerney, by the way, is one of the few society women of this city that know who's who in the world of art and litera[illegible] with not only a taste but a feeling for literature, she is on terms of familiarity with the best poets, novelists and playwrights of France, Germany and England. But Mrs. McEnerney does not spend all her time in bookland. She is one of the most active of our philanthropic women, and enters as enthusiastically into the social lives of her friends as a schoolgirl. And she is not only blessed with brains, but dowered with beauty, being not a little like Maxine Elliott in appearance and bearing, only that she is of the blonde type.—Town Talk.

Addie Breckenridge Stages Last Act

The little Salinas courthouse saw the staging of the last act of Addie Murphy Breckenridge's matrimonial drama on Monday. Very quietly indeed was this last act played. In company with her attorney, Joe Redding, Mrs. Breckenridge motored to Salinas from Del Monte, and in the court of Judge Bradley Sargent received an interlocutory decree of divorce. Frank Michael was there to represent her husband, John Breckenridge, but there was no contest and the decree was granted at the end of a short hearing. Mrs. Breckenridge, attired in somber black and white, took the stand and gave her testimony in a whisper. She told how her husband's mental affliction had shown itself the day after the wedding when he was stricken with a severe chill. She told of the efforts at cure, of the travels about the world undertaken in the hope that change of scene would work a restoration to health, of the complete breakdown, of the utter hopelessness of cure and of her husband's present confinement in a French sanitarium. There were also depositions in French, which Joe Redding quietly translated, and the hearing was over. Then with her lawyer Mrs. Breckenridge motored back to Del Monte, where she had established a legal residence. She was free.

The marriage of Addie Murphy, the daughter of Banker S. G. Murphy, to Jack Breckenridge, the son of Mrs. Fred Sharon, was a love match. At first they were very happy, but the tragedy began when they started from this city on a tour of the world and Jack developed disquieting symptoms. All their friends here were shocked when the news came from Paris that during an attack of vertigo Jack had fallen from the second story of the Hotel d'Abbe. He was not seriously injured in body, but his mental condition necessitated his removal to a sanitarium. He has never been well since. It was indeed a sad and swift ending of a romance. Who could have dreamed of such a tragedy when Addie Murphy made her debut? She had a rich father, a doting mother, plenty of money to spend and a host of friends to entertain her. Then she had a European tour and was presented at the English court. She had many admirers, and was engaged once or twice. Robinson Riley, who afterwards married Genevieve Goad Martin, was one of her train. She looked for happiness when she eloped with young Breckenridge, but it was not to be. — Town Talk.

Stage Hands on Harry Lauder

"Harry Lauder is a very generous man," said one of the Cort stage hands, with a wink. "He buys three apples a day, eats one, gives the other to himself and saves the third for tomorrow."

"Did you know that Harry was responsible for the building of the New York subway?" asked another stage hand.

"I did not," said the first.

"Sure thing," said the second. "He dropped a half dollar down the old cable slot and dug till he got it. There wasn't much more digging to do after that, so they went ahead and built the subway."

The stage hand didn't think much of Harry's street parade.

"Why," he said, "the self-respecting minstrel troupes gave that up years ago. But what's good enough for the steam calliope and the elephants is good enough for Harry."

The two speakers agreed that Harry was a keen business man.

"Those Kilties with the bagpipes and drums didn't cost Harry much," said one of them. "After the performance they played at one of the cafes. I guess Harry told them that if they came along with him they'd have to pay their way."—Town Talk.

'Twas a Joke on Louis Schwabacher

Louis Schwabacher gave a dinner at the Concordia Club a few days ago to Managing Editor Charlie Stanton of the Examiner, Managing Editor Edmund Coblentz of the Call and James Woods of the St. Francis. The big Jewish club has one of the best chefs in town, so it was a splendid dinner. The quartet was just about to discuss the fowl when a messenger boy entered the dining-room and brought four picnic cartons to Schwabacher. Schwabacher, considerably mysti[illegible] contained ham sandwiches! As Stanton had been seen that afternoon in earnest conversation with Victor Hirtzler, the chef of the St. Francis, it is more than suspected that he perpetrated the joke at the expense of Schwabacher's orthodoxy.—Town Talk.

Her Husband and Mrs. McCarthy

Mrs. Mayzellia McCarthy is a methodical woman, regardless of consequences. This statement comes merely from her husband, and perhaps does not count for much. Dr. Charles F. McCarthy could not stand for his wife's meddling with politics. When Mayzellia became a political boss of Hillsborough, she evinced great powers of organization, but disorganized the home, which, orators tell us, is the mainstay of the country. Besides, everybody knows what slanders and vituperation are in the sad lot of a political boss. When this sort of malice is mixed with that which arises from harangues on cookery, dress-making, and some of the more mysterious topics that are said to occupy the attention of women's clubs, the result is outrageous. Yes, Mrs. McCarthy is a club woman, and proud of it.

Not only politics claimed the bloom [illegible] few thoughts on the tango. These were embodied in the form of ten commandments, not of divine authority, but commandments they were, just the same. Mayzellia told people what to do and what to don't in the questionable dance. In these commandments, her friends were informed how to tango cleverly in the world and the flesh and yet escape the devil. For some unknown reason, Dr. McCarthy did not like the whole idea. He felt that the time had come to sing Tosti's good-bye. So he retired within the San Mateo boundary of their home, leaving Mrs. McCarthy in the Hillsborough part. This arrangement having some disadvantages, the doctor took a look at the sky, and departed for India. Mrs. McCarthy filed suit for divorce, and tried to drown her sorrow in politics.

But the sorrow would not drown or down. The political boss and president of the Women's Club of San Mateo had been slandered, and the whole feminist movement was in danger. Thereunto the club came out with a document containing three Whereases and one Resolved, the purport of which, stripped of technical phraseology, as and for the doctor's version of the separation, declared that it was no such thing. The husband had started something that "preceded the wife's club life and her interest in civic matters in which she sought comfort, and . . . Whereas, the belittlement of the efforts of women in their clubs and in politics is detrimental to the cause of human progress and unmanly in men and unwomanly in women, therefore be it Resolved by the Women's Club of San Mateo that we repudiate . . ." etc. The repudiation is of the doctor's claim that politics and home life are incompatible. His flight to another part of the house and thence to India, after saying that he could stand it no longer, had no bearing on the case or his state of mind. More logical is Mrs. McCarthy's statement that his attitude was detrimental to human progress, and therefore that she and her politics were thoroughly compatible with home life, even if he found the situation unendurable.—The Wasp.

Even Weddings Have Humor

An amusing incident of the Haldron-Gregg bridal party marked the advent of the bridal party out of the First Presbyterian Church, where the ceremony took place. Two young women came along, and one immediately recognized the bride as the beautiful Enid of much newspaper comment and pictorial fame. "That's Enid Gregg, and she's just been married," she wagered in stentorian whisper, nudging her friend who, with equal interest, inquired the identity of the groom. With the assurance that comes of careful reading of the society columns and deep study of newspaper portraits, the other young woman pointed to Wellington Gregg as the groom of the party. "Well," commented the appraising one, "she's got nothing on him when it comes to age—he's every bit as young as she is!" Which is the final proof of the precocious youth which Wellington Gregg manages to carry around with him, for it is not often that the father of the bride is mistaken for the groom and tagged "every bit as young as she is." Peter Pan has nothing on Wellington Gregg, for the banker is perfectly willing to look grown-up and can't.—News Letter.

Youth With Serpent's Tongue

The stranger within our gates is apt to have a hard time of it in society unless he comes provided with plenty of money. A case in point is just now agitating the tea tables of Lent and it may yet result in fisticuffs or cowhiding. There is a young nobleman temporarily sojourning here and his only offenses seem to be that he has little money and dances exceptionally well. But one of our gilded youth with a serpent's tongue has been whispering to young women of social position the most outrageous slanders about the titled stranger. The slanders came back to him and his friends. What was he to do? His first impulse was to punch the slanderer's head or use a whip on him. But his friends said, "That will get you in the courts, perhaps, and certainly in the prints. Then the names of the ladies to whom the slander was whispered will be dragged in the mire. Let the slander die. It is such a monstrous lie it cannot live." Some of the society women are sending the slanderer to coventry, but that hardly balms the young noble's feelings.—Town Talk.

"Brass Tacks" Takes Exception to Criticism

A University of California weekly flaunting the homely name of "Brass Tacks," is indignant because the senior women students voted against the tango and other new steps which the editor describes as "progressive dancing." One hopes there is no politics mixed up with the mess. Going into specifications, one learns that "progressive dancing" in[illegible] the kitchen sink, the swallow dip and the subway. The prohibition is resented because "the assumption," says the scribe, "is that college man and woman are not sufficiently well balanced to dance decently and modestly." That should settle it.—News Letter.

HEIRS of MIGHTY EMPIRE

Edward Albert Christian George Andrew Patrick David

THE PRINCE of WALES

Earl of Chester
Duke of Cornwall
Earl of Carrick
Baron of Renfrew
Lord of the Isles
Great Steward of Scotland
Duke of Saxony
Prince of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha

Alias Sardines

This is the third of a series of sketches revealing the intimate side of the lives of the future rulers of the world's great countries. The fourth concerning Prince Pu Yi will appear next Sunday.

The PRINCE IS A MEMBER of a DEMOCRATIC CYCLISTS TOURING CLUB

The PRINCE IS AN EXCELLENT SHOT

By KERCHIVAL BUCKINGHAM.

EDWARD ALBERT CHRISTIAN GEORGE ANDREW PATRICK DAVID, alias Sardines, is a rather small young man who is of immense importance to the British empire. I will try to give you, not a biography, but a general sketch of the Prince of Wales, based on my own impressions of him and reinforced by the impressions of those who live near him.

Our general verdict is that he is not a bad chap. He means well, but he is overeducated. He has been stuffed, like a Strasburg goose, with the study of all manner of subjects, from carpentry to naval gunnery, and golf to foreign languages. The upshot is that he is partly submerged beneath the accumulated stores of his confused knowledge. He wants a long breathing space, free from study, to develop his character. And we want to see him grow into a man, with a man's judgment and a man's follies. We want to see him "make things hum" a bit. We feel he has been unduly suppressed. All the same, there is the right stuff in him, and we have the highest hopes of his future.

You would think, too, if you knew him, that he has been suppressed. He is rather fair, small, and slight; thin in the legs and a little narrow in the shoulders. His face is pale, with only a faint flush through the skin. He is not usually high spirited. He wears an expression which is patient, thoughtful, and a little depressed. Among the Oxford undergraduates he is voted a good fellow without much kick in him. I remember seeing him in a mob of young men entering a college quadrangle, all flushed and hearty, from the tow path. A jolly young giant slapped him on the back and cried, "Wales, you swab, let me do you the honor of introducing you to Number Three in your college boat!" The prince was polite and not at all offended, but he gave no response to the good fellowship all around him. His eyes were dull and his smile slow by comparison.

In spite of all his education, he is backward for his age, shy, and sometimes fractious. He is a great favorite with the ladies. The Marquise de Breteuil (an American, I believe), whom he visited in Paris, was delighted with him. He took pleasure in serving her, in opening doors, in making up fires, and closing windows. When he took his departure the marquise was desolate. She said to a friend (so I am told), "I don't know what I shall do without him. He made himself so useful about the house that I really think I shall have to get another servant."

Consider what he has done in nineteen years. A prince's education in these days is a most formidable undertaking. From his earliest childhood he was taught to speak French and German. Playing at soldiers was with him a task conducted under the eye of a military instructor, who taught him the simplest elements of drill. A sailor supervised and directed his earliest efforts at boatmaking. In due course, like most English princes, he went as a naval cadet to Osborne. Reveille at 6:30 a. m. heralded the industrious days, which lasted for six terms. He was happy there with some hundreds of boys of his own age, who immediately bestowed upon him the title of "Sardines." Osborne is both school and workshop, and the prince divided his time between mental and manual training, with special courses in seamanship and gunnery. He sang in the choir, scuffled in the playing field, and was popular without in any sense being a leader.

I recall a nursery tale of him which throws a light on his character. "Do you know what I shall do when I am king?" he asked his nurse at the age of 9. "Well, I shall do three things. I shall make a law that no one shall cut off puppy dogs' tails, for that is very cruel. Then I shall make a law that no one is to put bearing reins on horses, for that is cruel, too." Here the prince stopped, the third item having for the moment escaped him. "O, yes," he went on solemnly, "and after that I shall try to do away with all sin."

The holidays from Osborne were spent with Mr. Hansell, who was then and still is the prince's tutor. In 1909 the prince, then 15 years old, was transferred to the more advanced establishment at Dartmouth. My next glimpse of him was on the deck of the gray battleship Hindustan, in the Solent. He was walking with a fellow midshipman by the big forward guns. He was subject on board to exactly the same discipline as his contemporaries. The captain of the Hindustan was an old shipmate of the prince's father and kept a kindly eye upon him. "Sardines" was well liked in the wardroom and left it with regret.

"Shades of the prison house" now began to close still faster "upon the growing boy." Year by year the pace accelerated. In June, 1911, came the first great ordeal in the shape of the prince's formal investiture as Prince of Wales. Imagine the weight of 600 years of history and tradition upon the shoulders of a boy of 17. In Carnarvon, on a blazing summer day, at the place where Edward I., ages before, held up his baby son and cried to the Welsh clans, "Behold your prince," our prince was proclaimed and crowned with a golden fillet amid a glorious ceremonial that stands unrivaled for splendor and stateliness in all the annals of British pageantry. The memories that crowded in upon the prince, the thought that upon him fell the mantle of the Black Prince of the warriors of Crecy and Agincourt, almost overwhelmed him.

Plenty of Pluck in Next King.

I was never so near loving him as when he rose, slim and boyish in his midshipman's uniform, and spoke from his dais to the 10,000 eager people surging, swaying, and glittering round him under the brilliant sun. They roared their welcome to him. The scene was fierce, with the bright light and the thunder of the crowd. In such a pageant only some fair haired giant with blazing eyes could have fully sustained the title rôle, fully represented the glowing and imperishable youth of England. Yet our pale boy stood upon his dais, his breast heaving and his glance uneasy, and there fought with himself in silence till his nervousness was crushed and his pleasant, boyish voice was heard, cool and controlled. His speech had of course been prepared for him, but it lost nothing in the delivery, and he added some of his own to it when he concluded:

"I am very young, but I have great examples before me. I shall bear in mind our ancient and beautiful saying, 'Without God is without anything; God is enough,' and I shall hope to do my duty to my king, to Wales, and to you all."

I am glad to say there is plenty of conscious pluck in our next king, and perhaps more than enough of modesty. For it was after this splendid pageant of Carnarvon that he made to one of his intimates the following very striking confession:

"You know I am not the right boy for these big shows."

Nevertheless he showed at Carnarvon the British and American characteristic of being able to rise to the occasion.

Created a Knight of the Garter.

Another ceremony, equally historic, equally imposing and appealing to his boyish imagination, took place at Windsor. He was created a Knight of the Garter before a full assemblage of the highest of all orders. The king bestowed upon him the accolade with the same ritual as that of the year of the founding of the order, 1348. The prince had first to walk in procession from the castle to St. George's chapel. The most famous, honored men of England followed him, each in the magnificent robes and plumes of the order. Lord Roberts, that glorious old soldier of ours, was there, together with Lord Crewe, Lord Lansdowne, Lord Rosebery, the orator, and an array of dukes. In that great company, gathered in the gray chapel which is as much a part of English history as Magna Charta (signed hard by at Runnymede), the prince unfalteringly took his oath as the king knelt and "tyed about the leg" of his son the "noble garter," to "stand firm, valiantly fight, and successfully conquer."

I emphasize these ceremonies because they explain much in the prince's present disposition. He was always an earnest boy. He was brought up simply by an earnest father and an earnest mother. The cares of state hardly weighed upon him until at these great ceremonies he began, at 17, to take his part in the nation's public life. The ordinary Englishman, if he is given to reflection, strikes an inspiring and restraining vein at the age when he comes to use his eyes and his mind for himself. He finds his country, almost every yard of it, "fathoms deep in history"; London untouched for nearly a thousand years; the New Forest much as it was when the arrow slew William Rufus; the stately cities breathing poems of a glorious past; his own family record, perhaps, including men who played their part with Cavalier and Roundhead, Drake and Raleigh, Nelson, Wolfe, and Wellington. He sees the great torch burning fiercely yet, his country high among the nations, its commerce, its literature, and its arms yet in the van. He does not live upon the past; he looks forward to a mightier future. But he feels that history has given him a precious heritage that must be kept untarnished. In this, I think, you find the inspiration of our modern heroes, men like the captain and officers of the Titanic

Dips His Head in a Bucket.

If this be so with the average Englishman, imagine the depth and height of duty which weighs upon the king's first born. Consider the weight falling upon him at the age of 17. A sensitive nature was certain to be almost overwhelmed. For the king regards his task with the utmost earnestness and seriousness, and he intends that his son shall do the same.

But the next phase of our young man's career is in rather lighter vein. He goes to Oxford and mingles with boys of rather over his own age on a footing of absolute equality. You see him attending lectures and taking notes; running with the lightly clad mob upon the river bank, shouting encouragement and abuse to the struggling crews; sharing the song and merriment of parties; scoring the winning goal in a hard fought football match between the second teams of his college and another; cycling, golfing, walking, motoring (driving his own car and mending his own punctures), smoking, and rowing. He begins to fill out and wear a happier expression. Everybody calls him "Wales," and nobody cares twopence for his rank. The days of toadyism are gone forever from our universities. He meets the picked young men of the world, Rhodes scholars from the United States, Canada, Germany, South Africa, Australia, and New Zealand, together with the flower of our English youth.

He joins the officers' training corps, the university branch of our territorial army. He serves in the ranks and does not get promotion. He goes in maneuvers (this in June last) and learns the toil and delight of being one unit in the rocking, swaying column as it marches on and on along the dusty roads. He carries rifle, greatcoat, haversack, water bottle, and ammunition pouches; puts boric powder in his boots to ward off blisters, and at night hardens his worn feet in a bath of petrol. He sleeps in a barn, gets up at 5, dips his head in a bucket, straps on his accoutrements, and falls in.

Makes Secret Trip in Airship.

He is smaller and younger than most of his comrades, but he's "simply dashed" if he'll give in. On one broiling day he marches twenty miles in full kit, "swearing good and hard," within eight hours. He fights in the thin brown line that scatters and falls and rises again in little groups which dash forward and fling themselves down a few yards nearer the enemy. He goes out with a stealthy column by night and trips and stumbles through the Aldershot pines and heather while the owls hoot. There is a bayonet charge at dawn and Wales is to the fore. Next day his luck is out and he is captured by the enemy and ignominiously held prisoner. He has a hard fortnight of the kind which leaves a man three days short of sleep and tired in every limb.

And he does one very sporting thing. He makes a secret trip in an airship. The old Beta, a small but sturdy army vessel, passes over him while he is on the firing line. That same evening he appears in private clothes at the flying corps' headquarters. He sends in a card and is welcomed. He takes his place on the little shaking platform of the Beta and up it goes, traveling a couple of thousand feet up for half an hour and coming down in the thickening dusk. He is rather clever about it. The newspapers hear of this trip for the first time a whole fortnight later.

He has, in fact, a quite remarkable gift for evading publicity when he so desires. One of the most amusing features of his visit to the Marquise of Breteuil in France, was the success with which he evaded the attentions of the great and terrible Marcel Hutin. Hutin is one of the terrors of Paris, a kind of journalistic apache. It was he who captured the unfortunate Mme. Steinheil while her trial for murder was pending, and after several hours' bullying behind closed doors forced from her a confession (subsequently proved false) of how she murdered her husband. When persons of any importance arrive in Paris, Hutin haunts them until they rashly utter a sentence or two which can be made into a red hot column for Hutin's paper. So when the prince came Parisians said, "Hutin will get him soon." Yet the days passed and Hutin did not get him. The prince left for a motor tour in Touraine and Hutin followed in another car. Parisians grinned expectantly. But the prince was elusive as a shadow. No artifice or trick was clever enough to catch him. Hutin was baffled, Paris laughed, and the prince's prestige rose by a thousand degrees.

A tour of the empire is shortly to be made, and there is the possibility that the prince will go with a British naval squadron to the opening of the Panama canal. In any event, he will certainly visit the United States in the not distant future.

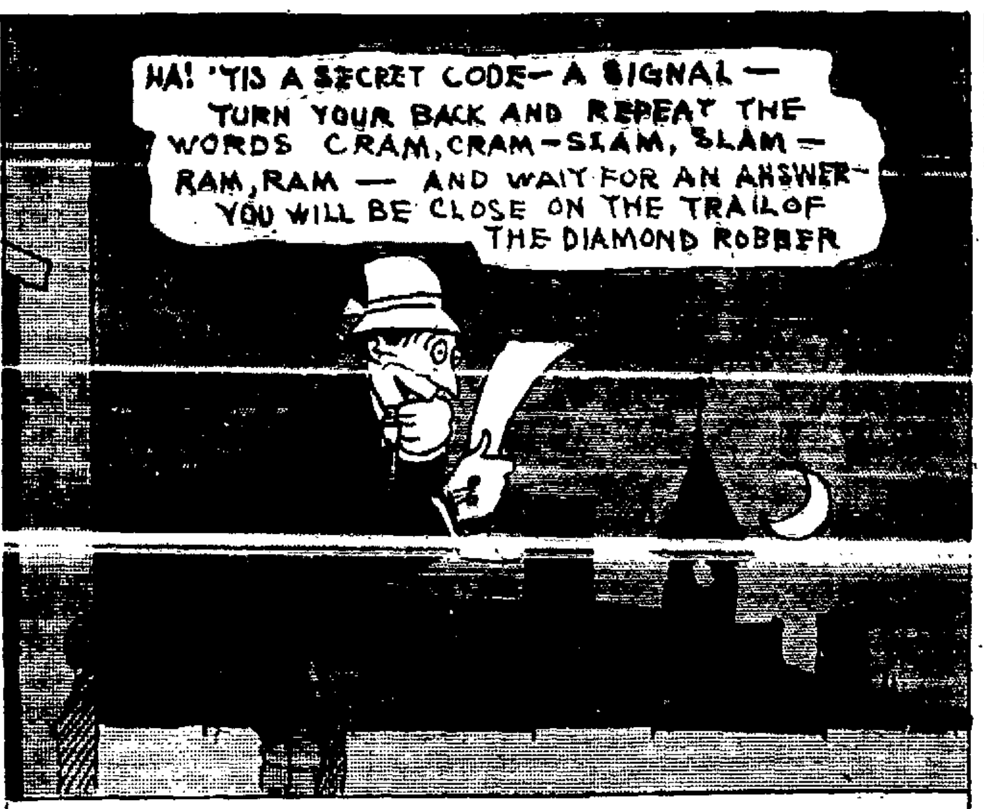
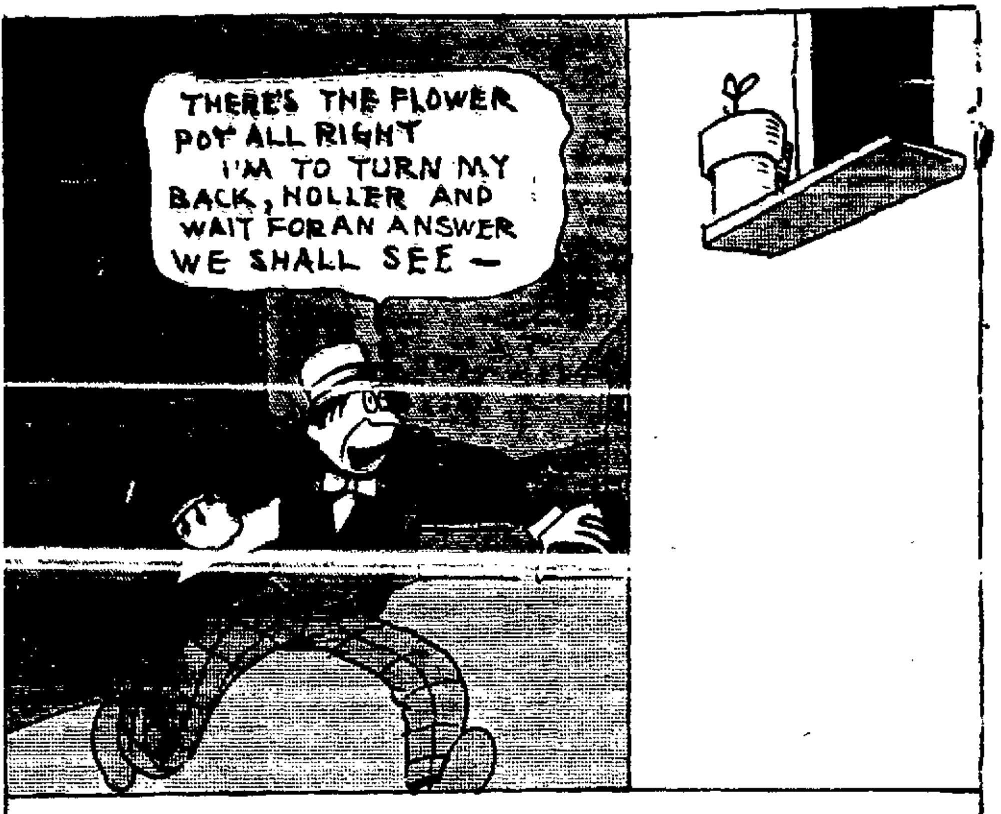
Pussyfoot had just come in from an exciting chase when the tinkle of the little bell announced a messenger at the door.



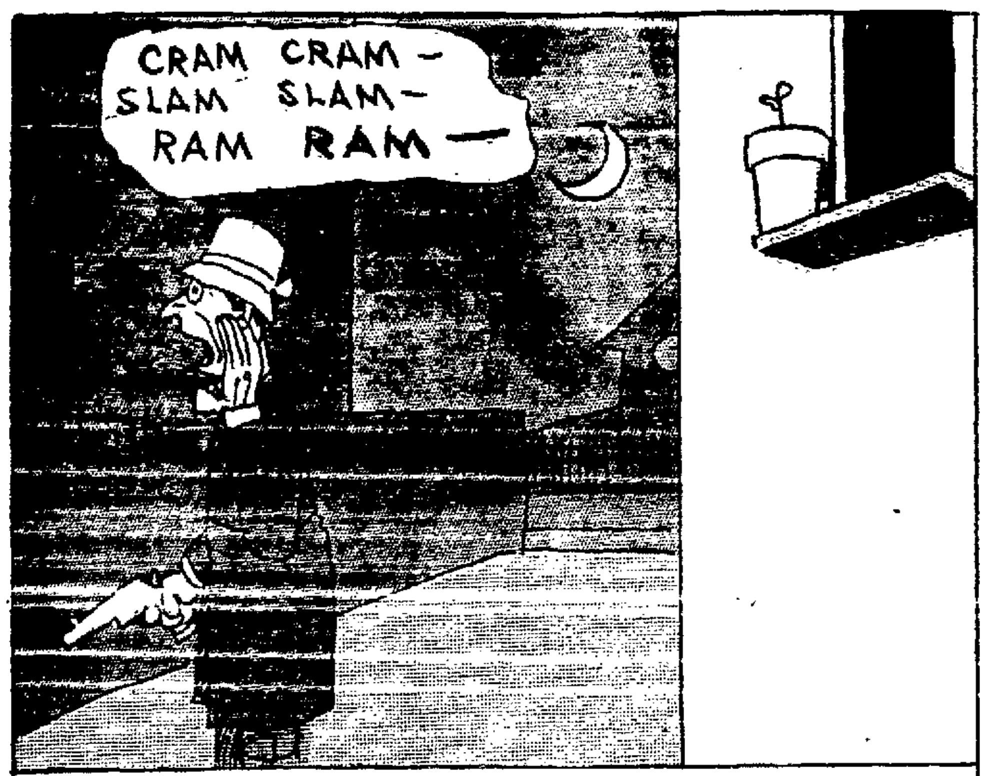
HA! 'TIS A SECRET CODE — A SIGNAL — TURN YOUR BACK AND REPEAT THE WORDS CRAM, CRAM — SLAM, SLAM — RAM, RAM — AND WAIT FOR AN ANSWER — YOU WILL BE CLOSE ON THE TRAIL OF THE DIAMOND ROBBER

To his surprise and delight he found a note teeming with mystery. His eyes twinked. A chuckle escaped his lips. He loved excitement.



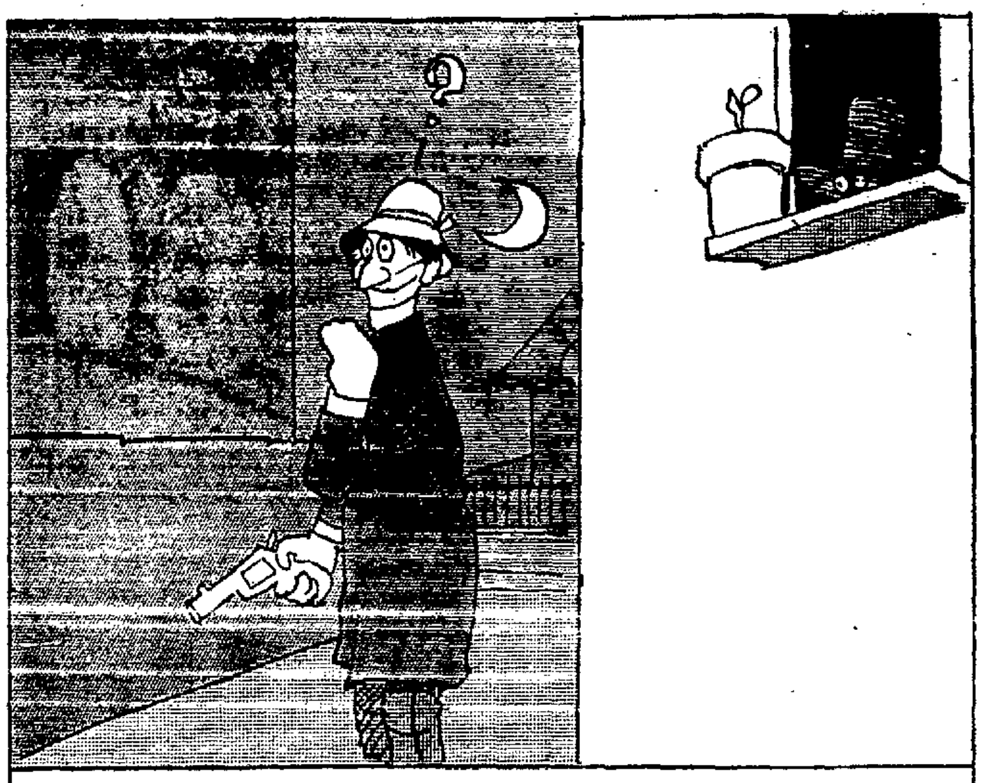
THERE'S THE FLOWER POT ALL RIGHT I'M TO TURN MY BACK, HOLLER AND WAIT FOR AN ANSWER WE SHALL SEE —

At last he was on the right trail. He had a real clew this time and would soon have that $15.000 reward.



CRAM CRAM — SLAM SLAM — RAM RAM —

Following directions, he turned his back on the window and in a rich but melodious voice piped these notes—



The silence was intense—the cooing of a dove in a near by cote—the distant calling of a whippoorwill to its fond mate was the only response.

Then, like a bolt out of a clear sky, came the answer. It was a stunning blow for our hero. Stars shot in every direction—his face was livid with rage. He leaned suddenly forward. A slight tremor crept over his body. His lip quivered. Then all was darkness.

Wall of Water Rushes Through Towns in Russia

Inhabitants Drowned Like Rats During Hurricane

ST. PETERSBURG, March 14. — More than 1500 men, women and children were drowned tonight when a terrific hurricane in the Province of Kuban, accompanied by torrential rain, caused the sea of Azof to rise nine feet, inundating many towns.

In the town of Achtyrskaja, near the city of Azof, more than 1000 persons perished in their sleep, when 380 houses were swept into the sea by the flood, which came with a mighty rush and without warning.

The death-dealing wall of water completely overwhelmed the village of Stajizta, on the Azof shore, and many people were drowned.

At Yarenkaja, where the inundation swamped many dwellings, giving their occupants no chance to escape, 150 were drowned.

At Achtyrskaja, where 200 workmen living on the shore were carried bodily out to sea, the flood broke the dam across the river Don, causing a rush of water to roll down on the hamlet of Tamrjuk, drowning many more persons.

ACTRESS IS WED BEHIND SCENES

Business Man Makes Vaudeville Maid His Bride

Three years of meeting and parting of the sort which the vagaries of the stage life dictate grew so wearisome for ~~Norma E. Baker~~, the dashing leading lady of a sketch at the Pantages, and Newton D. Warren, business man of Sacramento, that they decided last evening to put an end to it. Summoning Judge James G. Quinn they were joined in the rosy matrimonial bonds in the wings of the theater while the audience, all unconscious, watched the progressing bill from the front.

Mrs. Warren is a former New York and Chicago young woman who has made her mark in vaudeville in the past few years. Three years ago in Philadelphia she met Warren and they became fast friends. Then she was whisked away to other towns, and he to Sacramento to become the coast manager for a dental supply company.

The mails kept alive their romance until recently when, the young woman coming west with her company, they were permitted once more to meet. They secured their license yesterday. Last evening their wedding took place in the theater wings. Mr. and Mrs. Edward E. Jamison of another sketch were their best man and matron of honor. A group of chorus girls and other playerfolk were the audience—armed with many pounds of rice which they used to good effect.

Tomorrow Mrs. Warren leaves with her company for Los Angeles. Then she goes to Denver where, in five weeks, her contract expires. From Denver she will return to California to be at home in her own establishment with her husband at Sacramento.

Dynamite Conspiracy Appeal Papers Filed

CHICAGO, March 14.—Action in the United States court of appeals in the case of the men convicted in the dynamite conspiracy trials in Indianapolis was limited today to filing a codified copy of the judgment of the United States supreme court denying the petition for a writ of certieraro to take the case from the coudt of appeals. The regular term of the court of appeals opens April 14 and there is now before the court a motion for a rehearing of the appeal in the case of the six defendants to whom new trials were granted. The question of permitting a re-hearing in the unusual procedure would be determined before a mandate would be issued to the lower court.

Should this course be followed an interval of several weeks is probable before any order sending the defendants back to prison would be entered.

Defiant Sheriff to Again Run for Office

BAKER, Oregon, March 14.—Undaunted by the effort of Governor West to have him removed because of his defiant attitude during the Copperfield anti-liquor embroglio, Sheriff Ed Rand announced tonight that he would be a candidate for reelection. The sheriff had refused to enforce the Governor's edict that Copperfield, frontier mining town, should be made dry when the wives and mothers protested to the executive that they could not get offenders against the liquor laws punished in the local courts. Governor West thereupon sent his private secretary, Miss Fern Hobbs, to place the town under martial law, and the civic committee named to govern the place is still in charge.

SUPERSTITION IS AGAIN VICTOR IN CAPITOL ROMANCE

WASHINGTON, March 14. — Superstition won out in the engagement of Miss Eleanor Wilson to Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo. Friends of the couple recalled tonight that McAdoo was the first person who sat on the dais on which Miss Jessie Wilson and Francis Bowes Sayre were married —and that always means a marriage real soon. Moreover, both Eleanor Wilson and William McAdoo are 13-letter names. And everybody is aware of the Wilson family's lucky 13. Also, it was reported that Miss Eleanor got the [illegible] that Mrs. Sayre cut with Lieutenant Cary Grayson's sword in the state dining room of the White House.

The principals in the White House romance are not revealing their plans. Secretary McAdoo smilingly evaded questioning with the declaration that the lady was the one who decided dates and such matters. Miss Wilson denied herself to callers.

THAW ASKS PEOPLE FOR THEIR MERCY

White's Slayer Would Be With His Mother in Her Old Age

CONCORD, N. H., March 14.—H. K. Thaw has addressed to the people of the State of New York, in whose name is being conducted the contest to return the slayer of Stanford White to the Matteawan Asylum for the Criminal Insane, an appeal to end the case against him. It concludes:

"I do not ask for sympathy, but only justice, which should be the inherent right of every man. For the deed committed I ask no benevolence. It was done in a moment when sorrow wrecked my home, and when I was forced to realize that the happiness of a lifetime, which after marriage should have been mine, was taken from me. The deed was committed: my family, those near and dear to me, publicly exposed to the scolest scrutiny, my mother plunged into grief, and myself into a living death, the torture of which I do not wish to relate.

"I am now a man, my youth has passed; my resources impaired. My parents' charities have been extensive; I myself have assisted many in need. The future holds for me an opportunity to bring some peace and happiness to my aged mother, who in these eight years has known none, and who has spent her declining years in untold sorrow.

"My adversary now seeks to place me in Matteawan—a living hell—to there spend the rest of my life, to never again take my place in my mother's home in her remaining years, and in respectful confidence I now appeal to the citizens of New York in the power of their sovereignty to stop the prosecution and therefore ask that all people who believe that I have suffered years of punishment commensurate with my deed, write the representatives of their own district at Albany before Wednesday to support and vote for these resolutions."

Terre Haute Strike Of Carmen Riotous

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., March 14.—Following a walk-out on the street car lines of the Terre Haute, Indianapolis & Eastern local ssytem at 9 o'clock tonight, disorders came rapidly in many parts of the city. Four cars were stoned and the motorman on one, Ellis Phillips, on an East Wabash avenue car, was knocked unconscious by a brick thrown through the door of the car. The police dispersed crowds along the principal streets.

The walkout came when the street car officials discharged seven employes who were supposed to have been active in the organization of the union. At a late hour tonight a mob of strike sympathizers stormed the terminal station, a one-story frame building, and nearly wrecked the place. The entire police department was called to the downtown section to attempt to keep order. At midnight the union leaders said the strike would be general by Sunday morning.

At 11 o'clock the police ordered all saloons closed in the vicinity of traction offices and the terminal station on Ninth street.

Wrong Man Let Out Of Prison on Bond

Hanisch and Bacigalupi are somewhat similar names. They both contain an "a" as an integral part, although whether that is the reason Bacigalupi wandered forth from the city prison last night free on Hanisch's bonds is not explained at police headquarters. At any rate, Bacigalupi got out and Hanisch had to do some explaining before he, too, saw the light of night on Broadway.

Both men had been arrested on charges of failure to provide, and friends of both hastened to offer bonds. The bonds were being arranged for together, and finally Hanisch's were approved. A telephone message was sent upstairs to this effect, but in transit it became twisted, and Bacigalupi came down. He was lectured, ordered to appear in the police court Monday, and freed. Hanisch's friends, in the meantime, waited his coming. Finally they investigated and Hanisch was found still in the city prison.

Bacigalupi's bonds were later arranged, so that his freedom now does no harm to the majesty of the law. Both men will be examined bu the police court Monday.

$3,000,000 INVOLVED IN ORDER

Judge Dietrick Hands Down Decision in R. R. Case

Spreckels Bros. Will Not Have to Buy San Diego Line

SAN FRANCISCO, March 14.—A momentous financial decision has just been rendered by United States District Judge Dietrick of Idaho, sitting for Judge William C. Van Fleet of this city, in which John D. Spreckels and his brother, Adolph B. Spreckels, of San Diego and San Francisco have won a substantial victory over the Southern Pacific Railway Company. As a result of the opinion handed down by the jurist after more than a year's deliberation, the Southern Pacific will be forced, it is believed, to continue the construction of operation of the San Diego and Arizona Railway, one of the subsidiary and dependent lines fathered by the late E. H. Harriman.

The amount of money involved is something over $3,000,000, which was to have been the purchase price of the railroad had John D. and Adolph Spreckels decided to purchase it from the Southern Pacific Company.

The case was argued as far back as February, 1913, Attorney W. I. Brobeck appearing in behalf of the Spreckels Brothers, while Attorney Stanley Moore was counsel for the Southern Pacific.

HISTORY OF RAILWAY.

In order that the importance of the transaction may be realized, it is necessary to know something of the history of the San Diego and Arizona Railway.

Shortly after the fire of 1906 E. H. Harriman went to San Diego with the intention of spending some time at Coronado, for a vacation. Looking over the ground he was amazed at San Diego's growth and of its possibilities as a seaport and commercial city. He was also more than ordinarily interested over the fact that the Santa Fe was the only railroad having direct access to it. Moreover, it was necessary for passengers of the East to go first to Los Angeles. The people had been talking a great deal of getting a direct line to Yuma to make a connection with the Southern Pacific and save the somewhat roundabout trip.

WILSON REVERSES FORMER OPINIONS

Urges the Democrats of Tennessee to Drop Their Fights

WASHINGTON, March 14.—President Wilson reversed himself tonight. After declaring ever since he assumed office in the most positive terms that under no circumstances would he interfere in purely state matters, he issued a statement tonight demanding that the Tennesse Democrats get together.

For more than three years now the party in that state has been divided. So serious is the existing situation that grave fears have been entertained that the Republicans and Progressives would be able to dominate the next congressional delegation from that state.

Representative Doremus of Michigan, chairman of the Democratic congressional committee; National Committeeman Hull of Tennessee conferred with the president at the White House tonight.

The following statement was issued on behalf of the president:

"My judgment is very clear and decided that it is the duty of all Democrats in Tennessee to accommodate any differences they may have had in the past and stand solidly together for the sake of the prestige and success of the party throughout the nation. The nation is now accepting the services of the party as of the highest benefit to it and every Democrat should consider it part of his duty and privilege to contribute to the hearty team work which has in recent months made the party so effective in the nation.

"As I see the situation, the causes which divide the party in Tennessee no longer exist. The issues which caused the division have been settled. The thought of every Democrat should now be bent toward means of union and co-operation and common national service. I do not see how, otherwise, the Democrats of the state can pull with the Democrats of the nation, or the country be enabled to judge what Tennessee thinks of the present administration in Washington."

Postal Planning to Start Phone System

DENVER, March 14.—The Postal Telegraph and Cable Company is preparing to enter the telephone field in competition with the Bell Company. Plans are under consideration for establishing service in Denver in connection with similar exchanges to be operated in other parts of the country, now covered by the wires of the big Mackay corporation.

Work has begun on a line between Denver and Salt Lake City, which will give long-distance service between this city and the Pacific Coast, via Salt Lake over the Postal wires. This line will be completed within five months.

CUBIST SALAD IS LATEST DISH

SOCIETY TAKING TO THE IDEA

Y. W. C. A. Student Is Inventor of Scheme

The cubist salad has arrived. It hasn't a cubist taste—oh, no. Salads made of oil, vinegar, salt—and all the other little things that go into the standard formula couldn't have a cubist, or even a futuristic taste, without the addition of caviar or herring, —and that would never do. It's just in the color scheme. For instance, a flower to fit the color scheme of the salad does wonders toward changing the salad's appearance; a pansy makes a pleasing harmony with a few dashes of pepper, and a beet salad looks more beautiful with an American Beauty Rose on the side.

MISS LYNDA WYGHT, WHO SETS FASHION IN COOKERY

That's how Miss Lydia Wight, one of the star pupils among the group of girls in the domestic classes at the Young Women's Christian Association does the trick. Miss Wight has the distinction of being the inventress and sole discoverer of the floral cubist salad, and from all appearances she's started a fashion. Society, it is predicted, will follow her fad,—and there are hundreds of flowers of different hues it's hard to tell where the thing will end.

HER RULE IS SIMPLE.

Miss Wight's rule is simple. She chooses a flower that matches her salad and gracefully arranges the two. The tout ensemble is charming to the eye, and, if the salad itself is arranged right, the salt and the pepper, the oil and the vinegar, all are combined in the proportions prescribed, it's pleasing to the palate as well.

"Feed the brute" they say of Mere Man in the cooking school. Her salad will feed those who think nothing of beauty, save in culinary creations, and also feed the mind that loves beauty.

Celery salad, as designed by Miss Wight, requires a deep red tone to offset it. A dark carnation or a red rose does the trick. Cucumber salad takes a deep yellow decoration. A daffodil does produce an artistic dish. No lettuce garnishes the cubist salad; it is not necessary. Flowers and novel arrangements of flowers are far more effective.

Thus has the Y. W. C. A. domestic science class achieved fame right from the start. If the dressmaking classes, the household management classes, and the other departments of the novel school follow suit the Athens of the Pacific will achieve new fame, and the Edisonettes and Burbankettes of cookery will carve another niche in the hall of fame for "My City, Oakland."

Commerce Secretary En Route for West

CHICAGO, March 14.—Secretary of Commerce William C. Redfield and his family were in Chicago a few hours this afternoon, en route to California for a month's vacation.

WILDEST DISORDER WHEN STORE CLOSES

End of Siegel Concern Comes in Near-Riot

NEW YORK, March 14. — Amid scenes of the wildest disorder, during which women's hats were smashed, clothing torn and the shrill voices of hysterical women were mingled with the sharp commands of private detectives, who sought to restore quiet, the Fourteenth Street Store and the Simpson-Crawford Company of the $10,000,000 Siegel enterprises passed out of being late today.

The disorder and near riot was in the Fourteenth Street Store. At Simpson-Crawford's there was no sign of trouble. Salesgirls were tangoing in the music room as the gong crashed out its resounding peal for the last time, announcing the close of business.

Just at the time when it seemed that hundreds of young women and girls were to be thrown out upon the streeets without a sign of hope of immediate re-employment, merchants of the city began coming forward today. Of the 2300 employes who walked out of the Siegel stores this evening, a majority have been furnished with new positions and every effort is being made to make places for others.

The Fourteenth Street Store planned to close at 6 o'clock this afternoon, as did Simpson-Crawford. This was impossible. At the closing hour every aisle of the store was packed. Shoppers and the merely curious pressed

Women of Chicago Swell Registration

CHICAGO, March 14. — Chicago will have more voters than any city in the country Tuesday night, Election Clerk Stuart predicted tonight, basing his forecast on an estimate that 100,000 more women will register Tuesday, the last registration day before the city election

New York has more than 600,000 registered voters. With the names of 150,000 women already on the books, Chicago's total registration to date is 592,000. Stuart believes 120,000 women who did not register in advance of the primaries and 50,000 men will register Tuesday, increasing the total number of registered voters to nearly 750,000.

WORKLESS ARMY TO FEEL 'STRONG ARM'

Yolo Authorities Will Clear Out Camp Tomorrow

SACRAMENTO, March 14.—Regardless of this afternoon's conference of sheriffs and other authorities from several counties in this section of the State, the unemployed army must vacate its stronghold on the West Sacramento Company's property across the river from this city by Monday.

This information was conveyed late today to the men personally by Sheriff Monroe of Yolo county, who was asked by the West Sacramento Company to clear out the workless camp.

Instead of conferring with the unemployed leaders and allowing them to offer suggestions as to the way they will be handled, the Yolo county authorities are going to take the bit in their teeth and clean out the camp Monday, unless the sheriffs of the various counties agree to take home bunches of the men and find work for them in the various counties near here.

CITIZENS AGAIN ACTIVE.

The Sacramento citizens' committee is again taking a hand in trying to solve the knotty problem and if necessary it is possible that money will be forthcoming from this side of the river for the transportation of the unemployed. Chairman Harry Thorpe of the Sacramento citizens' committee was on the ground today talking to Sheriff Monroe, Attorney A. W. Armfield and the Yolo supervisors. Adjutant General Forbes also was an interested party to the conference on the Yolo side of the river, but he did not go any closer to the camp than the Yolo end of the M-street bridge.

The combined sheriffs' forces will endeavor to take bands of the men home with them, but if they fail in their plan, the Yolo officers will drive them every which way, and force will be resorted to if the army resists.

Only the most radical of the "hikers" remain in camp and now there are only about 500 or 600 men left. Each hour the army is dwindling away, but the remaining force will have to be handled by the authorities with a firm hand. This is the determination of the Yolo officers.

DIG TUNNEL TO ESCAPE; FOILED

Mexican's Plot Told to U. S. Soldiers by Women

Carranza's Pledge of Safety Repudiation of Villa

EL PASO, Texas, March 14.—The entire Twentieth infantry at Fort Bliss was called tonight to investigate the story told to General Hugh Scott, commandant, by two Mexican women, of a plot whereby the 3300 Mexicans interned in the prison camp at Fort Bliss were to escape. According to the women, a tunnel had been dug by the prisoners from one of the tents to a point 100 feet beyond the last line of American guards outside the camp.

The plot included the escape across the border of about 3000 prisoners, constituting the remnant of General Salvador Mocado's Mexican federal army which fled from Ojinaga several months ago after a valiant nine days' defense against overwhelming odds.

According to the women, 3000 rifles and quantities of ammunition had been smuggled in the last few weeks to various Mexican points for use of the reorganized federal forces. It was proposed to seize these and attack Juarez, it having been believed that, by Sunday night, General Francisco Villa and his rebel army would have gone to Torreon, leaving Juarez practically unguarded. It also was planned to strike at General Venustiano Carranza, overpower his bodyguard and seize the "first chief" of the Constitutionalists himself. Carranza tonight left Aguas Prietas for Juarez, going overland through Mexico. By Sunday night he would have been in easy striking distance.

The work was done at night, the earth from the tunnel being strewn about the recently torn up camp streets. The women and children were to be left behind, together with the sick and some of the older officers who were not in condition to stand the hardships of the journey through the tunnel and to points in Mexico that had been agreed upon as places of rendezvous.

REPUDIATES VILLA.

WASHINGTON, March 14.—Direct repudiation of Francisco Villa, rebel general and ex-bandit, by his chieftain, was the construction placed tonight by the diplomatic corps here on the pledge of General Carranza, Constitutionalist chieftain, of ample protection for all foreigners in northern Mexico.

Secretary of State Bryan tonight furnished each legation and embassy here a copy of Carranza's letter to Consul Simpich. It was received with a feeling of distinct relief, especially the Spanish and British legations. Everywhere it was accepted that a repetition of the Benton incident is now impossible. Carranza, of record as insisting that he would waive all red tape to protect foreign interests, is expected to keep his word. As a result, the administration was comparatively unconcerned for the first time since the word reached this city that a British citizen had been done to death by Villa's direct orders.

Coming on the eve of the real campaign of the revolution against the remaining strongholds of the Huertistas in the North, the declaration of Carranza materially cleared the atmosphere. It meant, in the opinion of the government officials here, that should Torreon, Monterey and Tampico fall before the general onslaught of the rebel army that already has

UNION TABOO ON U. C. PLAY MUSIC

Mandolin Club Watches "Leah Kleschna" With Instruments Dumb

The path of the University of California students who produced "Leah Kleschna" last evening at the Macdonough Theater was not strewn with roses. The play went ahead, it is true, but the soft cadences of the Mandolin Club's music, which was to have enlivened the waiting time between acts, was not heard. The Musicians' Union objected to the Mandolin Club threatened to call off the stage hands if non-union music was used and won the day, much to the chagrin of the academic thespians.

Ernest G. Clewe, one of the managers of the production and the actor in the leading masculine role, explains that the Mask and Dagger Society, which produced the play, feared financial difficulties if it became too deeply involved. So the Mandoline Club was enlisted to take place of a paid orchestra.

The Musicians' Union saw it otherwise. They appeared before Clewe as he was wielding the haresfoot in his dressing room. Back of them appeared, rank upon rank, the stage hands. With non-union music Clewe was told, the play would not proceed, and it would not proceed because the stage hands stood with the Musicians' Union.

The union was victorious—in part [illegible] but no other music was heard [illegible] Before the curtain Clewe explained the situation to the audience, which largely filled the playhouse. Mandolin Club members packed their instruments under their arms and took seats in the front row as spectators instead of participants.

Madam Cisneros Honored

Queen Presents a Brooch

MME. ELEANORA CISNEROS, NOTED SINGER, WHO HAS BEEN HIGHLY HONORED BY QUEEN ENA OF SPAIN, AFTER HAVING SUNG AT THE KING'S BIRTHDAY RECEPTION.

MADRID, March 14.—High honor has been paid Mme. Eleanora Cisneros, the noted prima donna whose singing has been delighting Spain, by Queen Ena, who has presented the singer with a wonderful brooch of diamonds and pearls as a souvenir of her recent appearance at the birthday reception of King Alfonso. The noted singer appeared before royalty and the most noted grandees of Spain at the great reception held at the Palacio Real.

Mme. Cisneros arrived in Spain after a successful tour of America with the Chicago Grand Opera Company, during which her voice delighted thousands in all the great cities. Following this tour, taken two years ago, she arrived in Spain where she sang with the greatest of success in Barcelona all last winter, appearing before the most critical audiences known to musicians; for the Spanish above all insists on hearing only superlatively good music. According to musicians success in Spain, where every man and woman is a connoisseur, is the highest honor possible of achievement, and Mme. Cisneros is now fairly idolized here.

From Barcelona Madame Cisneros came to Madrid, where, besides delighting the royal family she has become the joy of the music-loving Madridenos, and is planning other tours. Possessed of a wonderfully powerful voice of rare sweetness, she is duplicating and even excelling her successful American tours in the Old World.

about the counters. Then the high, shrill voice of a woman rose above the babel of clerks and buyers.

EXCITEMENT IS KEEN.

"I have been dispossessed. I have ben robbed," the woman exclaimed. She was Mrs. L. Matteson. The throngs in the aisles pressed toward her and clamored excitedly as she launched into a heated denunciation of Henry Siegel and Frank E. Vogel, his partner. Pushing her way through the crowd, she grasped at the curtains which had been hung about the section of the store which served as the quarters of the private bank. As Mrs. Matteson tugged at the curtains the excitement in the crowd increased. Private detectives employed in the store finally reached Mrs. Matteson and escorted her to the street.

With Mrs. Matteson's outbreak others immediately started. A half dozen women became hysterical. One fainted and had to be carried out. At every new cry the crowd surged in the direction of the voice raised in protest and demanding redress. Men and women pushed and jostled, hats were fairly torn from heads, and the store detectives, aided by floor walkers, fought their way.

QUIET IS RESTORED.

A cordon of 15 officers was drawn up beside the store, but after a half hour of ceaseless endeavor quiet was restored without resorting to a call for aid. The store was then cleared and at 6:45 the big bell clanged in the Fourteenth Street Store.

With the clang of the gong in both stores clerks dropped their work, and with a shout hurried for their pay. Every employe received his money for this week and even received back the 10-cent deposit made for lockers. It was much like the last day in a boarding school. There were mingled tears and smiles as the employes who had been associated for years took leave of each other for the last time. Standing alone in the Simpson-Crawford store was George McGoldrick, who has been employed there for 22 years. He wept as he saw the crowd file out for the last time and then sadly passed through the door and on to the street.

It was estimated tonight that 85 per cent of the employes in the Simpson-Crawford store has obtained other places. Most of the Fourteenth Street Store clerks have found places also, it was declared, but eight representatives of the Women's Protective League were busy among the young women handing out lists of responsible employment agencies. The "white slavers" did not overlook the opportunity of young girls being thrown out of work, and representatives of several questionable "employment" agencies were discovered at work among the clerks.

CELEBRATION HELD.

SAN LEANDRO, March 14.—The Epworth League held a St. Patricks' day social last night at the home of Mrs. W. B. Jones. Shamrock favors were distributed to each member of the company. Games were played during the evening and refreshments were served.

PROF. ALLEN TO DELIVER LECTURE

Greek Papyri From Egypt Will Be Theme for Museum Discourse.

UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA, March 14. — Professor J. T. Allen of the Greek department of the University of California will give the 3 o'clock lecture at the Affiliated Colleges Museum on Sunday.

Professor Allen's lecture deals with "Greek Papyri from Egypt and the New Testament." The writings of Greeks in Egypt about the time of Christ give us considerable additional knowledge concerning the New Testament and the conditions of life of that period. Furthermore, Greek life in Egypt at that time is particularly well illustrated by the Museum's Egyptian exhibit from Tebtunis.

A unique exhibit at the Museum this week demonstrates that cocoanuts serve more useful porposes than merely supplying food. The exhibit is a suit of armor made from the tough fibres of cocoanut husks. In the Gilbert Islands in the South Pacific, when a man goes into battle this armor is a very necessary part of his equipment if he would come through alive.

Terrible swords and spears armed with double rows of sharks' teeth are the weapons they fight with in that sunny clime. A thrust or a blow leaves an awful gaping wound, as the weapon, with its rows of cruel teeth, is like a huge saw. A large double-edged sword of this type is shown in the exhibit.

The armor, however, is very tough and durable, and although it is not bullet proof, it serves its purpose admirably. It is very thick and is woven over a wooden framework.

This exhibit will be on until next Saturday, when it will be removed to give place to another of the 50-a-year series.

Transbay visitors to the Museum should take car line No. 6 at the ferries, as it goes direct to the Museum.

Cigarettes and Score Cards Suffrage Aids

DENVER, Colo., March 14.—The cigarette and the bridge score are the latest aids of the cause of suffrage. To Mrs. Lindsley Halstead, a member of the Denver smart set, belongs the honor of inaugurating the new idea. She has persuaded her husband to have stamped on the wrappers of his cigarettes the slogan "Votes for Women." Every man who lights a cigarette in the Halstead home she figures, will see the words, be impressed and forthwith be ready to battle for the cause throughout the country. Next she had the legend inscribed prominently on her bridge score cards, so that if any society women who attend her auction parties are not already enthusiasts they will soon become so.

RODEL THE WINNER.

NEW YORK, March 14. — Ralph Rodel, the fighting Boer, knocked out Jack McKay of Winnipeg tonight in the eighth round of a scheduled 10-round bout at the Gowanus Athletic Club.

SPRECKELS BROS. VICTORS IN SUIT

Judge Dietrick Holds That They Do Not Have to Buy Railway.

direct railroad. He was actuated by the growth of the Imperial Valley and its importance from a shipping standpoint. Accordingly he approached John D. Spreckels, proposing to him that he take charge of the management of the new road, attend to its construction and look out for its affairs, the Southern Pacific putting up the money to build it. The negotiations were on for some time and the arrangement was made. The Southern Pacific put in between two and a half and three million dollars in road construction.

PAYMENTS FELL BEHIND.

nate was taken ill and died. After his death those who took up the management of the Harriman lines did not keep up the money payment for constructing the San Diego and Arizona Railway, and the Southern Pacific proposed to Spreckels that he buy the road.

They offered to sell it for the amount they had invested and expressed the hope that he would complete it himself. They then gave Spreckels an option to buy the stock of the railway and the real estate properties acquired by the San Diego and Arizona Railway for the exact amount that had been invested by the corporation.

Spreckels concluded not to use the option. The Southern Pacific insisted and contended that it was not an option that Spreckels held but an absolute contract to purchase. The officials put up the claim that Spreckels had entered into an agreement to buy the road. In January, 1912, the railroad filed suit to compel John D. and Adolph B. Spreckels to pay what it claimed was the price of the stock and the real estate.

The matter was argued in February of last year before Judge Dietrick after Judge Van Fleet had announced that he considered himself disqualified. The court has pondered already over the problems involved and the decision now rendered sustains the demurrer to the complaint which was interposed by Attorney Brobeck. The Southern Pacific is given an opportunity to amend by the court, but whether or not the company will avail itself of the privilege is a question.

RULING OF JUDGE.

Judge Dietrick holds that the corporation can amend the complaint if it can show that there was no real estate involved in the transaction.

Although the proposition of giving San Diego a direct line eastward has been in litigation for more than two years, work on the road has not ceased. It was decided by all parties that the work could not be discontinued without loss and through a stipulation construction gangs have remained at work. Recently an agreement was entered into through which an application was made to the Railroad Commission for a bond issue of $15,000 for the purpose of completing the San Diego and Arizona Railway.

The Commission made an order in which it was decided that the railroad would be allowed to issue the bonds providing $3,000,000 more was ordered to the capital stock of the company.

FORTY MILES TO COMPLETE.

There remains about forty miles of construction work to do before the San Diego and Arizona Railway, bisecting the Imperial Valley, will make a connection with another road forming the final link in the chain to Yuma, Arizona, where the Southern Pacific mainline passes. Even though the Southern Pacific should decide to accept defeat without appeal from Judge Dietrick's decision, it is not believed the forty miles of road can be completed by the opening of the San Diego Exposition and the Panama-Pacific Exposition in San Francisco.

The new construction work is of a very difficult nature by reason of the topography of the country through which the road must run.

It may be that an appeal will be taken to the United States Circuit Court eventually and an attempt may be made in the near future to amend the complaint.

100,000 Pay Tribute to G. Westinghouse

NEW YORK, March 14.—One hundred thousand men and women dropped their tasks today as a tribute to George Westinghouse, whose genius gave them the means of livelihood. The great inventor of the air-brake was buried here today while many workmen remained idle in a dozen factories in America and Europe. Twenty-five thousand Westinghouse employes laid aside their tools in Pittsburg alone.

The funeral services were held at the Fifth-avenue Presbyterian Church and the burial was at Woodlawn Cemetery.

The services were conducted by the Rev. J. H. Jowett, pastor of the church, and by the Rev. S. J. Fisher of Pittsburg, whose friendship with the inventor dated from the time when they were poor boys rooming together in a Pittsburg boarding-house.

Truant's Excuse Was That He Had Expired

DENVER, March 14.—It remained for Max Goodman, 14, to blaze the way for all future truants by inventing a brand new excuse for being absent from school. Max died. Not really expired, of course, but he died so far as school was concerned. Four months ago Max sent word to Principal W. E. Knapp of Cheltenham school, by another boy, that he was quite dead. Knapp mourned, but thought no more of it. Four months passed and then today Max so far forgot himself that he walked right into the school master on the street. Knapp sent Max to Juvenile Judge Lindsey, who will take him in hand.

PAUL, Minn., March 14.—It has been decided to name the new Hill steamships that are now being built at the Cramp shipyards, Philadelphia, for service between Astoria, Oregon and San Francisco, in connection with the Spokane, Portland and Seattle railway, the "Great Northern" and "Northern Pacific." The "Great Northern" will be one of the first of the Pacific Merchant Marine to pass through the Panama canal.

1912 RAISINS ARE TO BE FACTORS IN FIGHT

FRESNO, March 14.—It has come to the attention of the Associated Raisin Company that several of the outside packers have been quoting fancy seeded raisins lately at a lower figure than that quoted by the Associated, but do not say whether the raisins are of the 1912 or 1913 crop. James Madison, manager of the Associated, has just sent a letter out to the Eastern trade, advising that if any of hese packers are offering seeded goods at a figure lower than the Associated, they are endeavoring to sell 1912 raisins and criticises them for implying that they are 1913 raisins, but not stating from what crop they come.

J. P. Dargitz has resigned as general manager of the California Cured Fruit Exchange, as the result of a clash on questions of policy, according to reports received in this city from Sacramento. R. C. Kells, of Chico, president of the exchange, has assumed temporary charge of affairs.

"The solidarity of the exchange and the co-operative idea is not jeopardized," said Dargitz, in speaking of his resignation and the clash. "It is founded on principle and principle is stronger than personality.

"Eighteen months ago when the exchange members did not know which way to turn, they felt that they needed me. Since that time the exchange has been laced on a firm basis and the membership has been geratly increased. During the last year I have handled $600,000 worth of business for them. Now they apparently think they can get along without me.

"Some seem to think that a manager is not needed; that the business can be held by the selling agent and the head of the accounting department."

ARRESTS FOLLOW THEATER MELEE

Proprietor and Wife and Bystander Have Charges Against Them.

Following alleged attempts of enemies to smother their audiences with poisoned gas and other troubles, as well as almost nightly fights before the theater, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Christopher, proprietors of a motion picture at 5677 San Pablo avenue, and Leonard Stephenson, teamster, declared to be one of the enemies of the couple, were arrested last night and released on bonds.

Stephenson says that the woman tried to drive him away from the place with a piece of hose. He called the police and demanded her arrest on a charge of battery. Her husband expostulated, a crowd gathered and finally he was arrested on a charge of using vulgar language. She was arrested on a charge of battery and Stephenson again for disturbing the peace.

The affair of last night, according to the theater owners, was the climax of a long series of troubles. They allege that their enemies once threw a gas bomb into the place, stampeding the audience, and recently attempted to cast another into the box office where Mrs. Christopher sells tickets. They also declare that she has been forced every night to drive men away from the place when they have attempted to dissuade patrons from entering. On these occasions she is alleged to have used her piece of hose with good effect.

Last night, however, Stephenson refused to move when ordered, and called a passing policeman to arbitrate. The affair is to be thrashed out fully in court.

HANFORD, March 14.—At a mass meeting of water users held in this city at the call of the heads of the three big ditch companies supplying Kings river water to irrigators, Charles King was selected to represent this division of the Kings river water control and the conservation district on the legislative committee which will plan for the creation of the conservation district. J. H. Dawson, C. M. Blowers, Stiles McLaughlin and William N. Stratton were selected to serve [illegible] King, if he needs assistance, in determining legislation which will best safeguard the interests of the water users of this district.

In a short time R. Mills will call a meeting of the landowners in the Tulare Lake district to be held in Lemore and similar action to that taken here today will at that meeting be taken.

RUMOR OF CRISIS SHOCKS EXCHANGE

Securities Sell Freely, Until Reports Are Proved Unwarranted.

NEW YORK, March 14.—Wall street felt a distinct shock early in the week from the excitement following the recovery of the body of Clemente Vergara from Mexican soil, a shock that it did not entirely recover from. Operators sold securities freely, believing that a new Mexican crisis was at hand. When it was learned that there was nothing in the situation to warrant such a belief very little buying of the securities thus sold followed and the market suffered.

The Interstate Commerce Commission's charges against the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul seemed to have a slightly depressing effect this week, despite reassuring statements from President Earling. An attack upon the Pennsylvania by Clifford Thorne, chairman of the Iowa state railroad commission, helped depress railroad issues, the operators taking the view that these assaults might have effect in preventing the roads from obtaining the requested increase in freight rates.

Routine news was of more bullish cast, but was overlooked for the most part or [illegible] ures.

COAL IS DISCOVERED.

WALNUT CREEK, March 14.—F. W. Johnstone of Walnut Creek on Tuesday filed a notice in Martinez of the location of a vein of coal which he discovered near Glorietta on February 16. The claim extends 7500 feet and is 1200 feet wide.

TELLS OF LOCAL UNEMPLOYED MEN

The Woodyard Superintendent Tells of Quest for Occupations.

That there are at the present time many unemployed in the city, most of them really in need of work, is the statement of W. S. Goodrich, superintendent of the Oakland municipal woodyard who, in his report for February, declares that labor conditions, practically unchanged in the past month, still leave many men out of employment. Of these, they mostly really seek work, he declares.

The report is as follows:

"Labor conditions have not changed [illegible] unemployed and more 'underemployed.' As we have but little factory labor here, most of our out-of-works belong to commerce, building trade, lumbering and construction groups. Until lumbering and construction work are under way again, we shall have to depend on haying, harvesting and fruit picking to absorb our idle men. It has been stated that men can get work if they are willing to take it. I can speak only from my personal experience, and that is that men will work for almost any wage whatever.

"I have yet to force an able-bodied [illegible] ing work—it being a rule here that if a man is offered work that he can do at [illegible] he must take it or leave. In two years, just one man has refused work at fair conditions and he was some sort of a dope fiend and not properly an unemployed but an 'unemployable.' Many of the men, it is true, will not work for cut wages, but for this it seems to me, they should be commended and not censured. This is the general opinion of social workers and political economists."

WHEAT GAINS ON CHICAGO MARKET

Little Needed for Export, But Price Still Stays High.

CHICAGO, March 14.—Wheat gained [illegible]c for May and [illegible]c for July futures, despite the fact that there was little wanted for export demand and reports of the condition of the winter crop were highly favorable.

The government report on wheat reserves, issued as the market closed Saturday, is the factor that upheld prices all week. Traders expect the official figures to show much more wheat on the farms and there was a sharp upward [illegible] ket opened Monday. [illegible] in the northwestern primary markets were another encouraging feature from the bull standpoint.

Corn advanced ¼c and 1⅜c for July, for about the same reason that was behind the strength in wheat. On Monday the government report on reserves was given a small bearish interpretation, but corn traders later took the view that the east would soon be demanding more supplies and prices advanced on that theory.

[illegible] report on reserves was construed as distinctly bearish. Only the display of [illegible] real break in oat prices.

Provisions closed the week with prices changed, the average being about 5 cents below the last week's closing prices. Provisions futures moved largely in sympathy with the hog market all week.

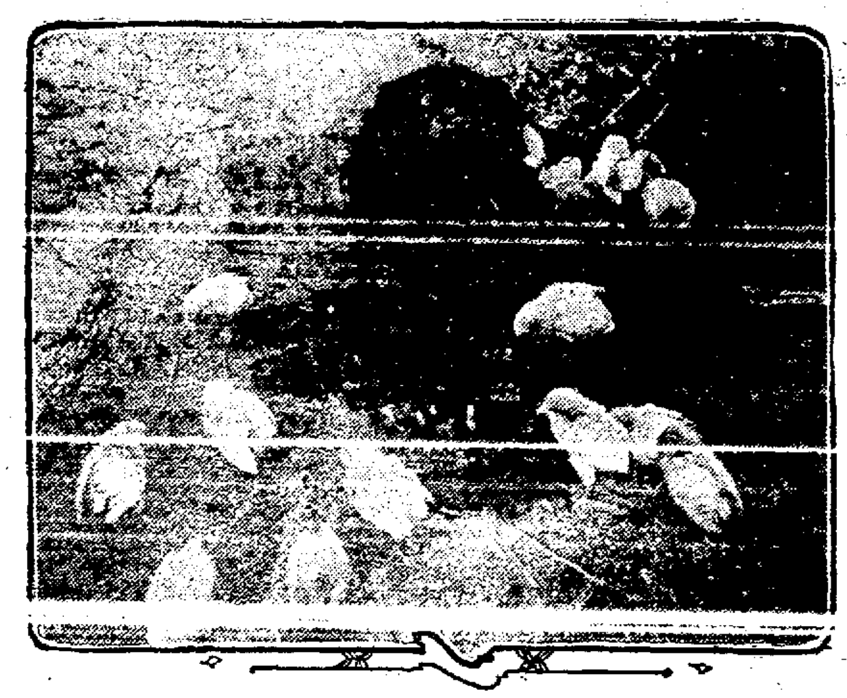
Hen's Teeth Missing, but-- Mama Towser Has Them



THESE ARE THE ALAMEDA CHICKS AND THEIR CANINE FOSTER MOTHER. THE ADOPTED BROOD IS LEARNING TO PLAY LIKE PUPPIES.

Few chickens ever had a mother with teeth—if the proverb regarding the scarcity of dental appendages on hens is true. A brood owned by [illegible] Central avenue, Alameda, however, can boast a real mamma with real teeth—but this time it's a dog and not a hen. Of course, it's all right when mamma refrains from grabbing one in a hurry by mistake, and the teeth are good protection from hawks or small boys. This particplar dog is as good a nurse as a real hen, and the happy family is one of the sights of Alameda.

The brood of chickens was adopted by [illegible] after they emerged from an incubator. Fido observed the motherless brood, decided that she had no children of her own, and proceeded to act as the chicks' protector. The chicks play with their foster mother much as puppies do, leap on her back and attempt to fly off, and otherwise disport themselves. Both seem to enjoy it.

SPENT 22 YEARS IN DEATH VALLEY

H. H. McVaughaen Returns to Bakersfield Home to Find Things Changed.

LOS ANGELES, March 14.—Henry H. M'Vaughaen has returned to his Bakersfield home after twenty-two years in Death Valley, where for all that time he has been out of touch with civilization. The world around him, which has consisted of a sandy waste, hills and such reptiles and animals as Death Valley provides, has stood still, the world he left has gone ahead faster in the twenty-two years in a material way than it had in a century before.

Upon arriving, McVaughaen found how far behind the procession he had been left. He walked around town to look up his old friends. He used to be the village blacksmith and knew nearly everyone.

He thought at first he recognized a white horse he used to shoe and went up to it with pleasure, but upon coming closer he found it had a black mark above the left eye. He went along disconsolately.

Soon the great changes interested rather than depressed him. He experienced the sensation, despite his 75 years and twenty-two of them out of the world, of becoming a modern.

GOOD NECK STRETCHING.

"I never saw a skyscraper before," he said. "They tell me I wouldn't know Los Angeles it has grown up into the air so. I'm going down there and give my neck a good stretching looking up at them.

"What strikes me queerest, though, is the women. They don't look like women any more. When I went to the desert women had a lot of cloth in their skirts. They had curved hips and little waists, and it was only natural to suppose that was the way women were.

"But upon looking around me now I find they ain't that way at all. I can't figure out what's happened to them; they upset my ideas of what a woman should look like. Now out on the desert we have Indian squaws, and while they ain't very much for shape, nevertheless, they sort of remind you of what a female form divine might appear like. I suppose it must be the fashions.

IMPRESSED BY SUFFRAGETTE.

"The first thing I hear when I came out of the desert was a woman banging on something with her fist and saying the Government ain't run right and the women were going to fix it. 'As I'm a citizen of this sovereign State,' she says, 'and with the power of the ballot vested in me there's got to be a change.'

"I expected to see the men either look disgusted at this or give her the ha! ha! and in my day that language would have made the ordinary woman faint. 'What,' say I, 'does this mean?' 'Mean,' says she, looking stern, 'it means that the day of the woman has arrived.'

"I didn't know what she meant then, but I do now. I haven't felt so meek since my mother took me across her knee."

"In her twenty-two years," he continued, "I have seen five white women. They came through with their husbands, who were prospectors. Mostly there were Indians out there."

McVaughaen left Bakersfield in 1892, the day after the election. His wife had then recently died. He made a vow that he would not return until he had made his fortune. He says he struck it rich in Death Valley and now has plenty.

HOUSE OCCUPIED BY 3 STRIKE BREAKERS FIRED

WELLSBURG, W. Va., March 14.—Disorders growing out of the strike of the employes in the West Virginia coal fields prompted officials today to take additional measures to preserve the peace. Five armed negroes said to be strike-breakers, were arrested here Thursday night after a riot and a house occupied by three strike-breakers near the La Belle Mine was fired by unknown parties and burned. Shooting and cutting affrays have been frequent and the mine property is heavily guarded.

RAILWAY PROBING FISHER'S MURDER

PEORIA Ill., March 14.—Aided by agents of the Chicago and Northwestern and Chicago, Rock Island Pacific Railways, authorities attempted today to gain some information on the motives and identity of the four men who killed Arthur Fisher, an engineer, and wounded several other men near Manlius, Illionis. The proceedings were in the form of an inquest over the body of one of the robbers, who died last night at Spring Valley, whither he was taken after being wounded by a posse of farmers and deputies.

Thus far efforts to get the other three men to talk or to obtain information concerning them from laborers in railroad construction camps at Manlius, Langley and Sheffield have met with failure. The culprits are thought to be Mexicans, as several score of that nationality have been working in the camps, but questioning of these workmen has brought no information, and the three prisoners' silence has ben unbroken.

A dozen Mexican laborers have been rounded up by the county authorities and detained in jail at Princeton as witnesses.

THREE-CENT TRICK IN RUSSIA YIELDS 75c HERE

COLUMBUS, O., March 14.—A cat of unknown value, property of Mrs. John Nelson, 650 Kelton avenue, was the object of unusual attentions that might have cost a large sum of money under other circumstances.

Pussy had climbed to the top of a tall telegraph pole and refused all invitations to return to terra firma. When the telegraph company was importuned for aid, they had no lineman to spare. Sam Bender, 16, a messenger boy, volunteered and went to the place shinned up the pole, firmly, but gently removed the cat and dropped it into a shawl, obligingly held below. He was given 75 cents for his trouble.

There were no foot rests on the pole and the boy went up hand-over-hand. Steeple jacks who perform such services are often paid large sums of money. On his way up Bender found his shoes were a hindrance and while he held on with one hand, he loosened and took off his shoes with the other. He says that in Russia, where he came from, he frequently performed such tricks for the sum of 3 cents.

GETS THE HOOK; FOOLS UNDERTAKER

NEW YORK, March 14.—Mike Reilly "is a man that's spoken of highly." He doesn't loll about on any bathing beach. Perhaps he never wore a bathing suit, and his shoulders are not tanned to a rich mahogany shade. Neither does he continue his activities to the warm summer months. But all the same, Mike has saved ten drowning persons in two years. He does not dive for the people he rescues—he pulls 'em out of the water with a hook. All he has to do is to lie awake at night and listen for the splash. Then Mike gets the hook and fools the undertaker.

Reilly, with a flock of bright daughters, inhabits a house boat moored at Pier 4, East River. The Reilly house boat is named the Ritz-Carlton, and by some twist of fate it is the "Ritz-Carlton" pier that is chosen by a lot of folk who, either by misfortune or accident take early morning plunges into the oily topped waters of East River. Reilly is an electrician who some three years ago solved the high rent problem, at least to his own satisfaction, by buying a canal boat and mooring it to Pier 4, paying wharfage instead of rent.

During the first months of his house boating existence, Reilly made no note of the unfortunates he saved from quitting life by the all-water route. But in 1911 Reilly's life saving business grew so monotonous that he got interested in the thing, and began keeping a diary of rescues. Since that time he has pulled ten persons from the water with his boat hook. His observation shows that most people who seek to die by drowning try it around the witching hour of 2 a. m. This is in accord with some scientists who declare that around an hour or two after midnight life is at its lowest ebb and the soul nearest to quitting the body. Reilly agrees with that theory.

The Reilly procedure in life saving is very simple. It consists mainly in keeping a sharp ear to windward during the wee sma' hours of the night for then it is that the cries of those who accidentally or purposely fall into the water are oftenest heard. Experience has taught the volunteer life saver that plenty of ropes looped at handy points about his house help some. To this equipment Reilly has added a life ring and a boat hook with a long staff. It is this last that is most effective in dragging near victims from the river.

Thus far, Reilly has met with little resistance from those he has brought back to safety. Most of them, Reilly says, have imbibed too freely and "much too much." The strangest man Reilly ever saved was one who immediately crawled under the pier, and neither threats nor promises could coax him out until a policeman summoned by Reilly threatened to shoot.

Excerpts from Reilly's diary are interesting by reason of the naive comments on the personalities of the rescued. Of one he wrote:

"He was an Englishman. He was drunk. He had had a fight with the engineer of a tug tied to Pier 4. After the fight he sat on the string piece and finally he fell overboard. He was ploughing around in the water and having an awful time, but no one took pity on him. He used very bad language. There were several boatmen on the dock, and apparently they thought a little ducking would do him good. Therefore, they did not start any rescue work for some time. Then there were so many suggestions made that he went down for the second time. By this time I happened on the scene. When he was going down for the proverbial third time, I got the hook of my pike pole in his jacket and pulled him up."

Another entry tells of a German, full of "bier" who fell off the dock and was pulled out by Reilly and another man. The Teuton was allowed to sleep on the deck of Ritz-Carlton until the next 9 a. m., when he was "ordered ashore."

Another rescued man was a half-drowned ship's carpenter, who came up with a corn cob pipe still in his mouth, "looking for all the world," says the diary, "like a man who had been enjoying a comfortable smoke."

Patrick Kelly, of Jersey City, captain of a sand scow was once fished out of the river by Reilly, who says in his diary:

"All he could say was, 'Captain, I am thankful to you and if we never meet again on earth, we will surely meet in heaven.' That's better than all the medals in the world."

MEASLES KILLING OFF ALASKANS AT KODIAK

SEATTLE, March 14.—A special cable to the Post-Intelligencer from Valdez, Alaska, says that Deputy United States Marshal Carl Armstrong at Kodiak telegraphed to Marshal Brenneman at Valdez that ten more deaths from measles have occurred at Afognak, making a total of twenty deaths on that island.

Armstrong added that every family but his own and one other at Kodiak report one or more cases of measles. More than 100 deaths have occurred to date in the infected district, which includes Kodiak and Afognak islands.

The revenue cutter Tacoma, which was dispatched from Seattle with medical supplies and physicians November 13, has not arrived yet and medical assistance is badly needed. Most of the afflicted are natives.

NOW TIRED OF WATCHFUL WAITING

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 14—President Wilson up to this time has been given a free hand in Mexico by congress. For months Republican members of both the Senate and House have patriotically refrained from criticising the chief executive. It is beginning to be realized, however, that the administration's policy of "watchful waiting" has been a failure and that silence can no longer be maintained. It is generally conceded that a grave mistake was made when the Presi- [illegible] ognize Huerta, for that moment the nations of the world decreed that upon the United States government full responsibility must rest.

While the sentiment of congress is unquestionably against intervention a policy is demanded that will offer protection to the lives and property of American citizens. Special Representative John Lind is still in Mexico watching and waiting.

a recent speech in the House expressed a growing sentiment in congress when he declared:

"[illegible] we have been watching and waiting. Watching light go out in many a home, watching the [illegible] of [illegible], watching [illegible] sending in arms with which to accomplish it. Watching while women were [illegible], children destroyed, men murdered and houses [illegible] watching while the appealing eyes of our own flesh and blood were turned toward us for help. Waiting for what? For Huerta to resign? For a constitutional government to arise from the ashes and blood of Mexico? For Villa or Carranza [illegible] to free their names from the [illegible] which the recording angel has placed against them? Watchfully waiting while the widow of Benton visits the open grave of her murdered husband, deprived of even the poor comfort of taking with her his mutilated remains. The policy of watching-waiting is a policy of deadly drifting."

DEADLY DRIFTING.

Representative Kahn of California in discussing the army bill said:

"The policy of 'watchful waiting' has turned out to be a policy of 'deadly drifting.' The fact that it became necessary to issue a proclamation removing the embargo [illegible] into Mexico is practically an admission of the failure of the policy of 'watchful waiting.' Since the embargo has been removed what has happened? Additional murder, additional lawlessness for which we are probably responsible."

It is believed here that the President's predicament has forced him to offer up the Panama canal as a sacrifice to obtain an endorsement by Great Britain of his Mexican [illegible] waiting." This has incensed many members of congress who declare that such an attempted abject surrender of American rights is indefensible.

KNOWLAND'S FIND EMBARRASSING.

In this connection the President has been greatly embarrassed by the publication of a speech made by him during the presidential campaign to 2500 farmers at Washington Park, New Jersey, in favor of free tolls for American coastwise ships and against the domination of the canal by transcontinental railroads. This speech was brought to light by Congressman Knowland of California and printed in the Congressional Record, creating a profound stir throughout the country. The then candidate for President no doubt having in mind the Democratic platform, which contained a provision for free tolls and against railroad domination, said in closing his address to the New Jersey farmers:

"Our platform is not molasses to catch flies. It means business. It means what it says. Gentlemen who talk one way and vote another are going to be retired to very quiet and private retreat."

JAPANESE QUESTION.

For years Democratic politicians in California have declared that when the Democratic party came into power a Japanese exclusion law would be promptly enacted. From one end of California to the other Bourbon orators have criticised the party in power because of its failure to enact such a law. During the present session of congress several exclusion bills were introduced. Representative Hayes reintroduced his measure of last session, and Representative Raker likewise proposed a bill. During the consideration of the immigration bill by the House committee an attempt was made to ingraft an Asiatic exclusion provision, but it was strenuously opposed. To mollify the Californians it was vaguely hinted that a special bill might later be reported from the immigration committee, although everyone familiar with conditions here knew that this was a most remote possibility. The immigration bill as finally reported contained no exclusion provision.

When the bill came up on the floor of the House under general debate Congressman Curry of California opened up the discussion by declaring:

"I very much regret that the committee did not see its way clear to include the exclusion of Asiatics and Hindus in the measure. The question is not so well understood in the east as it is in the west. The Pacific coast is the frontier between Occidental and Oriental civilization."

HAYES OFFERS AMENDMENT.

Representative Hayes of California, a member of the committee on immigration, offered an amendment excluding "Hindus and all persons of the Mongolian or yellow races, the Malay or brown race."

Congressman Knowland of California in supporting the amendment declared:

"This will be the only opportunity during this session of congress for the House to vote upon an Asiatic exclusion measure." He read a letter from Secretary of Labor Wilson to the immigration committee in which the cabinet officer proclaimed it to be the inherent and constitutional right of congress to pass an Asiatic exclusion law. "I understand," continued Knowland, "that the head of another department of this great government, the state department, sent a letter to the committee on the same day taking an opposite position, and preventing action. It would appear as if an attempt was being made to play both ends against the middle."

KNOWLAND QUOTES PLATFORM.

Referring to Bryan's attempt to prevent Japanese legislation, Knowland quoted from the Democratic platform of 1900 upon which Bryan ran, and the platform of 1908, when he was also a candidate, which platforms both declared for Asiatic exclusion.

Congressman J. I. Nolan of San Francisco also favored the amendment. Representative Lenroot of Wisconsin offered an amendment to the Hayes amendment, which was carried by a vote of 111 to 90. The chairman of the committee then moved that the House adjourn, fearing that the Hayes amendment as amended would pass. According to the Washington papers, a conference of Democratic leaders was held that evening and the next morning the exclusion amendment was voted down. Thus was the Democratic party placed squarely on record against Japanese exclusion, a record which will prove extremely embarrassing during the coming campaign.

BABIES COO WELCOME TO GUESTS

HERE IS $15,000 WORTH OF BABIES—ABBOT KINNEY, FOUNDER OF VENICE AND HIS GRANDCHILDREN, MARGARET KINNEY AND ABBOTT KINNEY II.

VENICE, March 14.—Amid gurgles of delight and cooing, interspersed with vigorous squalls from the male member of the guest list, the two latest heirs to the Kinney fortunes met at an infant party at the home of Abbott Kinney, 16 Park avenue. Miss Margaret Kinney, aged six months, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Innes Kinney, for the first time viewed her cousin, Abbott Kinney, the Second, son of Mr. and Mrs Sherwood Kinney.

Miss Margaret's impressions of her cousin were recorded in several cooing seances. Abbot Kinney, the Second, with superior wisdom of his five weeks on this sphere, reserved his opinion of his cousin, but from the few smiles with which he favored the guests it is presumed she was wholly pleasing to his gaze.

The proudest person present was Abbot Kinney, founder of Venice, who seemed to take great delight in holding the infants. Both youngsters were started on the road to fortune shortly after their arrival here. Mr Kinney settled $5000 on his grandaughter and to his grandson he gave $10,000.

The two children, according to Abbot Kinney, are to be brought up as true children of Southern California—in the open air. Miss Margaret resides on the big Kinney estate back of Pasadena in the foothills of the Sierra Madre.

Abbot Kinney, the Second, first saw the light of the day on the shores of the Pacific and a day does not pass that he is not treated to a ride along the broadwalk. Mr and Mrs Sherwood Kinney are residents of Venice.

The party this afternoon was wholly informal and designed to give the two cousins an opportunity to meet. The party closed with a dinner, to which the infant honored guests were not invited.

12-YEAR-OLD AIDS HER FATHER BECOME CITIZEN

CHICAGO, March 14.—Martha Hovyczny, 12 years old, who hopes to grow up and be an ardent suffragette some day, helped her father to become a citizen before Judge Goodwin in the superior court today. The little girl stood alongside her father as he sat in the witness chair being questioned as to his qualifications to become naturalized, and his daughter acted as interpreter.

Her father, Stephen Hovyczny, 43 years old, 413 North Desplaines street, was able to speak English slightly in answer to the questions on government and citizenship.

"I taught my father all of these answers," the little girl confided to Judge Goodwin, when the court had passed favorably upon the application. "I took the little book with all the information in it and spent three nights last week explaining it to him."

"You seem to be a very competent little girl," said Judge Goodwin smiling.

"Now judge I want a letter from you so my teacher will excuse me for absence from school this morning," said the little girl as she stepped up on the witness stand.

Judge Goodwin then wrote out an explanation and gave it to her.

LONELY DOG RECOVERS WHEN GERMAN IS SPOKEN

SPOKANE, March 14.—Partly for lack of a master who could speak German, partly because of illness, and partly because the gay life of the stage had been exchanged for quietness of a kennel at the humane barns, August, a tan and white fox terrier, had a fit of dog "blues," out of which he has but recently emerged. August played the role of the policeman in "Dog Town," a comedy staged by a troupe of 30 canines at a local theater some months ago, and because humane friends insisted he was left in Spokane when the troupe had finished the engagement.

The whole canine troupe played parts without the appearance on the stage of a human being, taking cues from a prompter behind the curtain, and portraying in humanly dog fashion the activities of a village. As the policeman August was forced to walk upright, and the four strenuous years of his histrionic career had brought on almost complete paralysis of the legs. He, together with a fox terrier mate and a beautiful silver-gray Eskimo, were found by Dr. J. J. Stratton, a local veterinary, to be in a pitiable condition, suffering from overwork, mange and other disorders. The trio were withdrawn from the troupe. The other two recovered and have been given to local people.

For a long time August moped in his kennel, refusing to notice other dogs and declining to get acquainted with any of his English-speaking keepers. Never a word of English could he understand, and English syllables made him cower and look up pitifully, as though expecting punishment.

Human Officer Joe Rudersdorf took August out for a walk, discovered that August understands German words, and the latter has "perked up" wonderfully. His appreciation is so marked that Mr. Rudersdorf has decided to take him as often as possible for more practice in German and afternoon strolls.

HUNGRY CROWS KILL SPARROW-HUNTING CAT

NEW YORK, March 14—Fuzzy-Wu, a small parti-colored Japanese cat, which had been presented recently by a friend returning from the Orient to Ralph Marion, owner of a farm in the Christian Hook section of Oceanside, L. I., wandered a short distance from the farmhouse and was stalking sparrows when a flock of hungry crows descended on it.

The leader of the crows swooped like a hawk on the cat, attacking with talons, wings and beak. Fuzzy-Wu tried to run away, but crows swarmed in from all directions.

From his house Marion saw the big black birds flapping their wings a few feet above the ground and then darting awkwardly downward. When he approached them the flock took flight, cawing angrily and leaving on the ground the remains of the Japanese cat.

Hunger, increased by the cold spell, is believed to have been the motive of the crows, which normally are content with worms, insects and grain.

OAKLAND STYLE SHOW PRAISED

J. P. BURKE.

Well Known Merchandise Expert Compliments Oakland Merchants.

"The Oakland merchants deserve a great deal of credit for the great style show just ended. In all my travels I don't believe I have ever seen a better showing of styles, than was shown here Thursday, Friday and Saturday. I personally believe that not even the New York stores could have made any better showing than did our local merchants. If any woman neglected to take advantage of the great show she ought to be pitied, for those that did see the show of the different stores are now in a position to pick the up-to-the-minute styles. I was indeed pleased," said Burke, "that this show took place at this time, for closing the Paris Cloak & Suit House, puts me in a position when I open the doors Wednesday morning to sell out this beautiful stock to put the styles that are up-to-the-minute, within the reach of all. Those who have visited this store during its style show will know as well as I do, that this stock is second to none in Oakland. Now I believe it is the duty of every woman, whether married or single, but especially if married, to make her dollar go as far as possible, and I will assure you that I will help her to accomplish that end. I have been asked several times since coming to Oakland, why stocks were put in my charge. I could probably go into details that would take up hours of your time and mine, explaining why. However to make it brief I can say, I take the same place in the commercial world that the Doctor does in the medical world. If a member of your family was ill you would send for the family physician. Well, if a merchant finds that he is in depressed circumstances he sends for me, and it is always understood that the prices are up to me. Therefore I wish to assure you that if you have that Easter dress, suit, coat or waist, in mind, I will make that dream come true, for Wednesday at ten a. m. I will open the doors of the Paris Cloak & Suit House, just across from Capwell's, placing the prices of this beautiful stock within the reach of all.

ASHES OF SOCKS NEW DRINK CURE

Winfield Spiritualist, Who Was Exposed, Made Some Easy Kansas Money.

WICHITA, Kas., March 14.—Ashes made by burning castoff socks, properly manipulated by a spiritualistic medium, are said to have been administered to a hundred men and some women in Wichita to cure them of certain ailments and habits. Among the afflictions for which the ashes of socks decoction is recommended are the tobacco habit, the liquor habit and the affinity foolishness in men or women.

Half a teaspoonful of the ashes from hosiery sprinkled in the shoes of a wayward husband or wife was guaranteed to bring them back to the path of rectitude. The occasional use of a similar potion promised to keep them there.

CURE DRINK HABIT.

A small pinch of the ashes in the bottle of a drinking man was a sure cure for the liquor habit, and stirred into the coffee on the sly in the morning it would break the most stubborn tobacco habit.

The one who prescribed this remarkable remedy and the chemist by whose skill it was prepared was none other than the spiritualistic medium, Mrs. Mary G. Shaw, who recently was exposed during a trumpet seance at Winfield.

Mrs. Shaw lived at Wichita a short time not long ago and so ingratiated herself into the affections of many persons here that they actually believed she could impart to the ashes of unlaundered socks all the potency she claimed for them. They gladly brought her pairs of hosiery formerly worn by husbands, sons or wives and paid $2 to $5 each for the magic cure.

This remedy was prepared by Mrs. Shaw in her rooms over 147 North Main street. The ceremony is said to have been exceedingly impressive. Standing with closed eyes and disheveled locks over a red hot stove on which the defunct hosiery was slowly being incinerated, this modern seeress presented a sight to awe gods and men. With the perspiration streaming down her face and her trembling hands slowly waving over the burning footwear, this renowned exponent of spiritual sockery in a droning, monotonous voice impregnated the ashes with a subtle, supernatural energy which she declared that no human being could withstand.

Day after day persons were seen to visit her rooms, carrying small packages. They wore a worried but expectant look on their faces and always went away apparently hopeful and happy. They had gone in lugging soiled socks and left carrying the little wad of precious ashes which Mrs Mary G. had "spiritualized."

There are dozens of such persons in Wichita who are minus one or more pairs of hosiery but who are averse to making any public statements about it because in the light of common sense they now see how ridiculous it was. Most of these persons were women and most of the women were those who could least afford to buy the sock cure at the cost of a perfectly good but soiled pair of socks and $5.

TESTIMONIAL FROM ONE.

It is said that Mrs. Shaw administered sock ashes to many persons in Winfield, but so far as known not one person has been found who will say that the remedy had any beneficial effect.

It is said that there is such a demand here for the sock ashes cure that some of Mrs. Shaw's adherents have learned "her sock cure secret," and are even now engaged in preparing ashes of socks for anxious and gullible wives and mothers. One of the persons who tried some of the ashes says it is almost enough to make one swear off from all his bad habits in sheer self-defense. Drinking a spoonful of old socks in his coffee at breakfast every morning, after paying $5 for the pleasure, is not the most pleasant thing to start the day on.

ROCKY ROCKING CHAIRS CAUSE FOR DIVORCE SUIT

PITTSBURG, March 14.—Declaring that she could no longer live with her husband because there were no rocking chairs in the house in which she could find comfort, Mrs Hazel Grayson brought suit against John Grayson.

Mrs. Grayson declared that her husband is lazy and that the only thing he can or will do is drive motorcars, at that she says, he is an expert.

Even though she has repeatedly begged him to have the rocking chairs in their home made fit for her, Mrs. Grayson declares he has failed to do so, and in consequence every rocker in their home rocks "two different ways," and she wants a divorce.

TELLS COURT HER WORK IS BEARING CHILDREN

NEW YORK, March 14.—When John Palmieri, counsel for Mrs Rebecca Cohen, who is being sued for divorce, asked Sadie Rothman, a witness for the defense, what her business is everybody in the courtroom got a surprise.

"My business," said Mrs. Rothman, serenely, "is that of having children."

Justice Blanchard inquired Mrs. Rothman's meaning.

"Sure, judge," she said, "I have four children already, soon I hope to have another."

TRAFFIC IN TITLES FOR PARTY FUNDS

Former Member of Parliament Makes Revelations Regarding Commercialized Honor.

LONDON, March 14.—"Percy Holden Illingworth, sole agent for the sale of British titles. Peerages supplied at shortest notice. Terms reasonable. Satisfaction guaranteed. Write or call for price list. Address, House of Commons, or the Treasury, Whitehall, London." Such is an appropriate business card suggested for the chief government whip, as the result of startling revelations regarding the trafficking in honors made by Thomas Gibson Bowles, former member of Parliament for King's Lynn. Bowles isn't attacking Illingworth personally, but he is denouncing the system that makes it one of the recognized duties of the Parliamentary [illegible] whip, as the job is popularly termed, to see that the recipients of titles contribute liberally to the party war chest.

HOW TITLES ARE GRANTED.

When the king periodically grants to certain of his subjects the right to attach handles to their names he does not act on his own initiative—that is, rarely. The lists are prepared by the Prime Minister after consultation with the other party leaders—particularly the chief whip. Once in a great while the king adds a name or scratches one from the list, but usually he simply O. K.'s those placed before him. That donations to the party funds are customary for those seeking these so-called royal honors has long been known, but few have been able to get at the working of the system as Bowles has done. Formerly a Conservative, he turned Liberal some years ago, and has now become a thorn in the sides of both the big parties, for he knows intimately the weaknesses of both. He does not allege that the Liberals are any worse now in this respect than the Conservatives were when they held the reins, but he has thoroughly aroused the British public by his charges.

PRICE OF HONORS VARIES.

The price of honors varies, according to the ambition, power and suitability—or more pertinently, unsuitability—of the applicant. A capable man with a fair public record can obtain a peerage reasonably cheap, but the "impossible" parvenu has to come across heavily for even an humble knighthood. Bowles declares that one man had to pay $250,000 for a baronetcy recently, and three others who received peerages were compelled to contribute $2,000,000, $1,000,000 and $750,000 respectively. But they were, of course, of the "impossible" type, particularly the holder of the two million dollar coronet. A knighthood ordinarily costs from $25,000 to $50,000, while the latter figure will generally obtain a baronetcy—the hereditary "Sir"—for a presentable man. Bowles tells of one politician who complained of the unnecessary delay in the gazetting of a promised baronetcy, whereupon a friend connected with the whip's office bluntly told him that he could not expect a baronetcy unless he "planked down the money." The aspirant at first refused, but later on he was given his baronetcy, and the friend in offering congratulations asked whether he had had to pay anything. "Yes, damn them," was the reply, "they drew me for $50,000." Another instance is related of a candidate for a peerage, who, when he put his claims before the whip, received the usual hint that a handsome party contribution would be expected. The applicant frankly said he "couldn't see it," and later he received a communication from the whip expressing regret that his undoubted claims to a peerage could not then be considered. In reply the candidate gently suggested that if he wasn't included in the next list of birthday honors he would publish the correspondence. When the list appeared his name led all the rest.

HIS LIFE IS PENALTY FOR TERRIBLE DEED

SAN FRANCISCO, March 14.—James Dakus, the sailor who in a fit of jealousy shot Miss Martha Boltze, who had repudiated her contract marriage with him, died this afternoon at the Central Emergency Hospital. He failed to rally from the effects of a gunshot wound in the head, which he inflicted after he had pumped four bullets into the body of his victim.

Miss Boltze, a dressmaker, 26 years old, was removed from the Central Emergency Hospital to the German Hospital this afternoon. It is believed that she will pull through.

Quickest Relief Known For All Sore Feet

The following is absolutely the surest and quickest cure known to science for all foot ailments: "Dissolve two tablespoonfuls of Calocide compound in a basin of warm water. Soak the feet in this for full fifteen minutes, gently rubbing the sore parts." The effect is really wonderful. All soreness goes instantly; the feet feel so good you could sing for joy. Corns and callouses can be peeled right off. It gives immediate relief for sore bunions, sweaty, smelly and aching feet. A twenty-five cent box of Calocide is said to be sufficient to cure the worst feet. It works through the pores and removes the cause of the trouble. Don't waste time on uncertain remedies. Any druggist has this compound in stock or he can get it in a few hours from his wholesale house. It is not a patent medicine but is [illegible] preparation. Medical Formula [illegible] of Chicago.

'DON'T KNOW WHY I MARRIED' BRIDE OF 23 DAYS NOW SUING

Mrs. Marion Parsons, who says that other woman shattered her dream of love.

LOS ANGELES, Mar. 14.—"I don't know why I married him in the first place, but on Thursday, my "Jonah Day," he met the other woman and then it was all over."

So declares Mrs. Marion Hueno Parsons, bride of only twenty-three days and now suing her husband for divorce and Mrs. Helene Blanche Fisher, wife of a millionaire New York theatrical man, for $25,000 for alleged alienation of her husband's affections. With one breath she says she never loved her husband, that he never loved her—and with the next that Mrs. Fisher ruined her life. Mrs. Fisher declares she is being sued purely as a business proposition.

Mrs. Parsons is but 20 years of age. At the home of her parents, 733 South Coronado street, she told of the affairs leading up to the divorce action and her return home.

"I do not know what made me marry Carlton Parsons," said Mrs. Parsons. "I did not really love him. I [illegible] me. In fact, I know now that he did not.

NOT LOVE AT SIGHT.

"A little over a year and a half ago I met Carlton in my father's office. It was not a case of love at first sight. Whenever I went downtown somehow I always seemed to meet him. We became very good friends. Later there seldom was a day that he and I did not attend the matinee, or in the evening a dance. I had no thought of marrying. [illegible] mentioned the Fisher woman to me. We were happy together. I felt then that I did not love him, and even told him so. He laughed at me and said I would soon learn.

"He had two machines and spent money recklessly. Finally he asked me to marry him. I hesitated, and then consented. The wedding was set for December 8. Then he told me he had loved another woman. I did not pay any attention to it, as he said that he had forgotten her in his love for me.

"MY JONAH DAY."

"On Thursday, December 4—I known now that Thursday is my Jonah day—Carlton 'phoned and asked me to hurry downtown and that we were to be married immediately. I do not know why I did it—but I went. I had planned a big wedding but I seemed to forget everything. We were married alone.

"That day I thought I loved him enough to be his wife. I know now that I couldn't have.

"The day after our wedding Carlton met Mrs. Fisher. I do not know what happened. That night he came home and cried like a child. For two days he stayed at home, locked in his room crying bitterly. He told me he could not bear to tell her the truth.

"At that very moment the little love I had for him left me. He was no longer the object of my love, my husband, but a stranger to me.

SENT HIM PRESENTS

"He would talk of Mrs. Fisher constantly. When I questioned him he told me I could not understand. She sent him presents. He hung them about the room. He was not afraid for me to know. He would take me on his lap and read her letters aloud to me. They were sickeningly sentimental. I knew I could stand it no longer.

"Then he disappeared. He had left for San Francisco to visit Mrs. Fisher. His mother brought him back. His mother pleaded for forgiveness for her son. I took him back and we started life again at his mother's home.

"He was insanely jealous. He still communicated with Mrs Fisher. It became unbearable. On January 10 I left him.

"If everything had continued the way I thought it would when I married I would have been very happy now. I do not know why I stood it so long. I did not love him, but something kept telling me he was my husband, that things would come right in the end. I bear no ill feeling toward him, only I can never even live with him again. My love, my life, my hope have been killed."

READY TO BEGIN TOURNEY REGIME

Painstaking Preparation Is to Be Made by Bowling Clubs of Oakland.

Twenty-eight active members of the Oakland Scottish Bowling Club figured in the Lakeside Park green yesterday afternoon. Sixteen of these have been chosen to represent the organization in the coming annual competition for the right to hold the Etter perpetual challenge cup, which has been in the possession of the San Francisco Scottish Bowling Club for three or more years. These sixteen constitute the four teams that will be lined up against a similar number of San Francisco teams in the cup contests arranged for the first Saturdays in May, June and August.

This year every week each member in the four teams will play in the place assigned to him in the cup matches. They will play against one another in the order and under the regulations governing the cup contests, each man working only two bowls. His system of training is expected to produce satisfactory results.

Yesterday afternoon the cup teams were lined up in competition in the following order:

'HOBOES' HOME' IS NOW BUT MEMORY

Niles Landmark Gone; Career of Varied Fortunes is at End.

NILES, March 14.—The old barn on Walpert's hill, which for years has been a favorite retreat for hoboes, was torn down this week.

"Diamond Palace," as it was familiarly called, was one of the prominent landmarks of this section. During the Dennis regime in Niles it sprang into fame with the words, "Watch Niles Grow—Population 1915, 10,000," painted all over it in big bold letters. As disaster followed disaster in the promotion schemes of that time, the sign became too sad a reminder during the "era of assessments," and a great sigh of relief went up when the sign was painted out—out into a welcome forgetfulness. No more could the Centerville wags paint the sign to read, "Watch Niles Growl." No more would the Niles boosters have to keep up a frenzied pace to take the brag out of the sign or amend it to 1925 instead of 1915. It is even with a greater sigh of relief that Niles people now see the old landmark removed from their sight forever and ever.

It may, however, cause a pang of pain to many a passing traveler, especially of the genus hobo, of whose numbers the local officials sometimes routed out a full score from under its protecting roof. To them it will prove a serious loss. Constable Rose, however, was an enthusiastic advocate of razing the barn after driving out 24 lodgers last Wednesday morning.

Another barn further down the hill and nearer the Walpert residence will be built.

G. [illegible], representing the Chamber of Commerce and George W. [illegible], of the Merchants' Association. There is to be a two-day celebration, the Fourth falling on Saturday.

FRUIT BUYER HELD FOR SUPERIOR COURT

MARYSVILLE, March 14.—Frank D. Walker, a former buyer for the California Fruit Buyers' Association in this city, who has been arrested on three separate complaints since December 16th for obtaining money under false pretenses from his employers, was held to answer in the Superior Court on all three charges following his preliminary examinations before Judge Morrissey in the justice court here today. The case against Walter Trefy, a local saloon man, who was supposed to be an accomplice in the fraudulent scheme of Walker, was dismissed for lack of sufficient evidence to secure a conviction, it was believed by the authorities.

Charles Douglass, who was arrested on a similar complaint as preferred against Walker, was held to answer in the higher court several weeks ago. All three men have been out on several thousand dollars' bail since their arrests.

According to the complaints, Walker, who became quite prominent in lodge circles here, swindled the company out of several hundred dollars through fake purchases of dried fruits and raisins. Accounts for the fruit were turned in by the agent and payment by checks authorized by the company, but when an inventory was made of the goods in the local warehouse it was found that several lots of fruit that had been paid for had never been received.

It was reported several times before the proceedings today that Walker had made a satisfactory settlement with the cannery people for the money fraudulently obtained and that the cases against the defendant would not be pressed, but whether or not these statements were of an authentic nature is not known.

JUST A LITTLE POOL GAME--ONLY DIFFERENT

SAN FRANCISCO, March 14.—The four men gathered in by the police in last night's raid on the Waldorf Club on Powell street appeared before Police Judge Shortall today. SAY FLOOD PROBLEM IS NOT TO BE DIFFICULT

WATSONVILLE, March 14.—A party consisting of County Supervisors Ralph Mattison, J. A. Harvey and S. C. Marcus, Division Engineer Phelps of the Southern Pacific and Charles Pioda, engineer for the narrow-gauge railroad, made a trip by small boat from a point near Chittenden to the mouth of the Pajaro river, with a view of determining what solution could be made of the problem of the floods that have become frequent along the [illegible] ners, the problem is not difficult of solution, and after viewing the existing conditions they stated that the straightening and widening of the river in several places and a system of levees at other spots would handle the floodwaters with ease. A mass meeting of the people affected will be held soon to determine on some definite action in the matter, and the work will probably be done under a protection district.

ATTORNEY'S FEES ARE AWARDED BY COURT

OROVILLE, March 14.—A case of particular interest to attorneys occupied the attention of Judge Murphy, sitting in extra session of the Superior Court, when the estate of John Bruce, deceased, was called, and in which C. L. Stilson of Chico asked for attorney's fees. Stilson was represented by George F. Jones and the estate by Richard White.

Stilson was the first attorney for the estate, and later was succeeded by White. Recently the court set aside $1584.17 for attorney's fees, and Stilson wanted an allowance of this sum for work he had performed for the estate. Stilson, A. P. Bruce and W. H. Bruce were placed on the stand, and after hearing their testimony and short arguments by Attorneys Jones and White, the court ordered that Stilson be allowed one-third of the amount set aside for attorney's fees, which amounted to $528.05, and White gets two-thirds, or $1056.12.

MR. P. NAUSCHUETZ

Peruna the Best Remedy I Ever Found for Coughs and Colds.

Mr. P. Nauschuetz, No. 221 Sharer St., San Antonio, Texas, writes: "About a year ago I was troubled with catarrh and could hardly find help until I took Peruna, which soon brought me relief.

"Peruna is the best remedy for colds I ever found. I recommend it to any one suffering with catarrh."

The first thing to accomplish in the treatment of a cold is to eliminate the accumulated poisons in the system. The excretory ducts and glands should be stimulated. This the laxative element of Peruna will accomplish.

The next thing is to raise the tone of the nerve centers, and assist the powers of Nature to resist the effects of the cold. The tonic element in Peruna is intended to meet this demand. It gives the necessary temporary strength to throw off the depression that the cold brings.

$40,000 Legacy "Blocked" by Mrs. Darwin Tate, of Spy-Glass Divorce Case.

LOS ANGELES, March 14.—Forty thousand dollars is no inducement at all for Mrs. Darwin W. Tate, heroine of the famous double-barreled spyglass divorce case, to return to her husband.

All hope that Tate might gain the $40,000 left him by his wealthy grandmother in Milwaukee, with the condition that he must re-wed his wife and live happily with her for two years, was dispelled today when Mrs. Tate declared that no amount of money would induce her to return to her former husband.

"I wouldn't re-marry Darwin Tate if somebody left him $20,000,000," emphatically declared Mrs. Tate at her home, 2670 Budlong avenue, when told of the strange fortune left the father of her two children. "If it's true that this money has been left him, Fate has certainly played him a hard trick, for he'll never, never get the money if it depends on me.

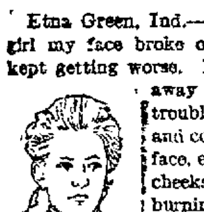
"There isn't money enough in the whole world to make me go back to him. Money wouldn't keep me with him, and it certainly won't take me back to him after all that has happened. I don't feel that I owe him anything, for he got away with more of my money than that."

When asked if she thought of all that money might do for her little daughter and her four-months-old son, the woman who used a spyglass to watch her husband declared that no good could come to her babies through money gained in that way.

"They will have enough and I will not re-marry him. That is final. Never, never, never!"

So Darwin Tate doesn't get his $40,000.

Mrs. Tate obtained her divorce because of a hunting trip which, she declared, her husband and Mrs. Gertrude Chalmers took into Topango canyon last fall. She watched her husband, and Mrs. Chalmers through a spyglass. Chalmers also was granted a divorce from his wife.



ITCHING ECZEMA SOMETHING FIERCE

Etna Green, Ind.—"When but a young girl my face broke out with eczema and kept getting worse. I was ashamed to go away from home. The trouble broke out as a rash and covered the most of my face, especially the chin and cheeks. The itching and burning were something fierce causing me to rub it which caused it to spread. When out in the wind the burning was worse than ever.

"I tried ——— and Ointment without the desired effect. I had suffered with it for several years until finally I commenced using Cuticura Soap and Ointment. After using them for a month or more I could feel a great change in my face. I continued using Cuticura Soap and Ointment for a year and was entirely cured." (Signed) Mrs. Ruby Sponseller, June 13, 1913.

MEET TO CONFER ON CHILD LABOR

NEW ORLEANS, March 14.—Delegates to the tenth National Conference on Child Labor which opens here tomorrow with a monster open-air meeting, were arriving here today from all sections of the country. Prominent among the leaders who will attend the sessions scheduled to close Wednesday, March 18, are Miss Jane Addams, Dr. Felix Adler, Senator Owen, Mrs. Percy V. Pennybacker, Frank M. Leavitt, Owen R. Lovejoy and many others.

The purpose of the conference will be discussion of how the nation's good intentions of protecting its children from exploitation and premature work can best be carried out. It was planned by leaders today that "the nation's intentions are taken for granted at this conference, and no time will be spent in persuading people that a child under fourteen is too young to work in a factory."

One fiery Southerner, Wiley H. Swift, has declared that the intentions of the Southern States in the matter are not what they should be, and his two speeches, "The Last Stand of the Last Business Which Opposes Child Labor Legislation in the South," and "Why It is Hard to Get Child Labor Laws in the South," which will be delivered during the conference, will be given close attention not only by the attending delegates and visitors but wherever there are people who are opposed to children toiling in factories and industrial plants.

The seriousness of the sessions will be lightened one day by a luncheon for the delegates at the Era Club and the Woman's Club of New Orleans, and the Conference will close with a reception and speeches Wednesday evening. Tomorrow's program will consist of addresses morning and evening on child labor and its attending ills, in all the pulpits of New Orleans. The formal opening of the Conference is scheduled for Sunday afternoon when Solomon Wolff, chairman of the Louisiana Child Labor Committee, will preside at the open-air meeting in Lafayette Square. Archbishop Blenk, of New Orleans, will deliver the opening prayer. The speakers tomorrow will include Mayor Martin Behrman, Dr. Felix Adler, Jane Addams, Governor Luther E. Hall, Senator Robert L. Owen and Judge Joseph A. McCullough, of Greensville, S. C.

TO CONFER ON MEXICO R. R. DEBT

NEW YORK, March 14.—E. N. Brown, president of the National Railways of Mexico, arrived in New York today to confer with a group of international bankers regarding the road's impending obligations. On April 1 the semi-annual interest of $51,000,000 of the company's 4 per cent general mortgage bonds, guaranteed by the Mexican Government, will mature. The government advanced a part of the funds required for last October's payment, but up to this time has given no intimation of what it intends to do respecting the April interest.

Mr. Brown will also make known to the bankers the condition of the Mexican Railway system at this time. Officials of the road say the situation has improved, and that about 65 per cent of mileage is being operated, against little more than 50 per cent early in the year. This is reflected in gross earnings, those for February being relatively good.

Eveleth was crossing the street when an automobile driven by Dr. B. Bates Bennett of 2090 Devisadero street, struck him. He was knocked to the street. Dr. Bennett jumped from the car, picked up the aged man and raced with him to the hospital. There an examination showed that he had received several fractured ribs and numerous contusions and abrasions on the body. He is also suffering considerably from the shock.

Unless unforseen complications ensue, it is believed that he will recover.

COST OF LIVING IS 'UP TO CITY'

City Planning Closely Related to Municipal Economy, Says Expert.

The high cost of living cannot be reduced by resolution of Congress, appointment of senatorial commissions, or any other expedient that can be invented or suggested for submission to the authorities at Washington. That's why the cities must handle the problem themselves, and that's why scientific planning of American cities is necessary. This is the gist of the message contained in the great city planning exhibit at the city hall. Big crowds, viewing the exhibit, are gradually coming to realize this fact, and the experts in charge believe that this fact alone has rendered the display more than worth while.

"City planning is intimately related to the cost of living," said one of the ex-tion and exchange are the chief elements nowadays in the final cost of all goods at retail. As cities have grown, the expense of distribution and exchange has increased materially.

One reason is the lack of order in city building which creates confusion in the transaction of business. For instance, a business man is left to his own devices when he contemplates building. He is not given the benefit of the collective wisdom of the ages drawn from experience in every country, and the values of buildings on city lots are so changeable that it is impossible to calculate more than ten or twenty years ahead even an approximation of what they will be worth. The result is that thousands of buildings are erected in our modern cities and financed so as to permit their destruction at the end of 20 years or thereabout—a burden which, of course, must be borne in the meantime by the tenant.

"ZONE" CITY, REMEDY.

This is but one illustration. If it could be asked how could this be avoided the answer is, it could be avoided to a large extent by "zoning" a city under the rules of city planning; that is, districting it and having one locality for factories, and another for shopping, and another for residence, and another for recreation.

As it is now, it often costs as much to deliver goods from Jersey City to New York City or vice versa as the goods themselves are worth when they are turned over by the wholesaler. The proper planning of distributive facilities would reduce this unnecessarily high cost materially.

The added cost of living caused by the lack of intelligent city planning is avoidable waste, and avoidable waste is a social crime in the code of the twentieth century. Intelligent city planning, therefore, would render more stable the investments of the business man while at the same time lightning the cost of living to the average man. It would do this while at the same time making life pleasanter, less a drudgery and more a joy.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 14.—The will of the late B. U. Steinman, former mayor of Sacramento, was filed for probate by the widow, Mrs. Fanny Steinman in the Superior Court here today.

Steinman died March 7, and was 65 years old. His estate is estimated in the neighborhood of $100,000, although no hint of his total wealth is concerned in the will. He leaves to brothers-in-law and sisters-in-law, nephews and nieces, a total of about $8000. Of the remainder, one-half of his estate goes to his wife for her community interest, and one-quarter of the other half is also given to her, the three children Irving L., Henrietta and Florence Steinman, receiving the other quarter.

REMOVE PICTURES FROM SUFFRAGETTES' REACH

LONDON, March 14.—Valuable pictures in St. Paul's Cathedral have been removed until the danger of attacks on them by suffragettes has passed.

It was announced yesterday in governmental circles that no new steps would be taken to suppress suffragettes since the "cat-and-mouse" act was working so well that the militants were able to commend the services of only seven women who were willing to commit outrages.

SAFETY MEDAL IS PRESENTED TO S. P.

NEW YORK, March 14.—Signal honors were paid President William Sproule and Conductor William Schwab of the Southern Pacific Company here tonight upon presentation of the Harriman Memorial medal to the Southern Pacific by the American Museum of Safety for having made the best record, in competition with all the railroads of the country, in the conservation of human life, the prevention of accident and the promotion of industrial hygiene affecting railroad employes and the public. President Sproule was awarded a silver replica of the medal as the officer immediately responsible for the administration of the company in its operations and Conductor Schwab, who hails from the Sacramento division, was given a bronze replica for making the best showing among the employes in the matter of practical suggestions and general interest manifested in the safety campaign.

KRUTTSCHNITT'S TRIBUTE.

The awards were made in the studio of A. A. Anderson and the medal was accepted on behalf of the company by Chairman Julius Kruttschnitt, who, after paying a tribute to the late E. H. Harriman's genius, said:

"Team work and co-operation were Mr. Harriman's watchword and his wonderful success was in a great measure due to the faith in the meaning of the words with which he inspired his officers and men. I believe the high degree of safety in train operation attained by men of the Southern Pacific was made possible only by loyal and perfect co-operation following Mr. Harriman's ardently advocated policy of working together. In the year 1913 the company's locomotives in freight, passenger and work service, ran for a distance of 59,738,000 miles, a figure too large to convey any meaning. At this rate since last Saturday night the miles ran would girdle the earth 46 times, or nearly seven times in one day or once in three and one-half hours. With so great a movement liability to accident is very great, yet 41,783,000 passengers were carried the inconceivably great aggregate distance of 1,756,452,000 miles and this was done without a fatality in train accident. Furthermore, it was done for the four years preceding, with the same immunity. Among the forty-five thousand men engaged in pursuits not involving train movement there was one fatality in every 876,400 days or 2400 years worked."

Chairman Kruttschnitt then paid a tribute to Mrs. Harriman, who provided the medal, and President Sproule was given the silver replica. He said, in part:

"In receiving the medal which the American Museum of Safety has seen fit to bestow on us, I do so with a keen sense of the representative relation I bear to the Southern Pacific Company. I fully realize and recognize how little could be attained in the high degree of safety achieving in the company's operations were it not for the loyalty and efficiency of the officers and staff and the men on the line, in every grade of the service.

SAFETY FACTOR.

"With a body of men imbued with the loyalty that makes for efficiency and imbued with the knowledge that efficiency cannot be had without discipline, great things may be done. I believe our winning of the medal is because of the loyalty, efficiency and discipline of all the company's forces in all the branches of the service which contribute to the safety of the passenger, and so in accepting for myself this silver replica of the medal I desire to couple with it an expression of my appreciation of these high qualities in me and in my fellow employes throughout the service. The formal and nation wide recognition [illegible] ous factor in railroad operation stimulates us to make further and persistent and intelligent effort to maintain the record of the past and to improve upon it. I desire also to express my personal gratification that the [illegible] who has given these medals in memorial of her husband, under whom I served, finds that the museum's first bestowal of the medal is upon one of the Harriman lines.'"

Conductor Schwab said that close observation of conditions and practices of employes and the traveling public bring to any employe interested in safety work many things that can be remedied. He said that employes are realizing more and more that the better protection of the traveling public means also added protection of their own lives and the happiness of their families. In referring to the company's efficiency tests he said that they have come to be a great factor in the prevention of accidents and that the elimination of excessive speed of trains with the fact that trainmen are not criticized for failure to make up for lost time when the effort would endanger life and property and the close observance of the rules of the operating department have done much to establish the safety record.

The affair was attended by several hundred people. The Anderson studio was placed at the service of the Museum making the scene of the presentation as unique and interesting in its character as was the occasion itself.

TALKS ON TEETH

—BY—

Dr. J. B. SCHAFHIRT

Good Teeth—Good Digestion.

Show me a case of chronic indigestion and nine times out of ten I will show you decayed or missing teeth. Few people realize the importance of teeth in regard to good digestion. If before dosing with various kinds of medicines and consulting various physicians, the sufferer would pay a visit to a dentist he would save himself money, time and discomfort.

Of what avail is it to insist on pure, sanitary food, if, before reaching the stomach, that food is going to be contaminated with germs and pus from decayed teeth and diseased gums? However, the most important point is mastication.

Nature supplied teeth to prepare the food for the stomach by thoroughly grinding and chewing and mixing it with saliva. If the food is bolted before undergoing this process (as it is if there are no teeth to chew it with), it lies in the stomach and ferments, causing indigestion. In this case the old fashioned plate does not afford much help, as it is clumsy and usually does not fit. My invention the Schafhirt Rootless Set, solves the difficulty, for whether you have any teeth of your own or not, I can fill the vacancies with natural-looking teeth without using a clumsy plate that extends over the roof of your mouth, interfering with your taste, speech and comfort. Send for my Free booklet telling all about this set—how to take care of your teeth. My office is open week days from 9 to 5.30, Sunday mornings, 10 to 12, and Monday, Wednesday and Friday evenings, 7 to 9.

ONLY BIT HUSBAND, SO CASE IS DISMISSED

FRESNO, March 14.—Mrs. John Morritz only bit her husband on the neck and did not attempt to cut his throat with a butcher-knife, according to the story told in her own behalf before Police Judge Briggs when arraigned on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon preferred by her husband. Just what sort of a bite Mrs. Morritz gave her husband Judge Briggs was unable to determine, but inasmuch as Morritz's neck was free from teeth marks, the judge assumed that it was just a little love nip and dismissed the charge against the woman.

An Appreciation

Realizing our debt to the people of Alameda county for the splendid support given us in the years past, we take this opportunity—our second anniversary in the New Building—to express sincere thanks for the generous patronage bestowed upon us. We have striven to merit it, and the success attending our efforts to build up a large and successful business, evidences the fact that the purchasing public approves our methods and merchandise.

A firm faith in the loyalty of the thousands of customers served for years in our old store gave us courage to build and occupy our present splendidly-equipped establishment. The substantial increase in our business in the past two years proves our trust was well placed.

To provide for the continuing growth of our trade we are planning improvements and conveniences that will enable us to care for future demands even better than we have in the past.

The writer has found the work of building up this big business a labor of love, pleasure and profit, and hopes to enjoy many years in the same field and trusts our future efforts may commend themselves to you, that we may mutually profit.

Very sincerely,

Day of the Hackman and Fortunes in Tips Has Passed

Frank Daroux Saving Gaming Outfit for 1915, Says Detective

SAN FRANCISCO, March 14.—The decision of the St. Francis, Palace and Fairmont Hotels this week to substitute the taxicabs for their big buses at the union ferry depot and to follow a like course in a week or two at the Third and Townsend streets depot is a matter of interest from several points of view. Pass by the economy step; also pass by the fact that the three big [illegible] of the first-class hotel business and are working under an agreement as regards their operations as hostelries. The decision is of interest as showing how the new power wagon, either the auto or the taxi, is driving the horse wagon in all its variety to the regions of limbo. This is particularly true in the large cities. Long ago the hack as a transportation feature down town disappeared, and with it has gone its driver, the hackman, the interesting and odd jehu about whom in the years gone by much has been said and written. Of the hundreds of hacks San Francisco once had but few remain. I doubt if over ninety are in town. They are used altogether in funerals. I asked an old and former hack driver, with Coleman's United Carriage Company at the Palace sixteen years ago, what had become of the forty and odd hackmen that big company had before it went out of business. Some, like himself, who had saved their wages and liberal tips, have a competency in their old age. Others have died. Some are in the almshouse. A few have wandered away. In the days of the hacks tips were large. Times have changed since then, and all kinds of tips are smaller and far less in number. He had banked $4900 in tips in twenty years. Others he knew of had done better. The young men as taxi operators seldom get and never expect a large tip. So many people own autos that even the taxicab is affected by this kind of competition.

Oaklander Might Clear Up History

Ben U. Steinman, the original ham sandwich man of Sacramento and later on one of the capital city's rich men, banker and mayor, who died here this week, never tired of telling about some of the characters who twenty and thirty years ago partook of some of his modest refreshments at his depot lunch counter. He was speaking of the days before the advent of the dining car. Steinman once figured out that he had sold over a million sandwiches at his depot counter or packed in baskets for eastbound passengers. Pieces of pie and doughnuts also ran up to big figures in his sales. Coffee was disposed of in an aggregate quantity sufficient to more than float one of Uncle Sam's modern battleships. One day he had as a quaint patron of the counter the late Sir Tatton Sykes, an eccentric Britisher who dearly loved the turf and the race horse. Sykes would have none of Steinman's coffee. He called for tea, finally got the article and insisted on brewing his own mild beverage in his own teapot which he had in a valise. The titled traveler was very finicky, but paid well for all the service he demanded. Steinman was a great friend of Senator Stanford and was one of four men who knew about and helped to plan Stanford's election to the Senate by the State Legislature in 1884 when C. P. Huntington back in New York was resting secure in the belief that everything was fixed to send A. A. Sargent to Washington. Creed Haymond, State Senator Henry Vrooman of Alameda county and Stephen T. Gage of Oakland were the other three men. Gage is the only one alive now. His relations with Stanford were particularly close and intimate. In this political matter, Huntington always insisted that Stanford had deceived him. Probably Gage could tell a different story, and were he to prepare an autobiography containing the facts in the case and mentioning his other experiences with Stanford and the growth of the big railroad system it would be an interesting contribution to the modern phase of California history.

Is Daroux Gaming Outfit Idle?

The gambling men about town are still talking about how Police Sergeant Fred Green put a stop a few nights ago to a lot of spirited gambling by roulette wheels, craps and a klondyke layout. The Police Commission and Chief White had given a permit for a "Forty-Nine Camp" for the benefit of a certain fraternal organization. Because of the permit, there were no arrests. Frank Daroux, the wealthy gambler and politician, was in charge of the games. Many of his old henchmen were working with him. They were in their element. The play was liberal, money galore and Daroux and his men were promised a liberal percentage. How they fared after Green broke up the affair I have not heard. The police authorities now say the permit was given under a misapprehension. But enough of that. Ostensibly the police put a stop to gambling in this city some months ago. Now the "Forty-Nine Camp" episode exposed the fact that Daroux still has on hand his valuable gambling outfit and his old organization of trained assistants [illegible]. What some people want to know is he still using them secretively and to what extent? Report has it that Daroux's outfit is by no means idle if not at work every night. Of course there are no cappers out as of yore to induce men with money to try their luck. A detective sergeant tells me, however, that Daroux is too closely watched to be doing much gambling, but that he is keeping his costly outfit and his coterie of assistants in the expectation of having a lot of quiet playing when the [illegible]

U. S. Attorney Popular

The appointment of "Billy" Woodburn of Reno, the district attorney of Washoe county, as the United States District Attorney for Nevada, is a very popular one, a Nevada friend informs me. Senators Newlands and Pittman recommended him for the place and it is considered an act that will materially aid Newlands in his fond ambition for a reelection. Pittman is due this week in the Sagebrush State, by the way, and much curiosity is aroused as to the meaning of his journey from Washington at this time. The knowing ones have it that he is coming west to help mend the political fences of Newlands. The two toga wearers are working in close harmony and are pleased over two recent developments in the State. Judge McCarren of the Supreme Court, a Democrat of much popularity, has decided not to enter the Senatorial race. This leaves at present only one formidable Democrat against Newlands in the contest. That man is Attorney Bedford of Reno. The other fact pleasing to them is the desire of some influential Progressives to have a complete ticket in the field. A three-cornered fight will help Newlands' prospects immensely. It was this kind of a contest that enabled Pittman to win out against Senator Massey, who suddenly died the other day. Summerfield at that time was the Progressive candidate. He pulled such strength from the regular Republicans that Pittman was enabled to beat Massey in the primaries by just eighty-six votes. It was expected all along that George Wingfield and his strong following were to have supported Massey in the Senatorial race this year. His death leaves but one Republican as an avowed candidate. He is former United States District Attorney Samuel Platt. I forgot to mention that Woodburn is the son of a former Nevada Congressman.

Gregg-Haldron Wedding Quiet

The quiet church wedding on last Monday of that popular society belle and beauty, Miss Enid Gregg, to Stuart Haldorn, formerly of Montana, but now of this city and Monterey, was a distinct disappointment to the exclusive set which expected a brilliant wedding and much social fanfare. I understand that both the contracting parties and the bride's parents favored a simple wedding with no fuss or feathers and desired it to be held a few days after the formal announcement of the betrothal. Her beauty, style and talent combined to make of the bride for several years one of the most popular members of the younger social set. I recall sometime ago that a New York paper held a contest as to who was the most typical of the American girl. The paper's readers sent in hundreds of photographs and to a committee of able and well-known illustrators was given the task of picking out the best. A New York girl was first choice. The committee set aside twenty-nine pictures. They included those of three San Francisco girls. One of the three was the then Miss Enid Gregg. While speaking of the bride and her wedding, it is also pleasant to recall what Dr. Arnold Genthe said of her about two years ago before he moved with his photo studio to New York City. He said in part:

"Miss Gregg is a more graceful and more beautiful dancer than Pavlowa. She has the advantage of youth and chic. I consider her a marvel of lightsomeness, and her natural grace is such that were she to go on the stage she would create a world furore. * * * Really, my admiration for her charm is beyond my power of description."

Stories have been told of the bride's refreshing candor and lack of pretense. Once some young lady remarked that her brothers couldn't work at things that other boys do whose fathers went around in shirt-sleeves. To this the bride is credited with quickly replying:

"Why, look at my father; he's still young, but gracious he's been everything from a sign painter to a banker."

Well Known Women Aid Club Plan

They were talking about Mrs. George M. Pullman of Chicago and Washington, the widow of the late sleeping car magnate and mother of Mrs. Carolan of the peninsula colony, and Mrs. Cristian Hemmick, the artist and social leader of the national capital and often alluded to as the "Fairy Godmother of Washington." Mrs. Hemmick has been a guest at the Fairmont, while Mrs. Pullman is, I think, touring in Southern California en route here on a visit to her daughter. It was mentioned that both women are identified with the Washington Women's Club, a very influential factor in the social life of the capital. Both were said to have recently helped finance a movement by which the institution has secured a new home. The mansion formerly owned and occupied by Vice-President Charles W. Fairbanks has been purchased for this purpose and is being extensively remodeled to make it an up-to-date clubhouse. The purchase price and cost of the improvements are said to run well over the hundred thousand dollar mark. The place is in a fashionable section of the capital and was originally built in the seventies by Hallet Kilbourn, one of the most noted writers of her time. The Russian ambassador and Mme. Bakhmeteff occupied it for awhile. The Fairbanks people lived there seven or eight years. Mrs. Pullman is often alluded to as a member of Washington's big widow colony which is said to represent fortunes aggregating over a billion dollars. She has a new mansion there which is considered one of the show houses of Washington.

Sidelight on Dressler Row

[illegible] and clever comedienne, has been having a stormy time of it with the management of a local house of mirth on O'Farrell street. To the front in the angry and legal dispute is her manager, Dalton. The latter is J. H. Dalton, her husband, whom I have seen mentioned at various times as a railroad constructor and a Nevada mine owner. I do not know what experience he has had as a theatrical manager, but the business is certainly new to Miss Dressler. Her only concern until lately has been to make fun on the stage and draw a large weekly salary. She is still very funny before the footlights, but whether she and her husband are right or wrong in the present dispute the management of a company has led them into paths that are thorny. Part of the row is over a charge of admission for children in boxes who were Miss Dressler's guests. The actress has always had a fine reputation for generosity and her heart is warm, sympathetic and true blue. Money has flowed through her hands like water in a sieve, and it is a common story about how she has changed big bills on pay envelope day and given $5 to every girl with a humble part in the company. She may not be as extravagant now with her money, but I will hazard a good gold piece that it was not the box seats for the children but rather a consideration for the people of her company that caused the dispute.

Gentleman and Statute of Limitations

The death of Frederick Townsend Martin in London the first of the week interested many people in San Francisco, the few who had met him as a social leader in New York and London and the numbers who have read his two books, or newspaper reviews and comments on them, for they were extensively noticed and extracts published from them all over the country. "Things I Have Seen" made delightful reading, while "The Passing of the Idle Rich" was fruitful in thought and suggestion as a sociological study. But I have no desire to mention what he said in the former book about his meeting with Mrs. John W. Mackay and other people known on this coast nor how his latter book compares as a serious study with "A Little Brother of the Rich," the book written by a young and wealthy man of Chicago. I heard a speaker a couple of years ago tell a story to illustrate a point. He credited the tale to Martin. It was about the statute of limitations, and the speaker was emphasizing the matter of honor in the business world. A man went into a bank one day. Talking to the vice-president he explained he wanted to draw a draft on an Atlanta man for $2,000 he had loaned him without security several years before to help him out of a pinch in his small business. He said he had told the borrower, a friend, that he would not call for the payment of the loan until his own money ran low. Being short of ready cash, he wanted to call on his friend for the money by a draft. The bank official remarked that he would attend to the business but doubted if it would do any good, as the statute of limitations had run against the claim.

"I'll get the money," was the reply, "for the borrower is a gentleman and the statute of limitations never runs against such a man."

Terrazas Seeks Son's Safety

The disturbed condition of affairs in Mexico has caused many of the wealthy Mexicans a great loss in property, money and business. Probably the family of General Luis Terrazas of Chihuahua is the heaviest single loser because of its immense holdings and large business. The recent demand of General Villa that the aged general pay half a million or else have his son, Luis II, now forcibly detained at Chihuahua, placed in front of the Constitutional battle line at Torreon, is a case in point. I have, of course, no means of knowing what the loss to this family figures up at present nor to what extent it has money and valuable jewelry on deposit in Los Angeles and San Francisco banks or locked up in their safe deposit boxes. I am told, however, that there are large deposits of both kinds in the names of the aged general, of his sons, Luis II and Colonel Alberto, and of his son-in-law, Enrique C. Creel, the banker who was at one time the Mexican minister at Washington. Over a year ago when General Luis Terrazas, the head of the house, was spending most of his time in Los Angeles, Santa Barbara and this city he estimated that property and cattle valued at a million dollars belonging to him had been confiscated. When Diaz was president, this family prospered enormously and he would have been considered demented who several years ago would have predicted its present disturbed plight, with all its prominent members in this country as refugees save the son now held by Villa. Those were the days when Creel was minister at Washington, a son of the general, the governor of the state of Chihuahua, and Ramon Corral, a former governor of the state of Sonora and friend, the vice-president with Diaz and the man the Terrazas family fondly hoped to be the successor of Diaz. This was why Madero was unfriendly to the family. Since his death things have gone from bad to worse with the family, as they have also done with the country. The son of the general, Colonel Roberta, is now in Southern California, where he expects to remain until he can safely return to Mexico. He is expected here next week on a visit to friends. The father is still at El Paso awaiting the conclusions of negotiations for the safety of his son, Luis.

Gaekwar to Visit Fair

One of the Panama-Pacific Exposition directors last evening showed me a private business letter from a correspondent in Calcutta in which the statement is made that he has been informed that His Highness, the Gaekwar of Baroda, has practically decided to visit the big fair in the summer of 1915. The Gaekwar is one of the semi-independent princes of British India that are privileged to make laws, levy taxes, mint coin and maintain a soldiery. He is a popular character in London and visited this city some three years ago en route to Europe. At that time his son, Prince Jaisingara Gaekwar, was a freshman at Harvard. The Gaekwar, his wife, the Maharanee, and his daughter, a pretty princess, who was educated in the most select of English schools, is musical and speaks English and French fluently, paid a visit to the prince at Harvard before they went to Europe. They were shown many courtesies while in this city and on landing from the Pacific Mail liner Siberia, Collector of the Port Stratton had his officials accord them every attention. The titled visitors had the best of suites at the Palace and heartily enjoyed a show at the Orpheum. One or two of the performers they had already seen in the London music halls. Fortunately for hotel register space, the full title of His Highness is seldom used, except on state occasions. It is Maharajah Sir Sayiji Rao Gaekwar Sena Khar Khei Shamsher Bahadur of Baroda, K. G. C. S. I., K. G. C. I. E. The letters mean Knight Grand Commander of the Exalted Order of the Star of India and of the Most Eminent Order of the Indian Empire. The principality of Baroda is said to be eight hours' ride by train from Bombay. It comprises 8000 square miles, much of which is very fertile, besides possessing some mineral wealth.

S. F. Charter Led Lane Into Politics

In part of one of the local daily papers on last Sunday Secretary of the Interior Franklin K. Lane surprised some prominent and active local men by making the statement in a brief article he had written about his early struggles on this coast: "Then one day the mayor of the city met me on the street and asked me to write a new charter for San Francisco. This was the way I was introduced to politics." The mayor he refers to was Phelan. The latter asked several lawyers and business men to suggest provisions for a new charter while he was in office. A duly chosen board of freeholders after lengthly sittings finally framed the present organic law of the city. Several years ago another body suggested and prepared amendments. Most of the latter were finally adopted at an election. William Denman, the attorney, took an active part in the deliberations of the latter body. Colonel Harris Weinstock was its chairman. There are a dozen men who claim the credit for first suggesting the leading features of the existing charter and its amendments. They give but little credit to either Phelan or Lane in originating or suggesting the provisions of the charter as it now stands. It was a collective work, and a lot of the members of the two freeholder conventions are not at all disposed to give the credit to any one man.

Noticing in a London cablegram a few days ago the death in Calcutta of Swami Bharati, a Hindu philosopher, I called to mind that there is a Buddhist mission in this city on Gough street and a Hindu temple on Webster street. The latter is in charge of Swami Trigunatila. The latter came here before the fire with another swami, Prakashananda. Before them, Bharati delivered lectures in this city and Los Angeles. The dedication of a Hindu temple here in the western world was an event of more than passing interest. The planting of a mission in San Francisco for the conversion of Christians to the theology and philosophy of India was a trifle bizarre to the American mind, and the mysticism always associated with the Far East and its religion served to make it doubly interesting. The mission was founded in the city about fourteen years ago. This religious activity in San Francisco is, I am told, part of the work of the Vedanta Society of America founded by Yogi Swami Vivekanenda, now dead. The two local churches have a fair attendance of white people. The swamis in charge are quiet spoken men, with a good command of English and little to tell of their nationality except their dark skin. They rarely appear in the native robe and turban and always deliver their sermons in the conventional English garb.

Ex-Supervisor Sought Appointment

After a long wait, Mayor Rolph has filled the vacancy in the Board of Supervisors by the appointment of J. C. Kortick. His is an entirely new face in local politics, and he is a young business man down town, living in the Mission district near the mayor. The vacancy was caused by the resignation of Supervisor G. E. Gallagher whom the mayor appointed to the Board of Education and who is now its president. The friends of former Supervisor Murphy, who was defeated for re-election at the last municipal election, had hoped he would get the plum. But Rolph has taken a new tack. Kortick's selection is a concession to the downtown business community after all of his trimming with and concessions to Supervisor A. J. Gallagher of the Union Labor party. The appointment is satisfactory to a very large element in the Mission, a stronghold of Rolph. The latter's [illegible] ceal their delight over the selection, for they deem it a good political stroke on his part to appease the downtown community, where there is a large number of men who do not like him as a politician.

Willis Polk's Conundrum

Have you heard of the conundrum that Willis Polk, the architect, launched at Supervisor Nelson while the investigation was on about the workmanship of the new city hall steel superstructure?

Nelson fathered the charges about the steel supply and its poor make. Polk was a witness who contended the steel was proper. He severely criticized Nelson for his attitude, and argued that the component parts of the steel work were not intended to fit close but "neat." Polk ridiculed the idea that the manufacturers had purposely cut the joints and parts short in order to save material.

"Supervisor Nelson, let me ask you a question," Polk said while on the stand. "Suppose you order from a lumber dealer joints and studding 4x5 inches and fifteen feet long for a dwelling. Then they are delivered to you fourteen inches or fourteen and a half inches long for a proper fit. Do you think the lumber dealer made the cut of an inch or less for [illegible]?

"I then ask you this question: If the coal company sold more coal than it had delivered or brought here, what profit does the Spring Valley Water Company get for all the milk and whisky sold here as the pure product?"

Naughton Saw Pugilists Rise and Fall

The death this week of W. W. Nalghton, the sporting writer and author of "Kings of the Queensbury Realm," a standard and popular book on the prize ring, is deeply regretted by his many friends. His passing away is a distinct loss in newspaper circles and in the Press and Family Clubs, of which he was a popular member. Because of his extensive and well-written correspondence on pugilism in this country and in Australia and London, together with his wide travel in all three countries, Naughton can be said to have been the best-known authority and writer on the squared-ring game. His advice and friendship was frequently sought and obtained by pugilists and the large outside following of the pastime. He rarely disappointed because his judgment was keen and experienced. A manly fellow, honest and honorable, he had a staunch and loyal host of friends. In those ways he never disappointed. It is familiar history of how Naughton came from the land of the kangaroo and as a San Francisco writer predicted the success of Peter Jackson and Bob Fitzsimmons, two Australian ring masters who first set their foot in the United States in this city. He saw them as well as many another kingpin fighter, rise and fall, but in their fall he was ever their kindly critic. But as a writer on other subjects, Naughton was an able fellow. His pen was trenchant at times and again descriptive, humorous and poetic.

15,000,000 to See Fair, Estimate

Regarding the attendance the Panama-Pacific Exposition is to have in 1915 two men have made statements the past few days that are of interest and entitled to much consideration because of their well-known and shrewd judgment. Colonel J. C. Kirkpatrick, the manager of the Palace and Fairmont hotels, has returned from an extended trip to New York and the East generally. He said there is much talk there about the exposition, a widespread desire to visit the Panama canal [illegible] returning from the fair, and reports by Eastern railroad men and steamship agents of the thousands of parties already preparing to come West next year. In many of these clubs, or parties, the members are making monthly payments so as to get ready financially for the round trip. Men in position in many lines of activity impressed him with the belief that thousands are coming.

Charles S. Fee, passenger traffic manager of the Southern Pacific, who won his spurs with the Hill railroad system before he came here and who has made a study in all its details of the attendance at the Chicago and St. Louis expositions, does not hesitate to prophesy that between twelve and fifteen million people will come here. Both men have made a study of annual summer travel from the United States to Europe. These trips aggregate each season an expenditure of over 200 million dollars by Americans. They are confident the exposition will draw most of this travel westward in 1915 along with thousands of other people of lesser means. Canal trips will add to the inducement next summer and for years after will make trips to California a popular thing. After the fair the thing to do in Northern California, in their opinion, is to capitalize every attraction in order to allure the tourist like Europe has so well done. More than anything else, they believe the exposition is going to give great vitality to the growing movement of "See America First."

Former "Birdie" Fair Will Be Visitor

Either today or tomorrow her society friends are expecting a visit from young Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt, Jr., and her relative by marriage, Mrs. Reginald Vanderbilt, both of whom are en route from the Florida winter resorts. The former was Miss Birdie Fair of this city, a sister of Mrs. Herman Oelrichs. This will be her third visit to her old home since her marriage into the Vanderbilt family. The first time her husband was with her. Three years ago she was here alone. At times there has been mention in some of the weekly society gossip of minor New York publications that she and her elder sister were having no more to do with "the California rifraff." This was supposed to mean that the two women had grown tired of old San Francisco acquaintances of their girlhood and were viewing them from their Eastern surroundings with a spirit of impatience and sarcasm. I am told their San Francisco friends are confident they never used such language and always experience their welcome and hospitality when they journey East. It is an old story of how Mr. and Mrs. Vanderbilt Jr. have quarreled and are living separate, just as are their distinguished relatives in England the Duke and Duchess of Marlborough, and of the utter failure of Vanderbilt Sr. to make peace between the two young couples. Young Mrs. Vanderbilt's marriage was for a number of years deemed a most happy one. It was, too. This was the time when she left her first baby at home in charge of a nurse and went to Europe with her husband, saying, or at least was credited with remarking, "I can get a nurse to take care of baby, but there isn't anyone I would allow to take care of my husband, so I'm going with him. Why they say so I do not know, and never cared to inquire, but Mrs. Vanderbilt's intimates here believe she will never make peace with her husband, who is living in New York and devoting much time as an official of the New York Central road, in which his father is largely interested.

Santa Rosa Popular as Burbank Home

The formal observance of the birthday of Luther Burbank, the plant wizard of Santa Rosa, together with the many letters, telegrams and cablegrams sent him from all over the world, was a very happy event in the life of this most distinguished citizen of California. It was with singular and delightful modesty that the famed specialist accepted the honors heaped upon him. But modesty accompanies such sterling worth. The Santa Rosa people were more joyous than he on the occasion, for said one of them to me the other day: "We can't honor Burbank enough. We realize the work he has done and its great importance. But in addition to all that, we ordinary folk know he has put Santa Rosa very much on the map. He's credited to our little city all over the world. Many people know about Burbank in all countries. They likewise also know that he hails from Santa Rosa."

At the age of 65 and after thirty-five years of work in giving new vegetables, fruits and flowers to the world, Burbank is still actuated with the worthy ambition "to get from flowers, fruit and vegetables the very best possible for the enjoyment of mankind." His accomplishments have borne the acid test of commercialism. This is the solid ground on which his reputation rests. His first definite work along practical lines was raising the Burbank potato by elimination and selection. This he did in Massachusetts and by means of it he is generally said to have got money enough to move to the more favorable climate of the Golden State.

Army and Navy Medical Plan

Anent the formal inauguration by the University of California authorities of the institution's George Williams Hooper Foundation of Medical Research, with the study of tropical and chronic diseases as its first announced work, I was talking with some army surgeons yesterday who made the interesting announcement there may soon be established here a combination of the facilities of the medical departments of the army and navy. The matter has been brought to the attention of President Wilson to effect a consolidation of the two departments here and at other places where it is found practicable in the interest of both economy and efficiency. It is proposed that an initial step in that direction be taken at Honolulu, to which end the President has been urged to approve a plan for converting the army hospital at Fort Shafter into an army and navy hospital, and he also has been asked to consider similar consolidations at other places, such as in Washington, San Francisco and Manila. Allied to this proposal to consolidate hospital facilities is one for the merging of the army and navy hospital corps and even of the commissioned personnel of the medical department of the army and the medical corps of the navy. This tentative and important matter must, of course, not be confused with the efforts being made in Congress by Surgeon-General Blue of the Marine Hospital and Public Health Service and Representative Julius Kahn to get an appropriation of half a million dollars for a new marine hospital in San Francisco. Blue and Kahn are said to feel very much encouraged at the prospects for getting the appropriation. Dr. Blue is a friend of this city and has long been anxious to have a big modern hospital here under his department. With the opening of the canal and the large immigration direct from Europe he expects to come here, Blue thinks a new hospital absolutely necessary to study and combat the diseases which are bound to come. I mention these facts to indicate how this city is promised much as a center for medical and hospital work, modern research effort along medical lines and facilities for the treatment of diseases and their successful control.

ENCH MONUMENT AT CANAL IS WISH

- American Committee uld Commemorate Part in Enterprise.

RIS, March 14.—The desire of to have a monument erected at in commemoration of the re- of France to the great enter- of connecting the Atlantic and Oceans, was expressed in to Ambassador Myron T. k today. The project was ex- Louis Jaray, secretary of influential group of Frenchmen sing the Franco-American com- which has already obtained approval of the French Foreign for the plan. sident Wilson, it was pointed approved the idea when it was oned to him last year by William Fullerton of Norwich, Conn., who was visiting America as commissioner of the Lyons International Exposition.

Fullerton explained that the suggestion of Gabriel Hanotux, former French Minister of Foreign Affairs and President of the Franco-America committee, was that the monument should be raised from subscriptions gathered among the French people. It is the wish of the committee that the United States Government, if it accepts the suggestion, should select a site for the monument along the canal. A large commission, including some of the most notable men in France, would then visit the United States and Panama in connection with the plan.

Ambassador Herrick replied that he regarded the proposal as admirable in principle and said he would communicate it to Washington.

CHILDREN EAT POISON.

JACKSON, March 14.—Three little children ate ant poison here and nearly perished. Their lives were saved by the timely arrival of medical aid. Elvin Sabatini, 4, Alma Beneditti, 4, and Francis Beneditti, 5, children of E. Sabatini and wife and Frank Beneditti and wife, were the victims. The little ones became ill just as their mothers were leaving the house. A few moments later and there would have been no one at home to attend them.

RECREATION SUPERVISORS HEAR ADDRESS AT MEET

The supervisors employed in the Oakland Recreation Department were addressed at their meeting last week by Miss May L. Cheney, appointment secretary at the University of California. Miss Cheney chose as her subject "The Influence of the Playground Worker in Vocational Guidance." She spoke first of vocational training and guidance in general and then urged the supervisors of children to co-operate with efforts being made to institute vocational training in the public schools. In part she said: "Modern industry has grown so complex that the old system of apprenticeship is out of date, and its place must be taken by vocational training in the schools. There are scientific methods of telling for what work an individual is best suited and these should be used in determining a child's course. But there is a difficulty in determining just what lines of work should be taught in the public schools. This question is one of the gravest that remains to be settled at the present time. Until it is settled, I would urge playground workers to do all in their power to keep the children in the schools as long as possible and when they do go to work to see that they select a work that is suited to them and in a place where conditions are favorable for normal and healthy child-development."

CAMPFIRE GIRLS HOLD COUNCIL AND LUNCHEON

The Evening Star Campfire Girls held a council meeting and luncheon last Saturday at Park Boulevard Playground. The Evening Star girls are former attendants at the Franklin School playground, where the club was organized before the closing of [illegible]. Initiation was held at which two new members were admitted to the circle. They were the Misses Pearl Jones and Esther Louis. The Evening Star Campfire is under the guardianship of Miss Helen Bassett of the Recreation Department. The following girls are members of it: Nusa Evans, Ruth Gibson, Mary Brining, Ruth Andrus, Elsie Jones, Verna Myers, Katherine Schneider, Francis Schurra, Dorthy Hazzard and Ethel Lyons.

PREPARING FOR MONSTER TRACK AND FIELD MEET

Preparations for a monster track and field meet to be held on April twenty fifth are now being made at all the recreation centers of Oakland. The meet will be held on the athletic field at Bushrod Park, and several hundred entries are expected. Any young athlete desiring to compete may do so, by entering his name with the supervisor of the nearest municipal playground, and telling the events in which he desires to engage.

The question of classifications for this meet is still unsettled, there being some disagreement as to whether the divisions should be made on the basis of age and height or of weight only. A decision on this matter will be reached in the near future by the supervisors of the local recreation centers, who will manage the meet.

DO MANUAL LABOR ON PLAYGROUNDS

(By M. ETHEL BERLIN.)

At Tompkins playground, Fifth and Linden streets, Labor Day was celebrated Saturday, March 7, not by parades, games and athletic contests, but by hard, honest manual labor. The field which has been but recently fenced, and on which there is as yet very little apparatus, was marked off into four equal areas. A foreman with some fifteen or twenty boys was assigned to each division, given a sufficient number of picks, rakes and shovels and instructed how to put his gang to work to level and to clean up his district. The workers in each group were of the same nationality. When the whistle blew at [illegible] o'clock and the judges unanimously voted the baseball glove offered by the playground supervisor W. H. Wieland, for the best work during the day to Frank Arena, it was not only a recognition of his leadership, but of the ability of the Italian boys of the neighborhood to go at a job, stick to it, and do it right. Those under the leadership of Eddie Pinguatoro were a close second and in fact all the other boys who worked under Arthur Sattoni and Eddie Porter deserved the reward of ice cream cones that were served them by the girls on the playground.

WORK MADE PLAY

It was work converted into play. It was a new game to be played with man sized rakes, shovels and pitchforks instead of balls and bats, with unwilling rocks bedded deep in clay, and small ditches that must be filled rather than fellow playmates for opponents. When the game became too hot a one, a field mouse unearthed from its home and dangled at the end of a string at the girls on the other side of the fence afforded sufficient relaxation, but the foremen were careful to see that not too much valuable time was wasted.

WAS MORE THAN GAME.

Yet when one saw a lad of ten years patiently pushing inch by inch, stopping only to wipe the sweat out of his eyes, and to catch his breath for another spurt, a full sized wheelbarrow filled with dirt from a neighboring vacant lot to fill one of the many ditches, it brings home that the day was something more than a game to the boys, something more than [illegible] of the coveted baseball glove, it was in fact a demonstration of appreciation by the young Americans and by those who are fast learning American ideals of what the city of Oakland is giving them in their playgrounds and schools and a desire to show the people that they are capable and willing to take care of what they have been given and thus are entitled to even more of the facilities that permit of healthful recreation.

GOOD MUSIC FOR THOSE WHO WOULD BE DANCERS

Terpsichorean art at Mosswood park will no longer be practiced to the strains of a phonograph, according to the intention of the recreation department, as it is planned to supplant this instrument with a piano—a real piano that can be hauled around the grounds to the spot where the dancers are tripping the light fantastic. As the group of children and their elders learning folk dancing have grown larger the phonograph has been found more and more inadequate until the recreation commission of this city has decided to procure a piano for use in the work. There are one or more groups of children practicing folk dancing every day in the week at Mosswood and physical strength as well as bodily grace are gained from this rythmic form of exercise. The dances are taught by Miss Winifred Van Hagen, supervisor of girls activities in the park.

MASK AND KEY SOCIETY FOR ALLENDALE PLAYERS

A dramatic club to be known as the Mask and Key Society, has lately been organized at Allendale Playground. The club is starting out on its line of work under the direction of Fletcher B. Taylor and Miss Rachel Crawford, the directors of the Allendale recreation center. Besides dramatic work the club will participate in social gatherings and will have musical and literary programs from time to time. The present membership of the club consists of 19 enthusiastic young ladies and gentlemen. The following officers have been elected:

PLAYGROUND AT MELROSE UNDERGOES IMPROVEMENTS

The Melrose Playground, situated at Fifty-second avenue and East Fourteenth street, is undergoing improvements at the present time that makes its use as a play center temporarily impossible. The play field is being graded and leveled and the ground put in proper shape for athletic purposes. The work will be completed within the coming week and the place will again be thrown open for the youth of the neighborhood who are just now having a siege of baseball fever. There are some good ballplayers at Melrose and Director R. H. Scott announces that he will enter some strong teams in the coming Playground Baseball League, which will start the last part of the month.

OAKLAND CHILDREN TO LEARN BASKET WEAVING

The children of Oakland are to be taught the work of basket-weaving in the local playgrounds if the plans of the Recreation Department are carried out. For some weeks past the women supervisors in the department have been taking a course of instruction to fit themselves as teachers of the manufacture of reed baskets. The lessons have been given by Miss Percy Dillon, and baskets of all shapes and sizes, as well as flower-pot covers have been designed and made. Considerable work of this nature has been taught in the local recreation centers during the weeks of summer vacation, when the schools are not in session.

CAMPFIRE GUARDIANS TO DINE AND DISCUSS

The Campfire Guardians of Oakland will meet next Wednesday evening, March 18, at the Oakland Social Settlement, 379 Linden street. A supper will be served and matters relative to the welfare of the Campfire Girls organizations of Oakland will be considered. The supper will be arranged by the Misses Ethel Dickinson and Helen Bassett and will be served at 6:30. The program will be arranged by the Misses McClure and [illegible] committee of the Guardians. The Campfire Guardians are a body of social workers who direct the activities and look out for the welfare of the Campfire Girls of America. The Oakland Guardians have the following officers:

President, Miss Minnie P. Smith; corresponding secretary, Miss Elizabeth Clow; recording secretary, Miss Clara Crist; executive committee, the Misses Ethel Moore, Ida Green and Minnie P. Smith.

The balance of trade in favor of the United States during January was about $30,000,000. SEEDSMEN GIVEN PARCEL POST RATE

Fourth-class Rate Now Extended to Seeds, Bulbs, Plants, Etc.

WASHINGTON, March 14.—Extension of the parcel post rates to seeds, cutting bulbs, roots and various kinds of plants became effective today as the result of an order issued by Postmaster General Burleson. The order puts into effect the recent act of Congress which repeals the special rate of postage heretofore chargeable on seeds, plants, etc., and makes the regular parcel post rates of postage applicable to parcels of such articles.

Under the law just enacted, parcels of seeds, cuttings, bulbs, roots, scions and plants weighing four ounces or less are subject to postage at the flat rate of 1 cent for each ounce or fraction thereof, regardless of distance; on parcels exceeding four ounces in weight, the pound rates applicable to the respective zones apply.

"The fact that seeds, plants, etc., were specifically excepted from the regular fourth-class rates by the parcel post law," declared Postmaster-General Burleson today, "caused much dissatisfacion, and there was an urgent and widespread demand by farmers, seedmen, nurserymen and others for the extension of the parcel post rates to these articles."

LECTURES ON CHRISTIAN SCIENCE AT MACDONOUGH

Colonel William E. Fell of Leeds, England, Speaks Before Large Audience

A large and attentive audience filed the Macdonough Theater Friday evening to hear Colonel William E. Fell, C. S. B., of Leeds, England, lecture on Christian Science, under the auspices of First Church of Christ Scientist, of this city.

The lecturer was introduced by Mrs. Clara B. Knight, second reader of First Church, who said:

"Dear friends, it is a joy to welcome you here, on behalf of First Church of Christ, Scientist, of Oakland, to glean a few facts about a subject, Christian Science, which is engaging the attention of many thinking people throughout the world.

"How beautiful upon the mountains are the feet of him that bringeth good tidings; that publisheth peace; that bringeth good tidings of good; that publisheth salvation; that saith unto Zion, 'Thy God reigneth.'

"The teachings of Christian Science perpetuate only that which is good and true, being founded upon the book of all books, the Bible, and its spiritual interpretation contained in Science and Health With Key to the Scriptures, the textbook of Christian Science, given to the world by one very dear to us, Mary Baker Eddy, and we are grateful for the privilege to listen to him who is authorized to bring to us such good tidings of good—a member of the Board of Lectureship of the Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass. I take pleasure in presenting to you Colonel William E. Fell, C. S. B., of Leds, England, who will now address you."

PROGRESS IS KEYNOTE.

The lecturer said in part:

"Progress is the keynote of the century. Never before in the world's history have the inventions and discoveries of physical science shown a greater advance.

"It would be truly deplorable if man's apprehension of the science of being had not shown a corresponding progress. I am here tonight to tell you that mankind has advanced in this understanding of Truth as is evidenced in the better health, better morals, and more harmonious conditions obtaining in the lives of those who are making an earnest study of this science of being or Christian Science. It is a fact of which we as a race have no reason to be proud, that many of the recent inventions of the day, whether the flying machine or the submarine vessel, have been applied to compass the destruction of mankind in time of war. Christian Science, on the other hand, when discovered by Mary Baker Eddy, was applied to the saving of mankind from all that was unlike good. For this purpose today Christian Science exists to bind up the broken-hearted, to proclaim liberty to the captives, and the opening of the prison doors to them that are bound. To learn just how to do this is surely the science of all sciences, the science by which Jesus performed his mighty works in confirmation or demonstration of his mighty words.

PROMISE HE MADE.

"Do you remember that he promised that we too should do these mighty works when we understand him. 'He that believeth on, or understandeth me, the works that I shall do shall he do also.'

"Could Jesus ever have made such a promise if it had not been intended at some time and in some way to reveal just how these works were done? Did he not with the promise state the method of its fulfillment, how that 'the comforter' should come, 'and when he is come, he, the Spirit of Truth, will guide you into all truth.'

"This comforter then must be the Science or exact knowledge of God, the knowledge of the 'All Truth' into which we are to be guided, and no one will be found to deny the fact, that it was through this exact knowledge or science that Jesus performed his mighty works.

"As to our part in this matter, are we not exhorted to 'have that mind in us which was also in Christ Jesus?' To have that mind must mean to have that knowledge of God or good, which Jesus possessed, enabling him to cast out devils or evil of every description. We are encouraged therefore to assure ourselves that Jesus' mighty works were not merely miracles or wonderful works in substantiation or proof of his divinity, or for a special class or period, for God is no respecter of persons and is the same yesterday, today and forever, but were performed in obedience to spiritual law, which law must be to the full as operative now as it was during the first 300 years of the Christian era, when as history relates, these mighty works were done. It is our duty today to become acquainted with this spiritual law in order that obedience may be rendered to Christ Jesus' commandment to 'preach the gospel' and 'heal the sick.'

COMMON GROUND.

"A fair investigation of the science of Christianity will reveal the fact that this science departs in nowise from the statements made, and accepted by our Christian brothers in the older churches, concerning God. The chief difference lies in the application. Let us see for a moment what this common ground is, and wherein the difference lies.

"God is described in the Bible as Spirit, as Life, Truth, and Love and these terms whether taken collectively or individually stand for God. It is also universally accepted that God is omnipotent, omniscient and omnipresent, which if it means anything at all must mean that God is all the power there is, all the science or knowledge there is and all the presence there is. This must be so far as you know the Latin word omni signifies all, and we cannot have more than all, so we come to the just conclusion that God, whom John declares to be Love, is all inclusive and can have no opposite called devil or evil; and as one scientific statement quite naturally leads to another we find that God being Life, Life is all the presence there is, and death becomes obsolete, real as it may appear to the physical senses. By the same course of reasoning we arrive at the fact that since God is Truth, Truth is the only legitimate knowledge or activity there is or can be. However loudly error may call out in justification of its presence and power, it has neither presence nor power; and grandest and most joyous conclusion of all, we find that there is no power, knowledge, or presence in anything but in Love and its manifestations, for God is Love and God is All."

Why Not Lead, Not Follow?

Far-reaching effort to bring to attention of the east the possible winnings of the west have had their results. The dawn of better times is clearly before us and every indication is that prosperity will be ours for years to come. From New York come letters showing that the railroads have sold over two hundred thousand one-way tickets to the Pacific Coast for delivery on or after December 1st. From Chicago is received information that the inquiries concerning the interior lands of California, the possibility of developing them and the chances of making them produce a living for innumerable small families, are greater than in years. The Middle West is interested in us and its peoples are to head this way, and wholesome, welcome immigrants they are.

While all the signs of the times point to western development, we of Oakland naturally turn to our own city with a view to its taking advantage of the conditions that will soon confront it from a business standpoint, Oakland must be in line with progress. That it will not be weighed and found wanting is assured by the very spirit of the community.

It's a pleasant memory to look back over the achievements of Oakland. While the city was for a long time slow in realizing its enormous power as a commercial center and depended too much upon its value as a suburban district to take the necessary step toward metropolitanism, it has within the past decade come to its senses: it has gone to the front with determination to be second to no other city of the coast and to accomplish this on lines of human endeavor that have for their basis in effort something that is lasting.

There have been a lot of croakers all over the United States. Those claques of poverty and prevention have sung the swan songs of states and nations to the discord of their own souls. They have not looked to encouragement of capital, but the discouragement of it. The move has infected New York, Chicago and all other large centers and within the very sound of its numerous hammers one hears the story of the over-surplus of money.

Why should not a city assume that it is independent and why not let Oakland be the city that will start the movement for individual improvement, for the Pacific Coast, at least? Why not discourage the man who has a grim delight in telling of "hard times?" There are no hard times. Hard times mean no crops, no money. In Central California we have both ample crops and money. Our products are from year to year so prolific that we have had to legislate against their being thrown overboard from docks to help put the great surplus of cash, that was idle in the State, into the pockets of a comparatively few men. But these criticisms are merely incidental and are offered to show that our ills are more imaginary than material. It is this that we would overcome and which Oakland should lend a helping hand in mastering.

Oakland must make of itself more of an entity. It must assume that it should take the lead in economic as well as financial moves. There is an old saying that "save the pennies and the dollars will take care of themselves." Why not make it a rule "let the cities act for themselves and the nation will take care of itself" as a most natural result?

Elbert Hubbard is quoted as saying that "some men don't know which side of the street the sun shines on." That goes to show that Elbert knows when to come in out of the wet.

After reading his wife's narrative, we regret to state that the report that J. Hunter Smith Jr. had drowned himself is not true.

Twenty Years Ago Today

Unless something is done soon to better ventilate the police court Judge Allen will probably exercise the duties of his office seated beneath a tree in the City Hall Park, as in the days of Merrie England. "It is an outrage" said his honor, as he sniffed the unsavoriness of the room. "The polypetaleous Rosaceae, diversely nominate, were as odoriferous. And then, turning to Bailiff Sam Mitchell, who was gasping for breath, the judge said sternly: "Repair to the hymenopterous-formicide, thou somnolent nothing, prepend her Modi Operandi and acquire sapience" And then the business of the day began.

About four years ago the city government began the improvement of Independence Square. Although it constitutes the largest tract of land which the city owns, it is safe to say that a large majority of the citizens of Oakland have never knowingly seen the property.

The present police force is composed of one chief, two captains, three detectives, one clerk, one bailiff, one court officer, two prison keepers, two patrol wagon officers and thirty-seven patrolmen.

Chief of Police Schaffer, in his annual report, calls attention to the fact that the boys and girls who are imprisoned must be kept with the common drunks and criminals, thus hardening them to a life of crime rather than reforming them, and urges that steps be taken to provide a separate prison for the children.

Will S. Green of the Colusa Sun has been elected secretary of the State Board of Trade.

"TEUTONIZED" AMERICA

According to a French journalist who has just returned to Paris from an American visit, we have "become Teutonized with deplorable results." "German influence, the Teutonic physical characteristics and language, are changing the Americans, who are becoming fearsomely Pomeranian."

One sees Pomeranians at dog shows and occasionally in landaulets and limousines. But is there anything particularly Pomeranian about slit skirts, the tango and votes for women? Is joy-riding peculiarly German? As respects linguistic influences, what a fine Teutonic flavor there is to cabaret show and palais and jardin de danse, to say nothing of our department-store French!

With our beef and our dances coming from the Argentine and our diplomatic problems from Mexico and the Isthmus, something might be said as to the Latinization of America. But it is Paris and not Berlin that has most deeply stamped its impress on us—on our drama, dress, amusements and theatrical "follies," even to the vocabulary of the lobster-palace menu card and the garage and hangar! Next to his own boulevards where can a Parisian feel so much at home as on the Great White Way?—N. Y. World.

WILL NOT BE ENGINEER OF DAM ACROSS NILE

NEW YORK, March 14.—Hugh L. Cooper of New York, the engineer who built the Keokuk Power Dam across the Mississippi, denied today the recent report from Washington that he had been designated consulting engineer for the Egyptian government in the construction of the new Nile dam.

Short Sermons for Busy Readers

PEACE WITH GOD!

"Peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ."—Romans 5:1.

Our relations with God are of fundamental importance. When we are right with Him, we are right. When we are wrong with Him, we are wrong. He was before all, and is now over all, and our relationship to Him is important because it is all-determinative. But it is even more important because He is the Righteous One.

Herbert E. Hays

We are not naturally at peace with God. Man was made to be at peace with Him, but sin entered the world and sin always and everywhere means war with God. He is absolutely irreconcilable to sin.

We cannot of ourselves get back into right relations with God. We have forfeited all rights and lost all standing. If there is to be any peace again, God alone can provide it. Salvation must be absolutely of grace if it is to be at all.

Peace with God comes to us through Jesus Christ. He is God's provision for us. He has taken the connequences of our sin upon Himself, thus affording us sequences of our sin upon Himself, thus affording us sin is punished, God's perfect moral order is upheld, and sinners are saved.

Peace with God is a fundamental need with us. As a nation cannot have any satisfaction or make any progress while at war, so an individual must be at peace with God if he is to live and work to the best advantage.

But we must not depend upon our own feelings or ideas in determining whether we have peace with God. The word of God is the only test. Sin has a way of dulling our sense of sin, and many people living outrageous lives are so hardened in sin that they suppose they are all right. Some even die in this self-deceived condition, apparently believing, though against all reason and scripture, that they are prepared.

Beware of superficial peace, which is no peace. The old prophet complained because some about him were saying, "Peace, peace." when there was no peace, and because the wounds of the people were "healed slightly." If we really see God as He is and our sin as it is, we shall feel the need of a peace deeper than anything or anyone this side of God can give.

Jesus Christ is God's own provision for this need. He is the one true mediator between God and man.

How foolish it is to go on in rebellion against God! Puny man against Almighty God and the whole order of things!

How wicked it is, likewise! God is not simply great: He is right, and we are wrong.

Peace with God comes through Jesus Christ. When we have Him, we have it. He becomes ours through faith and obedience.

Herbert E. Hays.

SOLVES HOUSING PROBLEM

Prof. Richard T. Ely of the University of Wisconsin, writing in the Survey recently, tells how one German city—Ulm on the Danube—goes about the business of solving the housing problem for its inhabitants.

What Ulm is doing according to Professor Ely, is to buy all the land it can afford to buy and can get hold of. The city then builds houses on this land. The municipality as a landlord naturally is not likely to break its own building laws. Nor is it likely to construct houses in haphazard, ugly fashion. Every precaution is taken to build not only durable and commodious homes, but homes that are pleasing to the eye. A certain symmetry is observed in laying out new quarters. The esthetic taste must not be offended.

When these homes are completed they are sold by the city to workingmen or business men. The city would rather sell a house than rent it. It wants people to own property, for it has learned from experience that when a man owns property he becomes a better citizen. He has an interest in seeing law and order preserved. The terms upon which the workingman is allowed to buy a home are most liberal. If through misfortune a man finds that he cannot hope to pay off the mortgage on his home the city buys it back from him at a just price.

ROAD BOOSTERS OF OAKLAND AT WORK

Lincoln Highway Talks Given by Workers for Undertaking

(By EDMUND CRINNION)

From the highest peak of the high Sierras to the borders of our own city the Lincoln Highway and the city of Oakland are now almost synonymous terms with the road boosters along the route followed by the Lincoln Highway workers on their pilgrimage last week in the interests of the proposed coast-to-coast stone highway, which will when complete connect the city of Oakland with New York City by a continuous paved boulevard over which thousands of motor tourists will annually follow the slogan of "See America First."

Leaving early last Monday, the Oakland Lincoln Highway workers followed the route chosen for the great highway undertaking and local demonstration followed local demonstration as each city, town and hamlet was approached by the caravan in cars of the Winton Six, S. G. V. and Stevens-Duryea type lead by the six-cylinder Buick machine which was driven by F. E. Gross of the Howard Automobile Company and carried H. E. Frederickson, consul at large of the Lincoln Highway Commission, A. A. Denison of the Oakland Chamber of Commerce and also Oakland consul for the highway; the writer and C. A. McGee.

Denison, who is one of the best-posted men in the west on the advantages of the proposed route of the Lincoln Highway over the various other routes possible, was the star speaker of the trip and through his able talks stirred up much enthusiasm for the highway undertaking, and cheers for the active part Oakland is taking in bringing about the early completion of the task. J. E. Caine of the Oakland Commercial Club who is state consul for the Lincoln Highway, also did some very effective work in addressing the enthusiastic demonstrations that were given at every point along the line.

Among the boosters that were most conspicuous for the active part they took in the three days' trip to the snow line and back again were: H. E. Frederickson, A. A. Denison, J. E. Caine, C. B. Wells, A. Jonas, F. V. Williams, Worthington Gates, Harvey Lyon, Fred Soulberger, Oscar Hastings, A. H. Peterson, Thomas E. Risley, W. H. Weilbeye, C. J. Heeseman, Leslie Rice, Fred S. Gaines, R. L. Fulton, F. E. Gross, C. A. McGee and Edmund Crinnion of the automobile of THE TRIBUNE. The boosters covered in all close to 400 miles on the trip which embraced every city and town between Oakland and Auburn and Placerville. From Tracy, Livermore, Lodi, Stockton, Auburn and Placerville escorts in parties of from two to fifty machines greeted the boosters and lead them to the open-air gatherings that were awaiting the coming of the party.

The Buick Six car, equipped with Nobby Tread Tires, tendered for the occasion by G. H. McCutcheon of the Howard Automobile Company, not only carried the speakers throughout the trip, but also served in the capacity of a lecture platform from which the talks were given. The Winton Six car tendered by the Osen & Hunter Auto Company and driven by Oscar Hastings, also made an excellent showing on the tour.

If the enthusiasm which is being shown in California is general throughout the country, there should be no question about the Lincoln Highway being in good shape for the thousands of automobiles which are sure to visit the exposition next year.

The Emigrant Gap and Truckee route was followed as far as Auburn, the up trip from Sacramento being made through Roseville, Rocklin, Loomis, Penryn and Newcastle, while the rest was over the old Auburn-Sacramento stage road through Folsom. Both these roads are receiving favorable consideration from the highway association, and as there seems to be little choice in the two routes, the highway will no doubt go to the road which works the hardest for it.

The first stop was made at Hayward, where arrangements were made for a amss meeting and banquet later in the week. The Dublin Boulevard was then followed to Livermore, where the party was met by an enthusiastic crowd who insisted on being informed more fully regarding highway.

After a short address by Denison, the party continued on to Tracy, where it was met at the edge of town by some forty or fifty automobiles, and escorted to the main street, where a lunch was served the boosters by the ladies of Tracy. The schools were dismissed and the school children marched to where the addresses were being made.

Stockton was the next stop. From that place the lower Sacramento road was taken. Near the town of Lodi, automobiles were lined up alongside of the road for more than a mile awaiting the party. They followed the caravan into Lodi, where a very enthusiastic meeting was held. Sacramento was made a night stop, and a well-attended high way meeting was held at the city hall Monday evening.

Tuesday morning the party was headed out over the Ben Ali Boulevard to Roseville, Loomis and Rocklin. The president of the Chamber of Commerce was profuse in his apologies of the size of the crowd which was there. He explained the apparent lack of enthusiasm by saying that the postoffice had been robbed the night before and that all the citizens had turned man-hunters.

At Penryn school was dismissed while the highway speeches were being made. A few minutes was spent in Newcastle, and Auburn was reached by lunch time. Here an enthusiastic lot of boosters from Colfax gathered and after lunch an hour was consumed by Denison and Caine in explaining the highway proposition to an interested audience.

A few minutes was spent in Folsom and the night stop Tuesday was made at Placerville, where an enthusiastic open-air meeting was opened at 8 p. m., with a crowd of approximately 1000 people deeply interested in everything that was said. This meeting ended the official part of the trip, and the Buick was started back to San Francisco at 8 a. m. Wednesday morning, arriving at its destination early in the afternoon.

Road conditions are normal except between the Sacramento county line north of Stockton and Sacramento, where there are stretches of the highway in very bad shape.

The road between Folsom and Plaverville is always bad and at this time it is worse than usual. There is some work being done on it at present, and it is to be hoped that it will be improved somewhat before the touring season to Lake Tahoe opens.

SAN FRANCISCO BEACH AN IDEAL RACE COURSE

San Francisco has an ideal course for motor car racing along the shores of the waters of the Pacific, is the opinion of Bert Latham, local representative of the Simplex-Mercer Pacific Coast Agency.

Latham, last Sunday, paid the beach a visit and was attracted to its condition by the splendid work that one of the aviators in his hydroplane made while rising from the beach. Latham thoroughly investigated the beach and says:

"The beach at low water is in my mind better than the beach at Daytona, Florida.

"Last Sunday a thorough investigation was made of this beach and it was found that easily a course of two miles and a half long is possible. This at times would easily make a splendid five-mile course. The width of it would permit six cars racing abreast and passing six others, as there is fully 90 feet in width that could be used."

FISK RUBBER COMPANY OPENS SAN JOSE HOUSE

"In keeping with this conservative idea which means satisfactory service the Fisk Rubber Company has decided to open a service station in San Jose at 280 North First street. The Garden City is the converging point of travel southward over the coast route from San Francisco, Oakland and northern cities of the state. It is also an important station for the benefit of those who continually tour to Del Monte and Santa Cruz.

Service is the greatest feature in the tire industry today and the Fisk Rubber Company in view of the expected increased touring from now until after the fair is to establish service stations at all important points on the coast. The San Jose station will be open Sundays thus enabling the motorists touring that territory to get prompt service any day in the week.

FREMMING LANDS METZ CAR AGENCY

One of the most striking roadsters of the light car class to be seen in this territory made its debut yesterday along the Twelfth street auto row under the guidance of John Fremming who has secured the agency rights for the clever little car which is known as the Metz, a product of the Metz Company of Waltham, Mass.

The car which Fremming received yesterday was of the model known as the Metz speedster. It is a two passenger machine, with a husky four cylinder engine. Chain drive and friction transmission are among the features that add to the simplicity and light weight of the car. It is exceptionally well finished for a car of its price and attracted much attention among the auto experts.

Fremming states that the demand for light weight cars of this class is becoming so pronounced that he secured the Metz agency as the leading factor in the light car trade.

Fremming claims that the economy of the Metz roadster cars is one of the leading features. Twenty-eight to thirty-two miles on a gallon of gasoline, 100 miles on a pint of lubricating oil and from 10,000 to 12,000 miles on tires are among the claims he makes for the car.

The Metz car is already well known in the motor trade channels, more particularly since its recent sensational victory in the last Glidden tour, which it won over a test covering 1300 miles of the worst road bed imaginable in competition with cars costing from five to ten times as much. Fremming expects to handle a large trade in these cars.

PEERLESS AUTO CHIEF NOW GENERAL MANAGER

R. J. Schmunk for several years sales manager and for the past year director of sales of the Peerless Motor Car Company has become general sales manager, the company's chief executive of the selling division.

Schmunk has been in the motor car business from its inception. He knows its history in all its ramifications. He has served in a wide variety of capacities with several well known companies, and in different parts of the United States from the days of the early "mud-larking" cross country tours to the present. He has made the acquaintance of thousands of motor car dealers from the Atlantic to the Pacific and from Canada to Mexico.

About seven years ago he joined the Peerless selling forces and in a short time became sales manager. A year ago his title was changed to director of sales with largely increased duties and responsibilities and he is now advanced to the entire management of the marketing of the Peerless product.

SHORTCUT HIGHWAY MARIN CO. SCHEME

The short-cut highway which will connect Mill Valley with Baltimore Park, Corte Madera and Larkspur has taken definite shape and word is received that without fail this road will be one of Marin county's most beautiful drives before the fall rains set in. From the Corte Madera side of the hill the road will rise over the saddle between Mt. Tamalpais and Little Tamalpais ridges from the westerly end of Baltimore canyon connecting on the Mill Valley side with the roads in the Cushing properties. Rights of way and the survey over the entire length of the route have been made. The completion of this strip will cut in half the distances by road between the cities in question.

The Canadian company, which will be known as The Willys-Overland of Canada, Ltd., has taken over a plant there, and large additions to it are already under way. The lines distributed by the new concern are identical with those produced by the Willys-Overland Co of Toledo and the same standards, ideals and requirements as demanded by Willys from his United States company will be insisted upon by him in the new concern, of which he is president.

HUDSON Sixes
Six-40 $1750 Six-54 $2250

54 of the 79 Automobile exhibitors at the 14th National Automobile Show held in New York January 3 to 10 this year, displayed six-cylinder cars. Eighteen showed Sixes exclusively.
That emphasizes the dominance of Sixes.

Come Drive This Light Six

—you men who know only four-cylinder sensation should drive the HUDSON Six-40. It rides like constant coasting. In price, weight and fuel cost it is below any same-class Four.

The price is $1,750, f. o. b. Detroit.

The weight is 2,980 pounds—400 pounds less than last year's HUDSON "37." And it consumes one-fourth less fuel. Yet the HUDSON "37" was a four-cylinder car, with shorter wheel base, smaller capacity and lesser power.

Some Fours of like capacity weigh 40 per cent more, and consume at least one-third more fuel.

This means that the Six—the envied type—the smooth-running, flexible, luxurious Six—undersells, in every way, any same-class Four.

It means that you men who want quality cars, modest in price and weight and upkeep, are no longer compelled to be content with a Four.

The Handsomest Car

This HUDSON Six-40 is, in addition, the handsomest design of the year. The design and equipment are almost identical with the new HUDSON Six-54.

It has a streamline body of the most distinguished type. Extra tires are carried ahead of the front door. The gasoline tank is in the dash. There are two extra disappearing tonneau seats. Hinges and speedometer gear are concealed.

It has the convenient new "One-Man" top, with quick-adjusting curtains attached. It has dimming searchlights, hand-buffed leather upholstering. No last year's car, at any price, offered so many attractions.

Not Enough for All

The evidence is that the demand for this car will far exceed the output. The sale so far has broken all HUDSON records.

So we urge you who may want it to come now and inspect it.

VE RICE-BOUND ROAD IN HUDSON

Remarkable Demonstration of Motor Car Efficiency in North.

In our school days during the geography class we learned of Great Slave Lake, and Lesser Slave Lake. They seemed to us to be well within the Arctic circle. That anyone but Esquimaux should go there or live there appeared absurd.

A letter recently written, however, by the Freeman Company, Hudson distributers at Edmonton, Alberta, Canada, to the Hudson Motor Car Company, described in detail an 800-mile trip from Edmonton to Peace River crossing and return, in the middle of winter. The trip was made by five men in a 1913 Hudson "37" which had previously covered in excess of 15,000 miles in livery service in and around Edmonton.

[illegible] son over the frozen surface of sloughs, muskegs, rutty trails and for part of the way over Lesser Slave Lake reads like a romance. In places the ice in the lake had cracks in it of as much as three feet in width. One side of the crack was, however, somewhat lower than the other. These cracks the Hudson took at high speed, leaping them like an ice boat.

Two other four-cylinder cars of excessive weight, essayed to tackle the same feat. At date of writing they are still out on the ice of the lake awaiting repairs before they can be towed in.

An interesting bit of detail was that the car stood outdoors—of course—each night during the trip. The radiator was filled with kerosene instead of water because frequently the thermometer was fifteen below zero. Yet the electric self-starter never failed to start the car.

HANS WAGNER BUYS.

Hans Wagner, baseball player and shortstop of the Pittsburg baseball club, has succumbed to the cyclecar fever and has negotiated with C. N. DOUBLE TAXATION FOR AUTOS TO BE SUBJECT

With the advent of the spring season has come renewed activity and enthusiasm among the members of the California State Automobile Association throughout the state, and Secretary D. E. Watkins has been busily engaged in addressing the members of the various clubs in different parts of the state that are affiliated with the association, upon the needs and requirements of the motorists in California.

Much important work is projected for execution during the coming season and the many details, plans and committees will be discussed and settled upon at the meeting of the delagates from the clubs comprising the association at the special meeting called by President P. J. Walker for Friday, March 27, at the Palace hotel.

At that time the policy and action of the association during the next legislative session will be settled relative to the present system of double taxation for automobile owners.

CYCLECAR SHOW.

"Providing they decide to do so, the Cyclecar manufacturers will have an exhibition of their own at the National Automobile Show in 1915," says President W. H. McIntyre of the Imp Cycle Car Co. of Auburn, Ind., and also president of the Cyclecar [illegible] Association. "Already representatives of the Automobile Chamber of Commerce have approached members of the association with regard to our plans for next year's shows but as yet nothing definite has been arrived at."

AUTO'S ENGINE OF OLD DAYS ON JOB

150,000 Miles Low Claim for This Motor's Mileage in Oakland.

The question has often been asked what becomes of the old cars. There was a time when the answer could be found in a trip through the country for the farmer was then the greatest buyer of second-hand automobiles. However, as time wore on the farmer proved to be the majority who purchased new cars. This left the question of still what became of the old cars unanswered. It is a certainty that they all did not find the scrap heap for George Peacock of the E. L. Peacock Auto Company, tells of the existence of one of these cars of yesterday.

[illegible] in Oakland is one of the most curious motor vehicles I have ever seen. It is an ordinary coal wagon with high wooden wheels and iron tires but minus the horses.

"If anyone interested enough to stop the coal man to see just what he has will find to their surprise that he has installed the engine of an old model "D-4" Mitchell into his old coal wagon that was formerly drawn by horses. He has installed a hollow axle with a two chain drive and coupled it up with the engine. From the amount of work that this motor is doing it is easy to estimate that it has traveled fully 150,000 miles and is good for many more."

"The coal man claims it practically costs him nothing for up-keep outside of gasoline and oil. He had found that he could not complete with others who were using motor commercial vehicles over the Piedmont hills with horses and at that time not being able to afford a regular motor truck he had tried the installation of the old Mitchell engine in his horse-drawn coal wagon. It had proved so successful on the hills of Piedmont that he saw no reason for at the present time of replacing it with one of a modern design."

GOOD ADVICE FOR NEW AUTO BUYER

"Balmy, sunny, flowery spring, with its inevitable and irresistible call to the open, is turning man's thoughts to motor cars," says Ben W. Hammond of the Kissel Kar.

"Wherever motorists meet, the difference of opinion that sells all types of cars, good and bad, is being voiced in cocksure phrases that mystify the uninitiated. Therefore, the prospective buyer of his first car should close his ears to technical talk until he first satisfies himself regarding certain very material, plain and practical questions. Here are a few 'don'ts' for him.

"Don't buy a car unless you are satisfied that the manufacturers are sound, because upon their remaining permanently in business depends two very important considerations viz: the ability to obtain duplicate parts for your car should you [illegible] car in case you ever wish to sell or trade it.

"Don't buy a car unless you know something about the dealer. Be sure that he stands well with present owners, for upon his willingness, as well as his facilities, to look after the mechanical welfare of your car and guide you through your first year of experience, depends the measure of your satisfaction.

"Don't buy a car that is in any sense an experiment. It may be all right for the fellow who is something of an automobile mechanic to stake his money and peace of mind against that which is new and unproved, but your course is to buy a car whose mechanical features have been found safe and correct in actual service and understood by garage men wherever you are likely to drive.

"Don't be 'carried away' by features of beauty and comfort alone. Remember that while good looks and easy riding are important, that the real car, the car that is going to either delight or exasperate you, is the car beneath the hood and floor.

"By bearing in mind these simple don'ts, for there are several others that will develop when you go into the question more deeply, you will be started on the right track."

LOCAL COLE MANAGER SEES BRIGHT FUTURE

Believing that the trend of business will be upward from now on, and that in the motor industry, especially, this will be most noticeable, G. A. Blanchard, general manager of the Pacific Motor Car Co., local distributors of the Cole cars, is preparing for an active season.

"The recent adjustment which the whole commercial world has gone through, and the settlement of many big public questions has had a tendency to stabelize all lines of industrial activity," so that from now on it can be confidently predicted that an era of good times is impending," and from a close study of the motor car situation," remarked Blanchard, "I feel that 1914 is going to loom up big as one of the best years the industry has offered. Speaking of the Cole cars, from the number of inquiries and the interest manifested in the new models, we are assured of a keen revival of business at once."

CYCLECAR ECONOMY PROVES FEATURE

"For a long while the motorcycle held the palm for low cost of upkeep and operation, says Earl L. James, local agent of the Imp Cyclecar Company of Auburn, Ind. "But now comes the cycle car capable of carrying comfortably two passengers with a gasoline and tire consumption so absurdly low that it puts any other sort of gasoline propelled vehicle out of the running. A valuable talking point in the favor of the cycle car is the most important factor of "upkeep" cost. With the cycle car it is no longer necessary to travel alone. The cycle car has every appearance and advantage of an automobile, it looks like one, it rides like one, and can be run and garaged at one-quarter the cost. Abroad the cycle car has been in use for two years. "Economy" is the salient feature of the cycle car and from this important fact alone there is no question as to the cycle car attaining its proper place in the esteem of the public. Practically complete, with wind shield and top, they can be obtained at less than $400; and while this initial cost is less than any automobile now on the market, what appeals to the masses is the fact that this same economy is kept all through the life and ownership of the cycle car. It is a poor man's automobile."

SAVES EXPLORATION PARTY.

A motorcycle was recently the means of saving members of a semi-official British exploring party from great hardships and perhaps death. The party was traveling through Africa from the Cape to Cairo, gathering data concerning the interior of the continent. Their equipment consisted of a big automobile and a motorcycle. When in the depth of the continent the automobile broke down, leaving the party stranded many miles from aid. Though the motorcycle had kept pace all the way with the larger car, it was still in excellent condition, and journeyed back to civilization, returning with the necessary repairs and supplies.

GOODYEAR PLANT HAS NOVEL PLAN

Suggestion Box Conveniently Placed in the Various Departments.

Everyone knows that workmen coming in daily contact with machinery or a certain routine work are in a position to suggest changes and improvements. Minor changes often mean much to conditions and efficiency in large factories. When an employe is interested in his work he is constantly on the lookout, and ready to take advantage of every opportunity.

"Considering this, we have devoted time and labor to work out a system whereby Goodyear and its employes will profit by the suggestions of each individual," says C. W. Seiberling, vice-president of The Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company, Akron, Ohio.

"The efficiency and welfare department is one that devotes its time to systematizing the work and improving the conditions necessary in running the various departments to the best advantage. In order to carry on this work in a more complete and satisfactory manner, it was decided to work out a scheme whereby the co-operation of the employes would result in beneficial ideas. The proposition was presented to everyone in the factory through the medium of a factory newspaper.

"Each individual was requested to submit any suggestion that he thought would be of benefit in increasing the efficiency of his department, or improvement which added to machinery would provide a safer method of operation. Boxes are located throughout the factory which are [illegible] gestions. Beside each box is a pad of blank paper forms that are at the disposal of anyone with an inspiration. Every week the contents of these boxes are collected and passed upon by the suggestion committee. Each suggestion is judged as to its value, and the party proposing it is rewarded accordingly. A roll of honor is maintained for the purpose of adding the names of employes whose suggestions are of lesser importance than those which are worthy of a [illegible] prize.

"The suggestion committee [illegible] makes public every week, through [illegible] paper, a list of the suggestions submitted, giving names, the suggestions themselves, and a classification of their [illegible] by announcing the prizes awarded. Throughout the entire factory, every [illegible] has derived benefit from this [illegible] of receiving ideas. Every employe becomes interested in his work, [illegible] on the lookout for opportunities that might enable him to increase the amount of his pay envelope."

ALLOW TEACHERS TO WHIP PUPILS

Kansas Jury Acquits Young Woman and Upholds Corporal Punishment.

IOLA, Kas., March 14.—The courts of Kansas won't interfere on behalf of unruly pupils who wish to sidestep corporal punishment, if the verdict of a jury in the district court here is approved and becomes a precedent. The jury, after deliberating nearly all night, decided a "school marm" is within the law if she spares not the rod in trying to spoil not the child.

The case was that of Miss Julia Mary Austin of Gas City, "charged with assault and battery upon the person of one Ray Miller."

Miller was a pupil—the big boy in Miss Austin's room. The testimony brought out that Miss Austin, with the assistance of another woman teacher, whipped him with a piece of rubber tubing. The boy and his parents allege he was whipped until he bled. The teacher said he had used insulting language. The jurors refused to find that the prosecution was malicious.

USED RUBBER TUBING.

Even though the verdict freeing Miss Austin was received at an early hour and on Sunday morning, a crowd of teachers, students, school board members and citizens were out to hear it. The defendant was not present, but was represented in court by her attorney, F. J. Oyler. When the verdict was read Judge Foust announced that it being Sunday nothing could be done except to receive the verdict and place it on file and Miss Austin will not be formally discharged from responsibility to the coun until tomorrow, when judgment in accordance with the verdict will be rendered.

In closing its case the state introduced evidence to show that even Superintendent Osborn had suggested that the best thing the teacher could do would be to resign.

CRUEL PUNISHMENT BARRED.

The undersheriff, Edward J. Dunfee, said that when he talked with Osborn the superintendent said he had another teacher who could take Miss Austin's place at once. Osborn denied that he suggested the idea of Miss Austin's resigning.

"The verdict is not a vindication of the cruel punishment and the use of the gas hose," said the county attorney, Mr. Forrest. "I shall continue to prosecute in every case where I find that a teacher is administering brutal whippings."

Mr. Forrest said he would dismiss the cases against Miss Rose Corns, the teacher who aided Miss Austin, and Superintendent Osborn Monday, but that such action would not mean that the state would overlook any complaints of cruel punishment.

In 1913—when nearly all cars came equipped with odometers—our fiscal year sales were

Yet those multiplied sales—nearly 16 times larger—fail to tell the whole story. For tire prices dropped immensely. In the past year alone No-Rim-Cut tire prices have been reduced 28 per cent.

These figures are more startling still:

In our last fiscal year we sold eleven times as many automobile tires as in the fiscal year of 1909.

Mileage Did It All

That's the simple result of mileage tests on hundreds of thousands of cars. Of tests applied to three million Goodyear tires.

Some other tires, in those years, dropped tremendously in sales. And the reason for all these ups and downs lies in odometer figures.

Four Ways in Which We Earned Success

We ended rim-cutting in No-Rim-Cut tires—a damage which still wrecks 31.8 per cent of all the old-type tires.

We lessened blow-outs by a process no one else employs. It adds to our tire cost $1,500 daily.

We reduced by 60 per cent the risk of tread separation by another exclusive method.

And we produced the All-Weather tread—combining the utmost in an anti-skid with the economies of smooth treads.

Those are the four chief reasons why No-Rim-Cut tires hold top place in Tiredom.

Go make the tests which other men have made. Give these tires a chance to win you by upkeep figures only. We ask no favors which the tires don't earn. But we claim their records deserve a test.

Announcing—
"VANADIUM" RUBBER

Made by a new process, the result of twenty-five years' experience in the handling of rubber—the Lee Tire and Rubber Company has announced the use of "VANADIUM" RUBBER in all

LEE
"Z-G-ZAG" NON-SKID TIRES
REGULAR TIRES
"VELVET" RED INNER TUBES

The use of "VANADIUM" RUBBER adds one more to the already long list of reasons why you are either using Lee Tires or are going to use them in the near future.

This new "Vanadium" process invigorates and refreshes the rubber, increases its resiliency and densifies it by contracting the pores. As a result, Lee Tires resist greater road shocks and wear longer.

Lee Tires are 12½% over size of ordinary molded tires—have 12½% more rubber and 12½% more tread. No—the prices are not higher!

WOMEN GOOD ROAD BOOSTERS ON JOB

There never has been a time in the history of civilization, with the possible exceptions of those periods during which Rome constructed her magnificent systems of highways, when so much thought, labor and money has been expended on improvement and maintenance of good roads, as today.

In this work which at a first glance, would seem to fall primarily in the sphere of man's activities, it is surprising, as well as gratifying to know that women are entering more and more actively into it.

Throughout the country, and in fact in all countries, women's organizations are taking up the work of improving country highways and city streets, and in no section is this development of women's activities in public affairs more marked than it is on the Pacific Coast, where the Women's Tri-State Pacific Coast Good Roads Association is entering [illegible] struction of better highways and the maintenance of the same.

Realizing that this worthy cause should be aided in every possible way, W. B. Cochran, president and general manager of the Haynes Auto Sales Company, has placed at the service of the above organization Haynes cars in the various cities of the Pacific Coast for their use on inspecting roads, club work, and other educational purposes wherein the automobile would be of service.

WILD DASH OVER MOUNTAIN TRAIL

Driving 2500 miles under the most trying conditions, but making a record in the line of low fuel consumption and minimum repair bills, as well as saving a child's life, was the novel performance of Victor Fairchild, a well-known young motorist of Whittier. Fairchild has returned from a tour in his Hupmobile to Walla Walla, Wash., and back, and despite all the hardships endured is already planning another long run to Sioux Falls, S. D., in the same little Hup.

Young Fairchild's chance to be a hero came just after he had crossed the line dividing California from Oregon. In the midst of a lonely stretch, the road on which he was travelling being as dangerous and rocky as possible, the Whittier youth came across a homesteader and his wife who were bemoaning their fate. Their little baby boy had been taken suddenly ill and they were at their wits' end to reach the doctor, many miles away across precipitous mountains.

Fairchild volunteered to make the trip. [illegible] machine and the long, wild ride over a discarded pack trail was commenced. The mother kept urging Fairchild to greater speed until the Whittier lad was sending his little car over the strange and forbidding road at a perilous pace. The Hup stood up to its task nobly and Fairchild was rewarded at the end by knowing that the doctor was able to save the child's life by emergency treatment administered just in time.

HELD AS FLIRT, ASKS LUXURIES

Charged by Model, Philadelphian Vainly Pleads for Novel Privileges.

NEW YORK, March 14.—"This strange man followed, spoke to me, offered to buy champagne for me, and I want him arrested," said Mrs. Ruth Young, a pretty cloak model, to Policeman Dewey at Madison avenue and Thirty-second street.

"There must be a mistake," said a well-dressed man who was just behind Mrs. Young, and who described himself as John Alexander, thirty-five, a manufacturer of Philadelphia. He wore a diamond pin in his neck scarf and had a heavy gold watch chain. Questioned by the policeman, the man refused to give the address of his hotel or tell anything further concerning himself.

Mrs. Young, who is employed by a firm in Thirteenth street, near Sixth avenue, and lives at 12 West One Hundred and [illegible] street station with policeman and prisoner, and made a formal complaint.

"This is going too far," cried Alexander dramatically, waving his arms when Lieutenant Troy ordered that he be locked up. "I have never been in a cell before. This must not be! Madame would you see me locked in a cell?" he said appealingly to Mrs. Young.

She nodded affirmatively.

"Oh, this is horrible," said Alexander, wringing his hands. "It's awful! I [illegible] Lieutenant," he added, moving closer to the desk, "I have solved the matter. You keep my hat and overcoat and I will sit over there in the corner and smoke a cigar."

"I haven't time to watch your hat and coat," said the lieutenant curtly. "Here, officer, take this fellow to a cell. He'll talk to me all night if he isn't locked up."

Alexander was put in a cell to await a free ride in the patrol wagon to court.

W. J. VOIT IS NAMED PACIFIC COAST MANAGER

FORD PLANT MARVELOUS.

One of the features of the great machine shop of the Ford Motor Company that always impresses the casual visitor is the interminable—apparently impenetrable—jungle of shafts and belting necessary to operate the machines. In fact, it is a source of wonder to the visitor how all these tremendous pulleys and miles of shafting get their driving power from the two big gas engines in the central power plant. One is not surprised when one is told, says Ben Hammond of the Kissel Kar branch, that besides the big motors in the power plant driving the main shafts there are 720 others scattered about the factory driving outlying portions of the labyrinth of belts and pulleys.

SCENIC ROAD PLAN FOR MARIN COUNTY

Steps have been taken to build another scenic highway in Marin county for the accommodation of motorists. New roads and boulevards are under construction in various sections, but a much needed boulevard is one that will tap the Muir Woods National Park. The present condition of this road is such that it is nearly impassable for machines. It should be widened and rebuilt over its entire length.

DOUBLES EFFICIENCY.

Ned Call, an electrician in the employ of the Telephone and Telegraph Company of Stockton, Cal., finds that the use of a motorcycle has practically doubled his efficiency in his work. Call attends to the general repair work in the whole county, averaging about 50 miles a day. He says that during the last year he has operated his motorcycle at a cost, in addition to gas and oil, averaging about 15 cents a day.

WEDS GIRL WHOSE NAME WAS WRITTEN ON EGG

COLUMBUS, Ind., March 14.—Two years ago August Reemnston, who was then employed as a chef in a big New York restaurant, started to break an egg to make an omelet. Before he broke the egg he noticed a name and address. The name was Miss Anna Danforth and the address was Elizabethtown, Ind. Reemnston did the expected thing and wrote to that name and address. The correspondence was continued and last fall the chef came to Elizabethtown to see the girl face to face.

He then proposed marriage, but her parents objected to her going so far away from home. Reemnston then found employment in a hotel at Jeffersonville. Recently he returned to Elizabethtown and made the final arrangements for the wedding.

Miss Danforth and her mother, Mrs. Lyman Danforth, went to Jeffersonville, where they were met by Reemnston and his employer, and after the marriage license was obtained they went to the home of the Rev. R. C. Truply, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, who married them and they have gone to housekeeping with two cooks in the family.

POLICEWOMEN PROVE BANE OF WAITRESSES

CHICAGO, March 21.—Six union waitresses were marched off to the police station by two policewomen today from in front of a downtown restaurant against which the waitresses declared a boycott several weeks ago. The waitresses demanded that policewomen be substituted for policemen on the strike detail. The prisoners offered no resistance.

"Those policewomen are not acting squarely," said Miss Carrie Alexander, president of the waitresses' union. "We thought they would give us fair play. Our girls were not doing anything."

DEALERS JOIN TO GET STOLEN CARS

Every Town Includes Someone Watching for Fugitive Autos.

When his Studebaker "Six" fell prey to a discriminating automobile thief, Dr. H. G. Peregrine of Seattle notified both the police and the local Studebaker dealer.

The police threw out their usual drag net. The dealer set in motion a plan of detection, carefully worked out for just such an emergency.

Within twenty-four hours his friend, the dealer, informed Dr. Peregrine that his car was in a certain garage in Portland, where it had been stored after its arrival by boat, several minutes before.

The car was recovered and an arrest followed.

That was quick work and represented an unusually striking instance of the facility with which a stolen Studebaker car can be traced. But the result would have been the same in the long run, regardless of the route taken by the thief. Eventually he would have run afoul of the watchful, patient, infallible system by which the movements of each Studebaker car can be traced, according to E. Linn Mathewson, the local Studebaker car dealer.

By this system a car stolen last year in Minneapolis was recovered in San Antonio, Texas, and one stolen in Providence, R. I., turned up in Los Angeles. In each of these cases the cars would have been located long before, but for the fact that the thieves had kept them out of Studebaker garages they had passed en route.

Tracing of cars is done by means of a complicated system of numbers stamped on the motor, chassis and various other parts of each Studebaker car and its equipment. Some of these numbers are hidden. Others are in plain sight, and often these are removed. But a defaced number is sure to lead to inquiry later on, and no thief, not conversant with the system of numbering, can expect to deface all the means of identification provided.

Accurate record is kept of all the numbers at the Studebaker headquarters in Detroit. The man in charge can, if given one of half a dozen numbers, identify any one of 150,000 Studebaker cars and supply the name of its original owner. A simple bulletin service from this department puts on the trail of any stolen car at least 2000 skilled detectives. Sooner or later the thief must show up with his car at a Studebaker garage; thus ending his joy ride and paving the way for a long rest, far from further temptation.

SOME CONTRACT.

H. G. and F. G. Sharpe of Carlton House, London, England, who have taken the English agency for the Imp cyclecar have signed for ten thousand cars. The life of the contract is for ten years and calls for one thousand Imps a year. The Sharpes are connected with the well-known English financier, Sir Thomas Berridge who is represented in America by the prominent firm of Guggenheimer, Utermeyer & Marshall of 37 Wall street, New York city.

400-MILE ENDURANCE.

Sacramento, California, motorcyclists are planning a 400-mile open endurance contest for July 4 and 5. The run will be from Sacramento to Lake Tahoe and return, by way of Reno, Nevada. The Sacramento club has offered an award to the first rider who makes the round trip to Lake Tahoe this season. Owing to the heavy snowfall, the trip will probably not be accomplished before the first of June.

MECHANICS LOYAL TO OVERLAND CAR

Long Service in Factory Reason for Faithful Workmanship.

"You can't always judge a car by its specifications," says J. W. Leavitt, the head of J. W. Leavitt and Company, Pacific Coast distributors for the Overland cars.

"Time and again I have read the specifications of new models and have decided that they were all that could be asked for for the money and in many cases were exceptional. But when these cars have made their appearance and have been put to use on the streets and roads they have developed defects and have not come up to the expectations. Why this condition exists has always been a study and I only found the solution on my recent visit to the Overland factory.

"There is something almost human about a motor car. Every make has its peculiarities which are only recognized through constant association. How often have we heard an owner say that his car is running much better than when he bought it. The car is undoubtedly just the same, but he understands it better.

"This is the keynote of the solution to the reason why cars with good specifications do not always turn out satisfactorily. This same acquaintance with the design and car that proves successful with the owner is of greatest importance at the factory.

"At noon day while at the factory I saw six thousand workmen turn out to lunch from the doors that lined the half mile long street and it is the knowledge and acquaintance of these men with the Overland design that has created such a demand that the factory is justified in turning out a 50,000 car product.

"It is not so much the wealth of special equipment and labor-saving devices that have made the production of 211 cars a day a fact at the Overland factory; it is more the organization of the factory; and the loyalty of the men. This may be explained by the fact that there are in the factory 700 men who have been working there for 15 years. In one machine shop room 80 per cent of the men have been there for 10 years. Of the thirty-three foremen in the Overland factory there have been only two who have changed during the past five years and never have any of the superintendents of the departments been changed. Many of the men never have worked in any other factory than this plant.

"This long service has a double effect. Not only has it made the men wonderfully adept at their own particular jobs, but it has given them a feeling of loyalty and a feeling of proprietorship that could be gained no other way than by long service."

PRISONER-BRIDE ESCAPES PARENTS

PUEBLO, March 14.—After having completely deceived her parents, Dr. and Mrs. T. A. Stoddard, for the past month and leading them to believe that surveillance over her was unnecessary, Mrs. Helen Stoddard Gottlieb, 20 years old, literally dashed from the Congress hotel, where she lived with her parents, joined [illegible] with whom she eloped during the middle of October, and the last heard of the couple they were safely on their way to New York.

The escape of Mrs. Gottlieb from the hotel on the first occasion that she had been left alone by her parents since her marriage, Oct. 15, was no less melodramatic than the wedding itself, which took place at Colorado Springs. The young woman had been invited to a sewing party at another apartment in the hotel, and, as she passed the desk she was handed a letter by one of the clerks. The contents of the envelope are supposed to have contained an outline of the plans which were followed out later.

WEDDING ROMANTIC.

A few moments following, Mrs. Gottlieb excused herself from the company and left, ostensibly to rejoin her mother, who was suffering from a headache upstairs. Instead, Mrs. Gottlieb slipped out of the side door and into a waiting taxicab, was driven several miles to another point, where she joined her husband, and another waiting machine took them either to Fowler or Manzanola. They were seen at the latter point where they had dinner before boarding a Santa Fe train for New York city, where they will reside.

Gottlieb, a German violinist, married Miss Helen Stoddard, the attractive and accomplished society girl, October 15, at Colorado Springs, the pair eloping from this city. They returned to Pueblo the same evening, however, at the earnest and apparently friendly solicitation of the bride's parents. When the elopers returned to Pueblo the bride was forcibly taken from her husband. Since that time Mrs. Gottlieb never had been face to face with her husband, and communication had been carried on clandestinely through friends.

Mrs. Gottlieb is thought to confidently have believed that if she carried out her plan and went to her husband at once, it would result in the possible death of her parents, both of whom were manifestly broken-hearted over the wedding, so strong was their objection to Gottlieb. A month following their wedding, Dr. Stoddard and his daughter toured on the Pacific coast, keeping their whereabouts secret, and during that time Gottlieb returned to New York, but reappeared here a few days following the return of the bride.

During the two months and a half Mrs. Gottlieb has been constantly under the eye of one of her parents. However, she was permitted to attend her first social affair since her marriage, although she was chaperoned.

A month and a half ago Gottlieb was made professor of the violin at the Ullman Conservatory of Music in New York, but he was unable to fill his duties, pre[illegible]der to be near his wife in Pueblo.

CADILLAC OWNER ON A WILD RIDE

Desperate Drives Takes Many Chances With Storms in South.

Harry Brown of Los Angeles received a telegram from Calexico telling him of the killing and robbery of his friend, and as quickly as he could secure supplies for his Cadillac he left with Nathan Landsberg for the Imperial Valley. The night he started south proved to be the start of the worst rainstorm California has known for 25 years. Half way to San Diego the rain overtook Brown and the roads became running rivers. The creeks were out of their banks and the lowlands were [illegible] and despite the storm he continued to push his Cadillac through the storm. At San Luis Rey he was almost washed away, but got through with a short delay, and cutting off East through the mountains passed through Escondido and on through the night at record-breaking speed to the top of the Poway Grade. Here he turned to the left toward Lakeside. A few miles out of Lakeside he came onto the swollen river, which was coming down with such force that the water had cut the bank away to a depth of three feet on one side and two feet on the other. Spurned to desperation, Brown took a long run and splashed into the stream at 40 miles an hour. Only the momentum carried him through. Both men were drenched, but they were safely on the opposite side and continued their rush over the flat roads around Lakeside and then into the dangerous mountains which bar the way into the Imperial Valley. The ride through these hills proved to be one of the most dangerous and hair-raising ever taken by a car.

"Rain was falling in solid sheets," said Brown. "It was almost impossible to see, and I know in our haste we must have taken some terrible chances. Fallen trees and immense boulders blocked our way, and I now marvel how we ever got over them. Some were so large it was necessary to draw them out of the road, but where there was any chance we hurdled the obstructions and continued our run. In all the small canyons the road was washed away completely, and it seemed that some unseen power was helping the Cadillac tear through the washouts. Mud was often up to the running boards. We pulled up in front of the hotel at Calexico at 6 next morning.

"On the return we did not realize the damage that had been done, and taking the road via Warner's attempted to get through the Pala country. Here we found bridges washed away and it was necessary to ford the Pala river. Trees had been washed down the mountain sides and we were cutting trees with immense axes all night. We made 12 miles, and coming around a turn found ouresives stopped by a solid mountain. There had been a landslide, which will close this road for some time. We then returned to San Diego, and as I had had enough hard work the car was slipped up and we went to bed for a rest. Charles Fernald of the King Cotton Hotel was with us on the return trip."

LEE TIRE MAKERS VISITING COAST

The flag of prosperity continues to wave proudly on every avenue of the automobile industry, and from the present indications it looks as though 1914 is going to be another record year in the history of the trade. The foregoing is what might be termed a composite statement of A. A. Garthwaite, treasurer of the Lee Tire & Rubber Company, and H. E. Field of the Kelley-Field Company, general sales agents for the Lee factory. These two tire men arrived in San Francisco yesterday, the former coming to the city by way of the northern route and the latter taking the southern path. While here they will make their headquarters with Henry D. McCoy and Phil Lyon of the Chanslor-Lyon Company, coast distributors of the Lee tires.

Field's mission to the coast was to establish new agencies in unoccupied territory, and he is most pleased with the success of his work. He says the new representatives he secured are of a character that show the business man has [illegible] and in practically all the places he visited he noted that the general feeling is that a big season's business will be booked in 1914. "My firm is now handling 800 Lee tires and 1000 Lee tubes daily, and from the orders that I have booked so far on this trip we willh ave to call on the factory to increase our allotment."

Garthwaite's tour by way of the north was more to study existing conditions and to stir up increased interest in the Lee [illegible]

KRIT 'SPECIAL' ROADSTER HERE

Among the new auto arrivals that are proving popular in Oakland this week is the Krit special roadster that C. F. Orra of the Orra Auto Sales Company has brought to this city.

This roadster which Orra is selling at $675 delivered in Oakland has a twenty-five horsepower motor and practically all of the features generally found in roadsters costing nearly twice as much. He arranged with the Krit factory during his recent visit in the East for a large allotment of these special type roadsters for the trade here and claims that the demand has been so keen that his judgment in grabbing the major portion of the factory's output on this special type roadster is justified.

Orra has already placed many of the special type roadsters in this territory and stated yesterday that from present indications his allotment will not last half long enough to suit him.

Three thousand one hundred and fifty-six miles with a repair cost of only 17 cents, is the motorcycle record made by Roland C. Bleser of Two Rivers, Wisconsin.

LOZIER 'FOUR' HAS POWERFUL ENGINE

Tested Out on the Broderick Street Climb in City of Hills.

"The statement that the buyers of motor cars had settled on the six cylinder as the logical automobile, is being disproved by the new Lozier Four," says Arthur Chisholm, Oakland manager for the Bekins-Speer Motor Co., agent in California for the Lozier car.

"The Lozier factory builds both fours and sixes. There is a market for both and always will be as each design has its special advantages. Since the arrival of the Lozier Four we have done a most gratifying business principally for the reason of the wonderful power and ability it shows on demonstration.

"We have yet to find a street in Oakland or San Francisco that is too steep for its power. This statement was made the other day along the San Francisco row and we were invited to try what is known as the Broderick street hill running from Vallejo to Broadway. Not knowing just what it was we drove out to take a look at it and I honestly confess I did not believe the four could make it for the reason I could not understand how a car could get traction on it. However, there was nothing like trying and we sent the four up the hill. There was no chance to get a run at it. Vallejo street on one side is a steep ascent and on the other a steep descent while back of it on Broderick is still another steep descent so we had nothing level except where the streets cross.

"Up started the Lozier Four on the low over the rough cobbles and every minute we were expecting to see the wheels spin but there was never a hesitation. After that climb I know of nothing that can stop the four.

"We tried it again for the sake of some pictures and had a splendid demonstration of the holding power of the brakes. We went half way up the hill and then lowered the car on the brakes not using the engine. The demonstration as a whole shows that the Lozier factory has turned out a four cylinder car that can not be surpassed."

"Hills that are stickers for automobiles are easy for my motorcycle," says L. C. Curtis of West Union, Iowa.

RANCHMAN USES MOTORCYCLE.

Ranch life without a motorcycle would be extremely dull, according to D. Spencer, who is employed on a ranch near Goldsmith, Wyoming. The ranch on which Spencer works is 47 miles from Cheyenne and eleven miles from a postoffice. On his two-wheeler he can go to town for the mail in about one third of the time it formerly took with a horse. He is also enabled to run into Cheyenne on Saturday evenings and spend Sunday with his people. Spencer also makes use of his motorcycle on the ranch, finding it very serviceable in rounding up the range horses.

OPPOSES UNFAIR AUTO TIRE LAWS

"The recent agitation of laws requiring non-skids to be used on motor vehicles strikes me as wholly unnecessary," says H. M. Bacon, manager Diamond Tire sales of the B. F. Goodrich Company, Akron, Ohio.

"In the first place the tendency to burden motorists with irksome laws is being overworked by too many zealous individuals today. What the automobile industry needs most is more instruction and less legislation.

"It is advanced that in Europe there are laws compelling certain types of non-skid tires to be used, for the safety of the highways, and that such laws should be passed in this country.

"Although the dangers of skidding cannot be passed by or overlooked, yet the almost universal tendency toward tires that are designed to prevent skidding shows clearly that such a law would be uncalled for over here. In fact, such laws might tend to work contrary to the interests of society. Because a man has complied with a single phase of the law and placed non-skid tires on his cars does not relieve the driver from his bigger duty to drive carefully. The psychology of the matter is that such a law would in this way place a premium on reckless driving. Non-skid tires cannot insure against recklessness any more than a life insurance policy can insure immortality.

"The best way to work this problem of safety out is to impress the idea of carefulness upon motorists and pedestrians just as is now being done, and let them of their own accord come to [illegible]ves.

"[illegible] believe the time is coming when cars with smooth tread tires will be as conspicuous by the absence of non-skid treads as motor cars without self-starters are today. The ever increasing demand for our "Squeege Tread" shows this tendency, for nearly 75 per cent of the demand for Diamond tires this year calls for the "Squeege Tread" while last year it was about 25 per cent.

"Then why legislate when people of their own accord are coming to the non-skid in such overwhelming numbers?

"If manufacturers simply let the people know the advantages of their product, and appeal to their sense of fairness to protect the rights of others, it would be infinitely better than any unfair legislation."

UP-TO-DATE CHINAMAN.

Charlie Yen Hi is a progressive Chinese gardener who lives outside of Los Angeles, Cal. By much hard labor he has been ablze to raise larger and better crops than his competitors. Then came the question of how to get his vegetables to market more quickly than his neighbors were able to do. This problem the up-to-date Chinaman solved by purchasing a motorcycle, on the carrier of which he loads his fresh vegetables each morning and hustles them to town before his competitors are fairly started.

KNIGHT TO CLOSE HIS ARGUMENT THURSDAY

SAN FRANCISCO, March 14.—Attorney Samuel Knight had not concluded his argument for a new trial in behalf of the convicted Western Fuel officials when court adjourned today and the case was put over until next Thursday afternoon.

Knight was the only member of the staff of attorneys retained by the defendants to address the court this morning. His argument for a new trial based upon the fact that some of the jurors had read the Knave section of the Oakland TRIBUNE of February 8 concerning the New York sugar frauds was listened to with interest by a crowded courtroom.

Judge Dooling allowed the session to go over until the afternoon and then continued the matter until Thursday. Attorney Theodore Roche will make the reply for the government.

WASHINGTON, March 14.—Following the lead of the Republican and Bull Moose leaders of the minority, Representatives Doremus and O'Shaughnessy, Democrats, late this afternoon submitted a minority report on the Panama canal tolls repeal bill.

The two Democrats stood pat on the free-tolls action taken by the Sixty-second Congress and declared this position has been strengthened by later developments.

YREKA OFFICIAL MEETS SISTER AFTER 50 YEARS

YREKA, March 14.—Under Sheriff F. C. Pollard, who is also editor and manager of the Yreka Journal, is being visited by a sister, Mrs. S. A. Shively, whom he has not seen for 50 years. In fact, it may be said that they never met until Tuesday, when he greeted Mrs. Shively and another sister, Mrs. Ellen Ponham of Dayton, Nev., as they were [illegible] him in Yreka.

Mrs. Shively, now aged 63, was married in Butte county in 1864 when Pollard was a baby aged 6 months. Of course he does not remember her and she has not recollection of him. After marriage Mrs. Shively and her husband went east where they resided ever since. Circumstances were such that she never had a chance to visit her brother nor he to visit her. Consequently they never met until Tuesday.

Mrs. Shively, whose home is in Sherman, [illegible], was in Dayton, Nev., with her sister, Mrs. Ellen Ponham, when their mother died there on January 10. After the funeral they went to Fairfield to visit Mrs. Shively's son, and now they have come to Yreka to make a long visit with their brother, F. C. Pollard, and Mrs. Pollard.

TRUST HEARINGS WILL CLOSE ABOUT APRIL 1

WASHINGTON, March 14.—The house judiciary committee Tuesday will decide when it shall close trust hearings. Indications tonight pointed to continuance until April 1, inasmuch as hearings are now booked through to March 24th.

The situation in the judiciary committee tonight was admittedly much "up in the air." Scarcely any two committeemen agree upon what ought to be in the bills. Many problems are giving the committee grave concern. Chief among these is that of price fixing. Witnesses have plainly indicated that they do not want the price-fixing power abrogated but the committee faces the administration edict that this power must go.

JURY TO PASS UPON GIRL THIEF'S CASE

PORTLAND, Oregon, March 14.—For the second time in the history of the [illegible] called upon Monday to decide whether or not Norine Pikes, 15, is delinquent. Norine was recently arrested at San Francisco just after she had [illegible] on a charge of stealing jewels, party dresses and [illegible] lingerie from her mates at St. Mary's college, a fashionable girls' school near here.

Juries have been called to determine whether or not a child was dependent but only one previous juvenile defendant has demanded one to determine delinquency.

BATTLE FOR CHILD TO TAKE PLACE IN NORTH

SPOKANE, Wash., March 14.—Mrs. [illegible] Clement at the door of Holy Cross Academy, Portland, Thursday, bundled [illegible] across the Columbia river into Vancouver, Wash., and out of the jurisdiction of the Oregon officers, arrived here tonight. House Committee Is After Rockefeller

WASHINGTON, March 14.—The house probers of the Colorado mine strike want John D. Rockefeller. The edict went forth tonight that he will have to be a witness before the subcommittee prior to completion of its investigation.

Rockefeller controls the Colorado Fuel and Iron Company. The committee wants to know what effect this control has on the bitter industrial warfare which they discovered in the recent trips to the Colorado coal fields.

Simultaneously it became known that the Michigan strike probers are on the trail of President Quincy and Manager Agassiz of the Calumet & Hecla company.

Representative Taylor, chairman of this committee, was inclined to believe tonight that he would have his committee investigate in the company's headquarters at Boston rather than in this city. Incidentally, he characterized the conditions maintained by this company as fuedalism.

Jurymen Darlings,', She Says, After Vote

NEW YORK, March 14.—Mrs. Ida von Claussen, commited to Matteawan last fall as insane, was today adjudged competent to manage her own affairs by a jury before Commissioner Phoenix Ingraham.

"Oh, you darlings, you darlings," Mrs. von Claussen exclaimed as she shook the hands of the jurors after [illegible]. She was then returned to Matteawan. Her attorney will immediately sue out a writ of habeas corpus for her release, and if granted Mrs. von Claussen will probably be tried for having sent a threatening letter to Charles Strauss, head of the board of water supply.

Mrs. von Claussen has repeatedly attracted attention, having once threatened to sue President Roosevelt and the government for $1,000,000 for interfering with her social career when the American ambassador to Sweden refused to present her at coutr.

COMMITTEE WILL SEEK NATION'S WATER WEALTH

WASHINGTON, March 14.—Following out the suggestions of Secretary of the Interior Lane several weeks ago that all of the national resources should be opened up and this storehouse of wealth unlocked, a Senate sub-committee was named this afternoon to begin an investigation of the entire water power question.

It is planned that this committee, of which Senator Simmons of North Carolina is chairman, will discuss the differences [illegible] of Federal and State governments and work out a compromise measure which will make possible the speedy utilization of the millions of horsepower now going to waste in undeveloped water-power sites.

SAYS STATE HIGHWAY FUND IS TOO SMALL

SAN FRANCISCO, March 14.—Austin B. Fletcher, state railway engineer, discussed the problems of the State Road before the Commonwealth Club today. He declared that the chief matter for consideration was how it was best to build 2700 miles of road on an $18,000,000 appropriation.

The highway must be built in such a manner that the people will be reasonably satisfied, and so that the cost of maintenance will not be excessive," he said. "This means on the average including administrative expense that the road must not cost more than $6640 per mile, which is obviously too little if the whole system is to be paved."

FRANCIS SCOTT KEY'S STATUE IS PLUGGED

SAN FRANCISCO, March 14.—The statue of Francis Scott Key in Golden Gate park has been plugged. Thereby hangs a tale which, it is said, will hold up some of the town's art connisseurs to ridicule.

The statue is made of travertin which is inclined to crumble causing holes and allowing for peculiar tints and shades which artists love. Some of our near artists not knowing the properties of travertin brought about the plugging of the fissures.

Waldo Story, the sculptor, whose father made the statue, was taken to the park to view its "crumbled" condition not long since and then the actions of some San Franciscans who had brought about the plugging of the travertin were exposed.

They were unable to overcome the unerring accuracy of the Cardinal goal throwers. A large crowd witnessed the contest.

PRACTICAL DEADLOCK IN NEW HAVEN ACTION

WASHINGTON, March 14.—With a practical deadlock the only result of their two-days' work, the conferees in the New Haven case adjourned late today to meet again next Friday, the next day after the New Haven directors hold their regular meeting in New York. At that time President Howard Elliott will lay before them teh definite demands of the Department of Justice, the refusal of which [illegible]

Two Strikers Killed At Oak Creek Mines

DENVER, Colo., March 14.—Two striking United Mine Workers were shot and killed late tonight at Oak Creek, northern Colorado, according to a long-distance telephone message received here at midnight. No details of the affair have been received except that the strikers are supposed to have slain by non-union men.

Strikers and strikebreakers in the Oak Creek camp have been quarreling all day and this led to tonight's tragedy at 10:30 p. m.

Oak Creek is near Steamboat Springs in the Routt county coal fields. It was from this place a dozen union leaders were deported by an organization of citizens in December. Afterward Governor Ammons sent a company of militiamen who remained on duty until last week.

"What is the trouble between you and your husband?" Judge Sullivan asked.

"He strikes me," Mrs. Johnson said.

LEGACY GIVEN M'CREERY FAMILY

SAN FRANCISCO, March 14.—The secret of the sudden acquiesence on the part of all those concerned in the restoration to competency of Walter McCreery, the millionaire clubman and polo player, lies in safeguarding the interests of Mrs W. A. McCreery, his divorced wife, and their four sons.

As the result of a deed filed yesterday provision is made for Mrs. McCreery and the children whereby they will receive between $600,000 and $700,000 as a permanent legacy.

It was the fact that McCreery consented to make permanent provision for his wife and children that led Attorneys Morrison, Dunne and Brobeck, representing H H. McPike, his guardian, to consent to his restoration to competency.

Accordingly, when Judge Dunne made the order restoring to him his estates he lost no time in carrying out his agreement with McPike and the latter's lawyers. When McCreery was originally declared incompetent, it was feared by his friends and relatives that he would give away all his money

HAD DELUSION.

In August, 1912, when he returned home from England, he held the delusion that he was an African chief, attired himself in fantastic garb, wore socks of multi-colored hue and would give away his personal belongings to the first stranger he met.

McPike hired a home in Fruitvale and there established his charge in luxury, albeit in restraint. Subsequently the young man was removed to the ranch at Los Muertos, and gradually his mental faculties returned, with the result that the English alienists pronounced him cured.

McCreery is a careful spender, as a rule, and the question arises how he will deal in this regard with Attorney Otto Wise of this city and Attorney J. Benjamin Spellman of New York, who were largely instrumental in having him restored to competency.

McCreery is only 42 years old He was a millionaire before his father, Andrew B. McCreery, died last year, leaving him an additional $600,000. He spent much time in England, having a palatial home at Bilta Park, Rugby. His country estate was vast, and there it was that he had his famous polo field During the days of his happy married life he was received by the best people in English society, and was looked upon as a charming host and a most cultured gentleman. A graduate of Oxford, he was naturally at home in England, and his generous nature, combined with the attractiveness of Mrs. McCreery, led the couple to being feted everywhere.

Portland Unemployed Get Further Respite

PORTLAND, Ore. March 14.—Although Chief of Police John Clark planned yesterday to close at once the Gypsy Smith Tabernacle, where 1500 idle men have lodged during the winter, it was later decided at a conference with Mayor H B. Albee to postpone the action. April 1 will probably be the date on which the men will be driven out and forced to accept employment or leave the city.

The plan to rout the unemployed yesterday was the outgrowth of the refusal of most of them to go to work as section hands for the Oregon-Washington Railroad and Navigation Company. It was said that after 100 men had signed up, Industrial Workers of the World organizers induced the men not to leave on the allegation that the railroad was unfair.

HOME RULE BLOCK STILL IMMOVABLE

Permanent Exclusion of Four Counties Demanded

LONDON, March 14.—A settlement of the Irish Home Rule difficulty apparently has been little advanced by the British government's great concessions to the Ulsterists and taking the assertions of both political parties at their face value, the deadlock today remains as immovable as before Premier Asquith's conciliatory offer was made in the House of Commons March 9. The signers of the Ulster covenant declare strongly that nothing less than the permanent exclusion of the Protestant counties of Ulster from the Irish government at Dublin, instead of the proposed six-year option, will be considered by them.

The more radical covenanters demand not only the exclusion of the four counties—Antrim, Armagh, Londonderry, and Down—in which the Protestants are in the majority, but they want the entire province of Ulster excluded.

TO MAKE STATEMENTS GOOD.

Sir Edward Carson, leader of the Ulster Unionists, sent a message to Belfast today saying:

"So far as our preparations are concerned, the pronouncement of the government, if anything, necessitates a still more forward movement this year. We are going to make good in action all we have been saying and preparing for during the last two years."

On the other side the government newspapers assert that Premier Asquith's scheme is the absolute limit of concessions and is not a basis for further negotiations.

Winston Spencer Churchill, First Lord of the British Admiralty, speaking at Bradford, Yorkshire, today said:

"It seems to me that in principle—I don't speak of details—that it is the last offer His Majesty's government can or ought to make."

Sir Edward Russell, who is a close friend of Premier Asquith, writing in the Liverpool Daily Post, of which he is the editor, takes a different view He says:

"In non-political clubs everybody is confident that Premier Asquith has [illegible] alists go, that sooner or later he will tell Mr. Redmond that the only feasible home rule is one with the entire exclusion of Ulster."

BITTER DENOUNCEMENTS.

Irish Nationalist newspapers declare that John Redmond, the Irish Nationalist leader in the House of Commons, and his colleagues, could not possibly support a bill containing further surrenders from the original scheme of home rule. Some of the Nationalist organs bitterly denounce the Nationalist members for submitting to Premier Asquith's terms

Little talk is now heard that the Orangemen's preparations to fight are a gigantic bluff. The Covenanters claims to have 90,000 men drilling in Sir Edward Carson's army, with 60,000 rifles and some pieces of artillery.

Churchill, in commenting today in his Bradford address on the preparations being made in Ulster to resist Home Rule, said:

"The first British soldier or coast guard who is attacked and killed by the Orangemen will raise such an explosion in this country as the Tories little appreciate, and it will shake the foundations of society."

Gale Rips Off Roofs Of Over 100 Houses

QUEENSTOWN, Ireland, March 14.—A severe gale caused heavy damage to property and shipping here today. The roofs of over 100 houses were ripped off by the wind.

The Cunard liner Andania from Boston, after being delayed for several hours in the inner harbor, was obliged to put to Liverpool without landing her passengers. The Haverford for Philadelphia was also kept in the harbor for several hours.

New Haven R. R. Must Sell Its S. S. Lines

WASHINGTON, March 24.—Department of Justice attorneys in charge of the New Haven dissolution, at their conference today with the road's counsel, revived their demand that the New Haven prepare to get rid of its so-called Sound Steamship Lines. The demand came as a surprise to New Haven officials and to officials of the department itself, not directly connected with the negotiations.

PREDICTS END OF WORLD SOON

"Gray Headed Men Here Will See Christ Come," Says Adventist.

"Gray headed men sitting here in this audience will live to see Christ come," said Elder G B Thompson, secretary of the North American Conference of Seventh Day Adventists, in a sermon in the Oakland Seventh Day Adventist church, on Twenty-fifth street, last night. "We are now living in the last generation of men who will stand on the earth. In a little while fifteen hundred million souls [illegible] are your neighbors and mine—some of them our children and loved ones. Some [illegible] probation's hour will close some of these days."

The sermon was heard by an audience that packed the church, and which included in its numbers leading clergymen of the denomination from the states of California, Nevada, Arizona and Utah. It was the first discourse in connection with the biennial convention of the Pacific Union Conference, which has been in progress since last Tuesday, and which will continue another week Clergymen were also present from the world conference, which has its headquarters in Washington, D. C.

Elder Thompson based his sermon on Revelations 10. Continuing, he said:

"While no man knows the day, or the hour, or the year of Christ's return to this earth, we are sure the hour is near when the oath of the angel as recorded in this verse will be fulfilled, and the work of God will be finished We never have set the year for Christ's coming, but I am glad your eyes and mine can see that great consummation of all the ages.

BASES PROPHESY ON BIBLE.

"It will be a very solemn hour when the last meeting has been held, when we have gone to the last union conference, when we have published the last book and we have reached the end But we are coming to that time God's word has never failed, and it never can fail.

"The Bible tells us the mystery of God is to be finished during the time when the seventh angel begins to sound. Some might say that time began in 1844, and hardly any of us would think it later than that. That is three-score and ten years in the last generation. The man who believes that will be shaping up his business for heaven If he believes that, he will begin to make his deposit in the bank of heaven instead of widening out and getting more ranches. he will get some of them transferred into the new earth. I tell you, brethren, its time to believe it, and time as preachers that we lived it before the people. Seventy years is when the last generation is gray headed, tottering on the verge of the grave, feeble and hoary with age

"I am glad your eyes and mine can see great consummation of all ages. I am glad we can look on gray-headed people tonight and know some of them will live till the gospel work is finished that we can pick out the gray-headed patriarchs of this cause and know some of them will live till it is all done and God's people are translated If we believe that, it is time to wake up I think it is time God's people waked up and got ready to go to heaven

"In this awful hour, when the probation of a world is closing, we need God's help in our work In a little while fifteen hundred million souls will have sealed their destiny We ought to be concerned about it."

ANDROSS RE-ELECTED.

Pastor E. E. Andross of St. H[illegible] was re-elected president of the Pacific Union conference of Seventh Day Adventists at today's session of the biennial convention which is being held in their church here This will be Pastor Andross' second term The other officers chosen for the coming two years were Weaks of Mountain View.

For a number of years Claude Conard of Oakland the new secretary-treasurer, held a similar position in the California Coast conference which has its headquarters in Oakland He succeeds J. J Ireland of Mountain View who goes to Washington D C., as the auditor of the North American conference

CONSIDER EDUCATION.

Considerable time was given to the school question in the union An interesting report was given by Professor Lucas, the educational secretary Professor C. W Irwin president of Pacific Union College at St. Helena, told of the progress that has been made at that institution during the past two years Professor Irwin says that this college draws students from all four states in the union territory and other places He said that extensive improvements have been made there, and that the school is in a flourishing condition A permanent summer school for teachers and others is to be established at Pacific Union College This school is to be attended by teachers from the church schools and academies in the union conference territory A teachers' bureau is to be established by the educational department of the conference for the purpose of strengthening the church school work by securing the services of Adventist teachers who are now engaged in public school work.

Trustees for the Pacific Union College for the next two years were elected as follows E. E. Andross, E W Farnsworth, F. M. Burg, E J Hibbard, C. W. Irwin, C. H. Jones, W. C. White and P. J. Wolfsen.

PASTOR MAKES PREDICTION.

Seventh-Day Adventists from San Francisco, Oakland, San Jose, Mountain View, Berkeley, Alameda Melrose, Stockton, Vallejo, Healdsburg, Napa, St. Helena, Fort Bragg and other places, yesterday heard Pastor I. H Evans, the leading clergyman of the Seventh-Day Adventist denomination in North America, declare that the second coming of Christ is near at hand.

The announcement that President Evans was to speak brought an increased attendance The speaker emphasized the necessity of having clean hearts and displaying real missionary zeal He said there are enough believers in San Francisco and Oakland to warn these two great cities in a little while, and frequently through his discourse he admonished his hearers to arouse themselves and realize the responsibilities which have been placed upon them in doing their share.

Pastor Evans based his remarks on John 14 10, "If ye love Me Keep My commandments" He said, "I believe of all the things that ought to possess God's people today it should be the supreme desire to get rid of sin. I believe that is of the greatest importance in all the things that pertain to this life and the life to come You may talk about the advancement of this work, and we are all encouraged with its advancement and progress We may say we are doing a great and mighty work in foreign lands We praise the Lord for all this success, but I hold there is still a greater thing of more importance, so that there is nothing second to it at all in our experience, and that is that we as men and children of God, attain to that high standard of Christian Life that sin shall be dead in our bodies and no longer have dominion over us As sure as we are giving God's message to the world, that experience must come to this people.

URGES CHRISTIAN LIFE.

"There isn't anything you can name that is of such importance to the people of God as to be able to say truly that they have learned the secret of Christian living and have an experience that they are dead to sin And really I think, my friends, that that is one of the things we as a people must set ourselves about—to find that experience when men and women can say, and truly say from the heart, that we have found our Lord and that we are dead to sin

"For if it is the truth that the Lord is coming and as we believe sincerely here it is imperative that a people get ready for their Lord We can not go on with our old experience We cannot my friends, keep on in the way we have been going for twenty, or thirty, or forty years There must be a preparation for the coming of Jesus Christ. If this message we are giving to the world will not prepare our own hearts for the coming of the Lord it seems to me it is falling far short of what we profess to be giving to the world. Therefore, my friends, I think we must give some thought and some study to whether we are prepared, or whether we are preparing for the Lord's coming."

PASTORS ON PLATFORM.

On the platform with Pastor Evans were Pastors E. W. Farnsworth, president of the California Conference, J. N Loughborough, who pioneered the Adventist denomination in California 45 years ago, J O Corliss of Los Angeles E E Andross, president of the Pacific Union Conference Prof E J Hibbard, Bible instructor of Pacific Union College, and W. A. Spicer of Washington D C secretary of the General World Conference of the denomination

It was the principal service of the Sabbath-day program, which had been planned especially in connection with the biennial convention of the North Pacific Union Conference, which has been in progress since the early part of last week. With the going down of the sun Friday afternoon, the delegates from all parts of California Arizona, Utah and Nevada attending the convention began the observance of the Sabbath, and continued its observance until sundown yesterday.

The Adventist church on Twenty-fifth street was packed Friday night for the first preaching service of the Sabbath, which was also the first public meeting of the convention

Preceding the sermon special selections were rendered by the Pacific Union College quartet and Messrs. Ernest Lloyd and L. C Colcord of Los Angeles, who sang a duet.

CULTIVATE FLY-EATING FLOWERS

Why swat the fly? Plant a few fly-eating flowers about the house and let them do the work. It's a case of you planting the bulbs and they'll do the rest, for Oakland, it has been proved, can grow the most rare examples of horticultural variation—the "pitcher plant" and the "fly-eating hyacinth." Of course, they're expensive when flies run out, for beefsteak, their other diet, comes high in these days of the high cost of living, but still it would take many flowers to eat as much meat as a pug dog. So, on the whole, the vegetable fly-swatter should be a success

California, famed as the land where anything and everything in the way of vegetation can be grown, has made good its claim to the last detail by raising carnivorous plants, heretofore never seen outside of hothouses, save in South America. The pitcher plant which "eats" flies or bits of meat, and a fly-eating hyacinth are the plants, raised in the open air and nourished with meat, that have put Oakland on the map as the garden land of the state The remarkable plants are in the garden of H. S. Foreman, 2332 Webster street, of this city.

RAISED IN OPEN AIR.

Foreman, who is an enthusiastic amateur gardener and has made a close study of plant life, succeeded in raising the plants in the open air through the use of strong nitrogen fertilizers and several stretches of sunshine that gave them their start. They are fed daily by children of the neighborhood, who catch flies for the flowers. The hyacinths have the best appetites of the two.

The plants are not new to science. Some in South America they have even grown large enough to devour small birds They have never, however, been grown in the open air before save in the tropics.

"What's the use of swatting the fly," asks Foreman, "when a couple of potted plants in a room do the work far more easily?" In the meantime the plants furnish amusement for Bertha Ellen Hyde, Lee Hyde, Stella Hyde, Margaret Willia Evans and other children of the neighborhood.

SEES PRACTICAL DEVELOPMENT.

"I believe these plants may be developed to a size that would make them practical as exterminators of flies," declared Foreman. "They will have to be cross-bred, however, first, for now they are quite delicate despite their carnivorous habits, and require constant care. However, that's a matter that time and science may work out."

The plants when first brought from South America were planted in the Oakland garden much as any other flowers, and only after they sprouted were they subjected to the nitrogen treatment. This was done by transplanting them in a nitrogen compound known only to Foreman, and shortly after this the fly diet was begun As the plants increased in size raw meat was administered

WESTERN PACIFIC TO HAVE HEARING

Deep Water Terminal Franchise Will Be Taken Up With Council.

The Western Pacific Railway Company tomorrow morning will petition the Oakland City Council for a hearing in the matter of the railroad's 50-year franchise on the Oakland waterfront, Attorney Charles E. Snook appearing for the railroad. The matter involved comprises the franchise of the railroad for a deep-water terminal on the harbor, constituting a strip of land 3800 feet long and a little over 500 feet wide, lying immediately north of the railroad mole and terminal, and a fairway in front of both holdings. The Western Pacific has failed to make the necessary improvements on the deep-water terminal under the terms of the franchise, and recently asked for an extension of time in which to do the work. The day set for the completion of this work was January 15 of this year, and at that time the council granted a stay of proceedings until April 18, to take the matter under advisement

The franchise, which fully covered the rights of the Western Pacific in terminal facilities, was passed by the city council and approved by the mayor January 18, 1908. The franchise covered all rights of the Western Pacific, but divided the holdings into two divisions. One comprises the land now occupied by the terminal tracks, mole, freight and passenger slips, and specified that within three years from the date of the passage of the ordinance all the necessary tracks, switches, depots, freight sheds, shops and roundhouses, slips and other equipment necessary for the handling of freight and passenger business should be erected and placed in operation This has been done by the Western Pacific.

DEEP-WATER TERMINAL.

The other division under the franchise constitutes a strip of land 3800 feet long and a little over 500 feet wide, lying immediately north of the present mole and ferry slips, for a deep-water terminal. Six years was given for the erection of wharf and all necessary buildings and equipment to operate a freight and passenger service to and from deep-water vessels and for the dredging of a fairway in front of such wharf and the dredging of a fairway between the deep-water terminal and the present terminal. This work has not been done by the Western Pacific.

In addition to the improvements required, the Western Pacific has been charged a rental of $1000 a year for the first 25 years of its franchise and $2000 a year for the second 25 years.

OAKLAND DAY AT PLANNING EXHIBIT

Local Citizens to Attend Show Today; Bay Cities' League Members Guests.

"Today we are determining the future. Today we are deciding in a practical sense the size of the chests and the skulls of the children who are to be born and brought up in this city. If we want them small and undersized, we can let conditions go as they please. But if we want them to reach a full and strong development, we must plan for the future of our city, and do it today," declared Dr. Werner Hegermann of Berlin yesterday afternoon in an address delivered before the Bay Cities League of Municipalities at its regular session held in the new City Hall council chambers The delegates had just been taken through the various sections of the big city-planning exhibit, and later were taken to the top of the new City Hall to obtain a view of the city.

Mayor Frank K. Mott, president of the Bay Cities League, introduced the speakers. Dr. Hegerman, John E. Lathrop of the American City Bureau of New York and Mayor Thomas Monahan of San Jose addressed the session.

TO MEET IN SAN JOSE.

It was agreed that the next convention of the Bay Cities League shall be held in San Jose at the invitation of Mayor Monahan. It will be held in May.

Dr. Hegermann told of the genesis of city planning, and of its purposes. He said in part.

"The greatest city planning work has been done in Germany, although the first city planning exhibition was held in New York in 1909 Berlin followed after I had reported the excellence of the work and the idea, having spent some days studying the exhibit. I was called to Berlin to assist in the work.

"The city-planning exhibit idea has been developed until as we have it in this excellent exhibition it forms a real modern traveling university. As it goes across the continent it improves, each city adding new material.

DEMOCRATIC PRINCIPLE.

"We must realize that the city planning is the outcome of the application of the democratic principle of government The men who built the great cities which you so much admire in Europe were men who had the power to do what they wanted to do without referring it to the people. They had great visions of development, they employed experts and they carried the work through along definite lines.

"But where democracy enters, it is necessary to teach the people what is necessary. Bonds must be passed to get the money, and the people are not informed and cannot vote intelligently. Therefore they must be taught. They cannot all be experts, but where the matter is placed before them graphically they can be made to see.

John E. Lathrop delivered an address on the great advantages socially, artistically and economically of city-planning.

"Men dreamed this City Hall two years ago," he said. "It was in the skull of a dreamer. But now it has been dreamed into fact.

"We want to dream cities, and get the practical men to make them into reality.

"City planning is progress along the evolutionary line. It is not revolution; it is not stagnation.

"City planning is going forward intelligently and with due regard to the rights of all, toward a greater and fairer future."

HUNDREDS IN ATTENDANCE.

Hundreds of visitors came today from San Francisco to view the City Planning exhibit. It is planned to place the exhibit in a store in San Francisco and charge 50 cents admission for it, and San Francisco citizens crowded to Oakland today to see the exhibit free, with the beautiful interior of the new City Hall as an added attraction.

Today will be Oakland day at the exhibit, and Mayor Frank K. Mott and James D. Phelan, former mayor of San Francisco, will deliver addresses at the general meeting to be held at four o'clock this afternoon. The subject will be "The Making of a City."

DAY, MARCH 21.

$10,000,000 Concessions Are Allotted

Features of Exposition Big Thrillers

Americans, perhaps, are the greatest designers of amusement concessions in the world, and the most wonderful of their productions will be seen at the Panama Pacific Exposition. There will be the masterpieces of the old concessions, and wonderful new inventions designed for novel amusement.

"The Battle of Gettysburg," perhaps the most famous of American amusement concessions, will be revived. This is a great panorama, painted by a celebrated French artist and originally constructed at a cost of $120,0000. It is housed in a round building. The illusion is perfect. The "Forty-Nine Camp" will be another concession along the same line, save that live figures will be shown, and the concession will be a living picture of Bret Harte. The Aeroscope, an inverted pendulum, will carry passengers higher than the highest Ferris Wheel. Yellowstone Park will be accurately reproduced in another concession, and "The Submarine," another novel concession, will take visitors to the bottom of the sea.

Expenditures Double Those of Chicago or St. Louis

More than 100 concessions, which will cost $10,000,000 to construct, have been allotted by Frank Burt, Director of Concessions for the Panama-Pacific International Exposition. This is double the amount expended upon the amusement features at either the Chicago or St. Louis expositions, and it is certain that a great many more of the 7000 applications will be allowed.

Noted showmen and amusement feature experts from all parts of the world have applied for space in the 65-acre tract to be devoted exclusively to the entertainment of the visitors at the Panama-Pacific Exposition.

A few cullings from those already allotted shows the remarkable ingenuity and variety of ideas which are being utilized for amusement. Devices which will thrill and create sensations have been arranged for, while close by will be educational and instructive features and marvelous spectacles and quaint and original restaurants.

TWO EXPENSIVE CONCESSIONS.

Two of the most expensive and elaborate of the concessions, the Grand Canyon of the Arizona and the Toyland Grown-Up, are now nearing completion. The former is to be an exact reproduction on a small scale of the wonder-spot of the United States. The illusion of distance is correctly presented by mathematical formulae, and gazing out of the car-windows as the train-bearing, full-sized coaches over a standard gauge track winds around the "rim" one seemingly will see the cliffs 20 miles away and the bottom of the canyon one and one-half miles below.

Toyland Grown-Up is the $1,000,000-idea of Frederick Thompson, the creator of Luna Park at Coney Island and the New York Hippodrome. The spectacle which he is presenting at the Exposition is the outgrowth of a remark once made by John D. Rockefeller to the effect that he would give a million dollars if he could be made a boy for just one hour.

TOYS FOR GIANTS.

All of the toys which children play with will be displayed in the concession, but all grown to man's and even giant's size. For instance, one Noah's Ark has been erected and is a large three-story building and an exact reproduction of the ordinary Noah's Ark that every boy owns. It will contain life-size mechanical animals and visitors to the ark will be required to undergo the many difficulties which made Noah and Mrs. Noah white-haired before they reached the age of 600 years, and until one has solved the innumerable problems he may not leave the ark.

Scores of amusement devices will be included in the [illegible], and will be constructed on the principle of making every man, woman and child who retains some semblance of the spirit of youth a child again.

Few Californians have frequent opportunities of indulging in winter sports, but at the Exposition, even in the middle of San Francisco's mild summer, visitors to the Exposition will have a chance to skate on real ice, pelt each other with snowballs and toboggan and ski to their hearts's delight. An ice hippodrome is to be constructed and will be 200 by 600 feet in size.

INFANT INCUBATOR SHOWN.

One of the feature concessions will be the Infant Incubator, in which living infants will be on exhibition. Formerly when a baby was born premateurely it was doomed to death. By means of this recently discovered aid to science thousands of babies' lives have been saved. The Incubator will be shown in a building which will have a frontage of 100 feet, and will be under the direction of the child specialist, Dr. M. A. Couney. The tiny patients may be seen through glass doors of their cosy nests.

A spectacular illusion will be presented in the district to be called the "Battle of Gettysburg," and all the thrills of the real battle with the field covered with the old black powder smoke and the shriek of shells will be produced. The illusion is portrayed by means of canvasses with more than 20,000 square feet of surface and painted by Paul Philoppoteaux, a noted French artist. The cost of the painting alone is $120,000.

DOWN IN THE DEEP.

Another illusion which will present a novel vista of the world's life to visitors will be the Submarines. Entering a typical United States Navy submarine the hatch will be closed and the boat will seemingly descend to a great depth in the sea. Lights will then be flashed through the port-holes and views of deep ocean life will be shown to the passengers. The boat will then pass through an allegorical representation of the realms of Neptune and the nymphs, mermaids and the homes of the inhabitants of the deep. The evolution of the submarines will be displayed also, and will afford an educational exhibit.

If one likes to gamble for the pleasure of gambling alone the thrills of winning and losing may be had in a reproduction of an old-time Western gambling-house without any of the attendant joys or sorrows resultant from being in or out of pocket. This will be in the Forty-Nine Camp, a $100,000-concession, in which characters made famous by Bret Harte will walk and ride and live the lives of the miner and prospector of the early California days. The visitors may mingle with these and experience the sensation of being robbed in a typical Western stage coach hold-up.

"CREATION" IS ELABORATE.

"Creation" will be an elaborate scenographic representation of the birth of the world and the first chapter of Genesis will be closely followed. The spectacle will cost $160,000 to reproduce and the building will seat 1000 people.

A Chinese Village will be presented by Jim Wong, a well-known Chinese merchant, and in a beautiful pagoda will be shown a model village of the Celestial. The homes with real Chinese living within will be open for inspection, and on many of the galleries will be located delightful tea gardens and restaurants, while in the streets of the village will be bazaars, in which Chinese goods will be sold.

A description of the "Old Nuremberg Village" leaves one in doubt as to whether the beautiful Nuremberg girls will not prove an attraction equally as great as the quaint and world-famous old market place. For both will be presented in the delightful concession. The market place will be a reproduction of the existent mart of Nuremberg, which has not been changed for more than seven centuries.

AEROSCOPE NOVEL FEATURE.

To those who delight in novel sensations the Aeroscope will prove to be a big feature. Entering a double-decked car, which resembles a two-story house, visitors will be lifted 240 feet into the air by a giant arm and swung in a semi-circle through the air.

Lovers of sweets will be enabled to eat to their heart's content in a beautiful orange grove, and will be supplied with some delightfully original sweetmeats. These will be provided in the Orange Blossom Pavilion, a beautiful and expensive structure artistically decorated.

Rivaling the Grand Canyon, will be the Yellowstone National Park, which will be a marvelously accurate reproduction of the original. In the center of a vast area of artificial forests and timbered mountains will be a large revolving table, on which will be the various geysers and springs which have astounded visitors for generations. It will be possible in a few minutes' walk to gain an excellent conception of the National Park. It will cost several hundred thousand dollars to build and is another creation of Frederick Thompson.

LAD INJURED WHILE DOING PRANK DRIVING

SAN FRANCISCO, March 14.—Believing that he could improve on the conventional method of driving a wagon, Ludwig Person, a 13-year-old lad, by way of a playful prank, proceeded to handle the reins from the horse's back instead of from the seat of the vehicle, and was seriously injured in consequence. Young Person was driving a grocery wagon, when, at Twelfth and Irwin streets, he stepped down on the shaft and climbed upon the horse's back. The animal, unused to the saddle, became frightened at the unaccustomed treatment, broke into a run and dashed at breakneck speed down Irwin street. Several short turns were taken at a dangerous angle, and finally Person was thrown to the pavement.

He suffered severe bruises and contusions of the body and a lacerated scalp, which were treated at the Park Hospital.

FUR SEAL HUNT BADLY HANDICAPPED BY ICE

ST. JOHNS, N. F., March 14.—The annual pursuit of the furseal which was begun Thursday by twenty-one steamers, carrying 4300 men, has been handicaped at the outset by the ice conditions, according to advices received by wireless last night. The prevailing winds have packed the ice inshore, impeding the progress of the vessels.

The disadvantage of those afloat has been turned to gain for shore fishermen who are venturing out over the ice floes in the Gulf of St. Lawrence to kill the seals which are herding there. One man last his life yesterday in this perilous work.

NEW YORK, March 14.—Seventeen thousand pots of shamrock were brought into port yesterday by the Cunard Liner Mauretania for the annual celebration of March 17.

The little green plans were looked after by loyal Irishmen in the Mauretania's crew. Every sailor wore a small bunch on his cap when he came ashore last night.

LAKE SHORE HIT BY ANTI-TRUST DECREE

COLUMBUS, O., March 14. — The terms on which the Hocking Valley, Toledo and Ohio Central, Chesapeake and Ohio and Lake Shore and Michigan Southern Railroads shall dispose of their equity rights in the Sunday Creek Coal Company and the Continental Coal and Coke Company, and by which the Chesapeake and Ohio shall dispose of its interests in the Kanawha and Michigan road, were prescribed in a decree handed down here today by United States Circuit Judges Warrington Knappen and Dennison.

The same court handed down an opinion in December, 1912 that these holdings were in violation of the Sherman Anti-Trust Act. By the decree given today, the Lake Shore is given two months in which it must purchase the stock of the Kanawha and Michigan, owned now by the Chesapeake and Ohio, or the joint interest of both roads in the Kanawha and Michigan must be sold to others. The same time is allowed for complete disposal by private sale of the Sunday Creek Coal Company's stock and that of the Continental Coal and Coke Company by the railroads now holding it.

HERPICIDE CO.

of Your Friends By
Newbro's Herpicide
The Sanitary Hair-Dressing.

It is perhaps true that the ladies of Oakland devote more attention to the matter of their personal appearance than do the ladies of any other city. Yet even in Oakland the girl with a nice head of hair is always an object of admiration and frequently the envy and despair of her less fortunate sisters.

It is the intelligent use of sanitary hair-dressing that makes all the difference. Without this, dandruff forms on the scalp; the hair lacks luster, gloss and beauty; becomes uneven, dead and finally drops out.

Hair that presents that clean, fluffy, well cared for appearance is almost always associated with Newbro's Herpicide. Fifteen years ago Herpicide was the only germ remedy for dandruff sold in America. The astonishing success of this clean, pure scalp prophylactic, with its dainty, exquisite odor, prompted the makers of other hair preparations to adopt the same claims as made for Herpicide.

The point is, don't experiment with something which may or may not be just as good as Herpicide. It isn't necessary and will perhaps result in keen disappointment.

For the eradication of dandruff, to prevent the hair from falling out and for beautifying the hair generally, any drug or department store in Oakland will sell and recommend Newbro's Herpicide, the Original Germ-Remedy for the scalp.

BLACK CAT COST HIM JOB AS ENGINEER

ALTON, March 14.—Peter Houseman has lost his job as engineer on the Illinois Terminal because a black cat sped across the track in front of the train.

There was no chance of the cat being hit, but Houseman reversed, put on the airbrakes and made a sudden stop.

When the surprised train crew and passengers looked from the windows to find out the trouble they saw the engineer throwing snowballs at an osage orange hedge tree, wherein was perched the black cat.

"What are you doing?" inquired the conductor.

"This blamed cat ran across the track and I've got to chase it back again to break the spell," retorted Houseman, as he gathered fresh ammunition.

Soon he dislodged the cat, which fled back across the track. A company official was on the train. Houseman promptly got a "pink envelope" stating his services were no longer required.

HERE'S SOME PRIZE BABY, BELIEVE ME!

FORT WORTH, Tex., March 14.—William Tillman Stitt won the grand championship in the southwestern baby contest held here in December. There were [illegible] infants entered, coming from towns all over the southwest, many of which had won honors in local contests.

The Stitt champion is three and a half years old, forty-one inches tall, weighs thirty-eight pounds, has a chest measurement of twenty-one and a half inches when normal. His per cent in the grand final was 98.

Physicians expert with babies made scientific examination of all entries and graded them accordingly. Beauty did not count.

MOLLY McINTYRE AS "KITTY MACKAY"

Frank Craven's Play Is Said to Be Full of "Pep"

(By ROSWELL DAGUE.)

NEW YORK, March 14.—"Too Many Cooks" was a play by an actor, Frank Craven. Ergo, those Broadway wiseacres who are so quick to tell all who will listen to "the advance dope" on a production speedily gave their views on it. "Another foolish affair written by an actor with an eye to himself in the leading part. Bound to be a fizzle," they said.

Whereas: "Too Many Cooks" is one of the best comedy successes of the season, Frank Craven is a new dramatist of whom we may be proud, and Mr. Craven, actor, is a real star. Thus, like weather forecasters, the stage know-it-alls have only proved that you cannot tell the success of a play before an audience sees it.

There is a theatrical phrase applied to plays which are produced without great advance heralding. It is that they "come in on rubbers." So "Too Many Cooks" entered New York. Aside from Mr. Craven, whose sole previous claim to fame was one bit of character acting, there was no name in the cast which struck familiarly upon the accustomed ear. Nor has Craven ever had a play given previously. The fact that he was the author of two or three successful vaudeville sketches was no guarantee that he could write an entire evening's entertainment. There was nothing, in fact, about the production which augured well for it.

TRUE TO LIFE.

All the more agreeable it is to record, then, that a more engaging little comedy has not been seen in New York this year than "Too Many Cooks." And the chief reason is that it is so human, so untheatrical, so true to life.

Alfred Bennett (Mr Craven) is an ordinary young clerk engaged to an ordinary young woman, Alice Cook. They are to be married, and have a home of their own, just an unpretentious little cottage in the suburbs. That house means a realization of his ideals to Bennett, his "home, a place where you can do anything you want with and nobody can stop you."

The house is under way when we see the curtain go up. The foundations have been laid and Bennett has brought Alice out to see th first bit of their dream realized. He tells his chum, Andrews, all about the architect's plans, including the little den up under the eaves where he will have his pipe and books. At the same time Alice is showing her chum, Ella Mayer, the bit of a room up under the eaves where she is going to have her sewing room. It's a little thing, this clash over the possession of one tiny room, but from it springs the play.

THE TROUBLE BEGINS.

"So Alfred and Alice are building a house, are they?" say their relatives. "We must go and see how it is coming along." They do. They also offer suggestions. Alice's mother thinks there isn't enough closet room. Alice's father would put a porch on here. Alice also has two brothers, two sisters, an aunt, an uncle, and a dear friend. Of course all are interested in seeing that Alice has everything just right. If you have ever built a house and have had friends to make suggestions the story is told. "Too Many Cooks."

The broth is nearly ruined. From little differences, Alfred and Alice progress to open clashes. The second act shows the scaffolding of the house up, and their tempers with it. Finally, when the curtain rises on the last act, the structure is complete the painting is done and the house—and Alice and Alfred have quarreled. The end of Alfred's dreams has come when he nails up a "For Sale" sign on the corner of the cottage.

Luckily, for by this time you have a genuine regard for both the young people, with their very human differences and dreams—Alfred and Alice come to an understanding and the Cook family and their companions are routed. The comedy is done.

CHARMING PLAY.

A more charming little play, nearer to the every day life of most of us, it would be hard to find. The story is one that might be that of thousands today. It is told with so many homely sidelights on human nature that it becomes a genuine document of life.

And with Mr. Craven as Bennett and a singularly charming actress, Inez Plummer, as Alice, it is as ingratiatingly acted as it is written.

Mr. Craven's "Jimsey Gilley" in George Broadhurst's "Bought and Paid For" showed that he could act. His "Too Many Cooks" shows that he is a playwright worthy of attention as well.

Another pleasant little play, although far more conventional, is [illegible] the Comedy. It is the work of Catherine Chisholm Cushing, whose "A Widow by Proxy" is serving May Irwin for a second year. A Scotch "Peg o' My Heart," it has been called.

Kitty is a Scotch ward of Sandy McNab and his wife. She thinks herself penniless, but when she is taken to London and installed in the home of Lord Inglehart, she finds that this rich gentleman is her guardian. There she falls in love with Lord Inglehart's son and he with her. But the path of true love is rough when Lord Inglehart confesses to his son that Kitty is his daughter by an early Scotch marriage.

RETURNS TO PARENTS.

Horrified at disclosure, Kitty's lover grows cold and she, failing to understand, returns to her foster parents.

But all ends well, for Sandy gets religion and confesses that Kitty is not Inglehart's daughter, who had died, but the child of an impoverished clergyman. The secret had not come out sooner because Sandy wanted the money for her support for his "wee drappie." Of course Kitty and her lover are united and Lord Inglehart finds a daughter after all.

Molly McIntyre, who played "Bunty" in "Bunty Pulls the Strings" throughout the country last season, is Kitty and Eugene O'Brien her lover. But best of all is Margaret Nybloc as Kitty's friend and confidante, a sharp tongued, suspicious lass, but devoted to Kitty. William Elliott, David Belasco's son-in-law, has made his debut as an independent manager with this play, and has achieved a pleasant success as his beginning.

INDIANOLA, Ia., March 14.—Five boys from Warren County are attending the short course at Ames on a scholarship fund provided by W. C. Brown, late President of the New York Central railroad.

Mr. Brown same to Indianola last fall to attend the Warren county fair. He keeps several fine animals in the Hopper stables here, and when the amount of his winnings was announced he offered the entire sum for the purpose of sending five Warren County boys to the short course.

He requested H. E. Hopper to attend to selecting the boys, outlining to Mr. Hopper the kind of boys to be selected and manner of selection.

Five sets of questions were sent to each of ten men in different parts of the county with the request that each man select five of the best boys in his community and answer the questions in regard to each one. Questions were put as to qualifications for leadership, ability to mix with other boys and command their respect. The aim was to get boys of active, red-blooded, manly, moral stamina.

Forty-two names were submitted, the majority of the reports qualifying the boys for the scholarship, so that the selections were not easily made. The boys were not notified of the consideration of their names until after the selections had been made, and only those selected were notified.

GRAY WIGS AND BUSTLES IN STYLE FOR WOMEN

NEW YORK, March 14.—Gray wigs are coming into vogue for women abroad, said J. M. Giddings, a Pittsburgh dressmaker, who arrived on the steamship Olympic. He said that wigs of all hues and descriptions are being worn in Paris, but the colored wigs are affected by extremists only. The gray wigs of colonial days, however, are growing in popularity.

"The gray wigs greatly enhance a woman's beauty," said Mr. Giddings. "Women with gray hair will simply powder their crowning glories and not have to wear a wig.

"I think that the new styles will have an effect on the men also. I wouldn't be at all surprised if men take to ruffles to keep up with the gray wigs of the women.

"This season's dress for women will be gayer than ever. You ought to see the hats! They will be small and worn over the eye. There will be right and left eyed hats, to suit the wearer. And, furthermore, the bustle is coming with a vengeance."

Anxious to Dispose of All Miscellaneous Holdings, Big Corporation Cuts Prices on Fine Properties to Hasten Sales --Also Will Put in Sidewalks and Do the Grading.

The Realty Syndicate Company has stirred up a great deal of interest in Grand Avenue properties by inaugurating a cut-price sale of their holdings along this beautiful thoroughfare. They are selling lots on Grand Avenue Boulevard for as low as $32.50 per front foot.

"There is no section in the City of Oakland that has grown so rapidly and so beautifully as far as residences are concerned as Grand Avenue," said one of the officials of the Syndicate yesterday. "We have owned some of the best of these Grand Avenue holdings for some time and have never made any particular effort to dispose of them. It has come to a point, now, however, where it is necessary for the corporation to convert into cash and securities all of these miscellaneous properties and we have selected Grand Avenue as the starting point in a general campaign of reduced prices on our miscellaneous lots which are scattered everywhere.

"These lots are nearly all located at or near the terminal of the Grand Avenue car line, most of them being close to Oakland Avenue," he continued. "We have teams on the property now, cutting down the grades and will shortly put in the sidewalks, so that buyers can build immediately if they desire and will not have to figure on the uncertainties of grading. In spite of this extra expense, we have reduced our prices and have already begun to feel the result of these reductions. A number of contractors have taken the matter up with us with the intention of taking immediate advantage of our quotations and building on speculation. Several parties who expect to build their own homes are also looking at these lots. There is no question but that there is nothing superior to be found in Oakland, and with these reduced prices our buyers are finding values difficult to duplicate."

WROTE OWN BLACK HAND EPISTLES

LYONS, N. Y., March 14.—Leslie A. Riggs, a 22-year-old farmer, living near Alton, has confessed guilt to arson in the second degree in burning his barn last Thursday night, and to doing other peculiar things.

Riggs has been married three years. Two years ago, while he was riding with his father, mother and young brother, their carriage was struck at a grade crossing, all being killed except Leslie, who suffered injuries for which he received $1000. Since then he has not worn a hat, saying that [illegible] hemorrhages of the head.

February 14 he began his strange performances. While his wife was in Alton after the mail Riggs wrote himself a "black hand" letter, demanding that $800 be placed under a neighbor's outhouse, threatening that his buildings would be [illegible]. He slipped this letter into the mail his wife brought him and he read it to her. The next day they drove over to North Rose and related the facts to an uncle, Frank Riggs, who sent Constable Leon Knapp to watch the place.

SMEARED BLOOD ON DOG.

Next day Riggs wrote another black hand letter to himself, tore the seat out of an old pair of trousers, put bluing in his hog feed and after dark dropped the letter in his hog can. Then taking a small pig in a bag he walked over to the railroad track with his dog, killed the pig, smeared its blood on a piece of cloth, left it beside the track, while he smeared blood over the nose and breast of the dog.

When he found the black hand letter next morning he showed it and the blood-smeared dog to his wife. Then tracing the footsteps to the railroad tracks he found the bloody patch. This proved, according to Riggs, that a thief had stolen the pig and the dog had attacked the thief, tearing the seat out of his trousers.

On the following day Riggs drove to North Rose, saw Charles N. Garlie, a relative, and took out $200 insurance on his property. The same night he smeared bluing over the necks of his cows, then showed his wife how the "black handers" had been there while they were away.

FIND BARN ABLAZE.

Thursday last Riggs got a neighbor to stay with him, saying he was afraid. At half past 10 that night Riggs excused himself and stepped out. Ten minutes later he said he had seen a man prowling around the barn, and asked the neighbor if he had not seen the stranger. The two men went out and found the barn all ablaze. Only the horses were rescued. Then the "black hand" story was related, and Alton was excited.

Sheriff Jerry Collins and District Attorney Armstrong were notified. They took no stock in the story, but got relatives to invite Riggs and his wife to North Rose over Sunday. Then the officers got busy. They found the trousers from which the seat had been cut and the pad on which the "Black Hand" letters had been written, and a quart [illegible] bottle, nearly empty.

They drove to North Rose and confronted Riggs with the evidence. He denied it, but later weakened and confessed. He was brought to the Wayne county jail, had counsel and decided to waive examination. It is believed he is mentally deranged.

POPULAR SKIPPER SAILS WITH BRIDE

NEW YORK, March 14.—Mr. and Mrs. J. F. McCarthy are today on the high seas aboard the steamer Santa Maria bound for Panama and other ports, and their trip, which is also their honeymoon, will last a full three months.

McCarthy, officially known as Captain McCarthy, is one of the most popular seamen in New York harbor. He is also the youngest pilot in joint of service in local waters, for he received his pilot's license just last Monday.

In Mrs. McCarthy's eyes her husband is yet other things, chiefly a hero of the first water. And thereby hangs the tale of her romance.

One bright day last summer Mrs. McCarthy, then Miss Mae E. Conklin, was swimming in the breakers at Sea Gate.

She ventured out a little too far and soon realized that she had lost her strength and was sinking. McCarthy happened to be walking along the beach and, hearing her cries for help, jumped into the water and went to her rescue.

When she "came to" she found McCarthy bending over her and offering to escort her home. She says she loved McCarthy at first sight, and when he proposed marriage a few days later she could not do otherwise than accept the man who saved her life.

Though McCarthy is the youngest pilot in New York waters, he has married the granddaughter of the oldest pilot, Captain James Foster.

Captain Foster, according to all who know what's what and who's who, is one of the best liked of men who have been on pilot boats about Manhattan in twenty-five years. And since Captain McCarthy has all the qualities that make for a first-class pilot, Foster is only too delighted to see his granddaughter in the keeping of so promising a young man.

The marriage took place in St. Thomas' church, in Brooklyn. Miss Ethel Kerwin, by many called the most beautiful girl in Brooklyn, was bridesmaid.

BURGLAR FORCES LOCK ON PEN OF BIG LION

PORTLAND, March 14.—A burglar at Washington Park probably does not realize how lucky it was for him that while he was tampering with a lock on one of the buildings at the zoo in the park he was frightened away by the nightwatchman. He thought he was breaking into a shed where all the food for the animals is kept, while as a matter of fact he was working on the lock leading into the pen of Nero, the African lion.

After the watchman had frightened the man away an investigation was made and it was found that within a few minutes the burglar would have finished his work to such an extent that he could have crawled in through the door. Nero was asleep on the inside.

LOOT OF BANDIT SOUGHT BY TRIO

BELLEVUE, Mich., March 14.—This little country town is "all worked up" over the mysterious search for the loot of "Black Jack" Moosier, who with three companions, robbed the state treasurer before the civil war and hid $15,000 in gold in a swamp which is now within the corporate limits of Bellevue.

Several times within the last few weeks three strangers have visited Bellevue and put up at the little village hotel, making trips at night to the edge of the town. Curious villagers on investigating found that two of the men always went to the Grohs swamp, near the river, on the Charles Dolph farm, where they dug up stumps. This was reported to an officer and he went to the strangers and asked for an explanation. They said they were digging for "black jack," a mineral found in the swamps.

According to the old story, four men robbed the treasurer's office, carrying away $15,000 in gold and burying it along the shore of the river. Three of the men were arrested and imprisoned. The one who escaped had a map of the supposed burial place of the treasure. He went west and never returned for the money, but on his death bed gave the map to his son, with full instructions as to how to find the cache.

It is thought by the villagers that the mysterious leader of the searching party is the son of Moosier, come to recover the spoils of the half-forgotten robbery. He has obtained permission from the owner of the farm to "pull up the stumps" in the swamp.

GIVES HIS BLOOD AND RUSHES TO WEDDING

BE PRETTY! TURN GRAY HAIR DARK

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray; also ends dandruff, itching scalp and stops falling hair. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy" you will get a large bottle of this famous old recipe for about 50 cents.

Don't stay gray! Try it! No one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy.

"SIGN THEM PAPERS" WAS ONLY CUE TO WEDDING

CHICAGO, March 14.—"Sign them papers."

The familiar words, copyrighted in all the old melodramas, were spoken last July in Michigan City, 'cross the lake, by Solomon Jacobs to a young woman who now asks Judge Cooper for a divorce from Solomon, who she declares married her without her knowledge or consent.

"I did not intend to get married," she said. "We made a trip to Michigan City. Sol asked me to step into a place to see a friend. I signed some papers and a tall elderly man told me I was married."

The case was taken under advisement.

ALAMEDA, March 14. — Plans for the Alameda church visitation day are moving forward. Saturday afternoon, March 28, has been named as the time for the calling. Visitors are already volunteering to aid the united denominations of the city in their plan to secure a careful census of the denominational inclinations of the population. TO MAKE CHILDREN STRONG BERKELEY TEACHERS WORK

So it is going several times a week at each school in Berkeley where Miss Violet Richardson, supervisor of physical culture, is making strong bodies and arms and legs for the girls and boys of the city. All sorts of exercises are gone through with up to the last grade of the intermediate schools, where the pupils are 14 to 16 years of age. At the high school they come under the direction of another corps of instructors.

"It is so important that our boys and girls in the public schools keep strong and well," says Miss Richardson. "What use would it be for us to have the finest possible minds if they have not fine bodies to keep their minds in working order and permit their mentality to do its work."

Miss Richardson has devised a special series of exercises for the school girls and boys. Some have to do with the breathing, some with the arms and shoulders, while others strengthen the vital parts of the body and others develop the hips and legs. The exercises are first taught the teachers of the different schools, and in turn give the work to the children when Miss Richardson cannot be present.

The exercises work was but recently commenced under the direct supervision of the school department. Miss Richardson was appointed for the grammar and intermediate schools, and others for the high school. The schools have recently, under the leadership of the high school pupils, fitted out a gymnasium in the U-No skating rink on Allston Way, which is used every afternoon and all day Saturdays. Among those reported as doing expert work are Miss Lucille Barrett and Miss Margaret Spaulding.

VINEYARDISTS ON WATCH FOR CUTWORM PESTS

CLAYTON, March 14.—Vineyardists are on the watch for cut worms. Last year a little later than this, vineyardists in Clayton valley and in other sections of the county and state were disagreeably surprised to find that cut worms were destroying the buds on their grape vines. The ground about the vines in some places contained from a dozen to a hundred worms, which, concealing themselves under the surface of the soil in the daytime, climbed the vines and ate the buds at night. Before their numbers could be reduced much damage was onde and thousands of dollars' worth of grapes were lost.

There are several methods of fighting the pest, but the best is to prevent the worms doing damage by seeing to it that enough grass is left between the vines in the first ploying to keep the worms busy.

HOLDUP VICTIM NOT PROFITABLE

Bandits Swear at Man Who Had No Coin to Be Stolen.

SAN LORENZO, March 14.—Disappointed in their search for money on the person of James Math, a middle-aged rancher of this place, two unmasked highwaymen threatened their victim with violence and pressed the muzzle of a revolver against his head. The desperadoes took only a pocketknife and a few other trifling articles from Math, and though they swore freely at the unprofitable victim, did not harm him.

After he had been searched Math was ordered to stand in the roadway and not move until the holdup men disappeared down the road. Math says he had a good look at the faces of the two men, and could identify them.

COURTROOM LOOKS JUST LIKE SHOP

MARTINEZ, March 14.—The Contra Costa sanctuary of justice looks like an abridgment of a mechanics' fair. Superior Judge Latimer came into the courtroom yesterday and today sidestepping his way to the high bench to hear more about Cowell dust.

There are all sorts of apparati set about the apartment to practically demonstrate how the escape of dust may [illegible]

There was a length of galvanized iron pipe set up as a "prop" imitation of the stack that looms up at Cowell and about it were devices which no one on earth would know how to set into operation but W. L. Kleckner, the chief chemist at the works, who was the demonstrator of its use. It appeared to have six cylinders and a 40-horsepower development.

Kleckner is also an adept at mathematics and from the way he took up problems and chalked them off on the blackboard shows he is worth his salary. [illegible] figuring in chalk would have brought forth the cheers from an appreciative high school class.

Mr. Kleckner's mission with all the machinery and other appliances he had stacked around the courtroom was to show that his rival in chemistry, Professor Swayne, who has been called for the county, had over-measured the production of escaping dust.

Some of the statements of Expert Kleckner sounded to lay ears just like that little query Father Ricard propounded to the wise ones perched up on the top of Mt. Hamilton and which as yet remains without answer.

The introduction of mechanical exhibits into the case gives grave indication of the coming of the entire cement plant, with its possibilities of making a plaster cast of Sheriff Veale's garden around the courthouse. Anyhow, it is serving to extend the life of the hearing.

Tobacco Solution to Be Employed in Fight on Pest

In former years this pest did immense damage to pear crops, but up-to-date orchardists are ready to meet the enemy and will avoid serious loss by being prepared to fight the thrips to a finish.

The cost of this one order of Black Leaf amounted to nearly $600.

THOUSANDS OF FRUIT TREES ARE PLANTED

AMATEUR & SEMI-PRO BASEBALL

Edited by "Bill Crosby"

In a game replete with sensational plays and injuries, Charles Thollander's Live Oaks romped away with the Stanley Giants by the score of 7 to 6, Sunday, at Fruitvale Recreation grounds.

Meadows and Fletcher constituted the battery for the Giants, Meadows being a little bit wild, but pitched good ball in the pinches. Herrler and Jackson were on the points for the Oaks, and their work was of the first-class order. Herrler wiffed 14 of the Giants and is beginning to round into first-class form.

Eddie Jackson, who caught for the Live Oaks, caught for Martinez last season and will be on [illegible] this season. He is beyond a [illegible] running bases. He got three walks and a double Sunday. Brackett, on first for the Oaks, is beginning to loom up as one of the best in his class.

A bad accident marred the game when, in the eighth inning Dixon, playing second for the Oaks, was spiked in the upper lip by Durgan, who was sliding into second. Dixon's double in the eighth scored the winning runs for the Oaks. Martin, on short for the Oaks, played a sensational game, while Rowe on third did good work. Huerne, Whittier and Collins played the outfield for the Live Oaks, and their work showed great improvement.

Hereafter the Live Oaks will be known as the Ambrose Colts, of [illegible] with Charles Thollander at the helm.

Several of the promising youngsters among the local bushers have been signed by Modesto of the State League and will leave shortly for training quarters. Among those signed are "Toots" Bankhead, "Bud" Robins, "Pip" Lloyd and Healy. Bankhead played the entire season last year in this league and will no doubt hold a steady position this season again. Robins is a youngster that with a little experience is going to make a good ball player. He is a good hitter and a clever infielder. Robins is a good hitter and a clever infielder. Robins made a good rep. for himself in the Contra Costa League of 1911, when he played second for one of the traveling teams. Loyd is a pitcher and a good one at that. His mainstay in the box is perfect control and his ability of sizing up the batter.

Healy played first for Vallejo while they were in the California State League last season and will no doubt land a job this time, as he is a heavy sticker as well as a good first sacker.

Adamina, the former San Leandro star, is back in the game again after a layoff all winter, and has joined the Maccabee team of the Rock Ridge League. His playing will no doubt help the lodge boys, as he is a fast man on the bags and knows the game enough to be "pulling" something new every minute.

Shuey Fernandez, the hard-hitting second sacker of Kahn Bros., has been offered a job with Eureka for the coming season and also the Mill Valley management is after Shuey to captain their aggregation. He is undecided as yet which to take.

William Harrison, the popular semi-pro. baseball man, is shaking hands these days with all the boys who visit the sporting goods house of Neves & Drier of Oakland. Harrison reports that the San Pablo park will be in condition in a few weeks, and this will give the amateur teams two of the best diamonds in the state to play on. These are probably the only semi-pro. grounds that have a grass infield similar to the Oakland Coast League grounds.

"Red" Lydiatt pitched for the Greater Oakland team last Sunday against the Standard Gas Engine Company, and besides pitching a good game slammed out two home runs, one of these being the longest hit that was ever made on the Bushrod diamond.

Herb Wieland, the clever catcher of Berkeley, will work behind the bat this season for the crack Twenty-third Avenue Merchants.

Louis Perotti has joined the newly-organized Bertillion team and will cover the first sack for this aggregation. Perotti is a good first baseman and a heavy hitter. His long experience at the game should be a great help to the team.

B. Gross has been offered a contract with Modesto and will probably join if Martinez decides to have a home talent team, which is the rumor at present.

Al Watchers, the veteran player of the bushes, is playing one of the best games of his career this season at third for the Oakland Maccabees. Watcher is full of the old "pep" that goes a long way to win a ball game, and besides, his fielding and hitting [illegible] the best that has been dished up in the league.

"Slim" Lyons, the popular first sacker of the Oakland semi-pros., will hold down the bag for the Court United States, F. O. A., in their benefit game today at San Leandro against Court Merritt.

Many of the local merchants have realized the value of a semi-pro. ball team as an advertising medium and have fitted out teams to represent them for the coming season. Among those noticed on the diamonds already are the Lynn Stanley Giants, Kahn Bros. (two teams), Ambrose Tailors (two teams), Lee Bertillion, Royal Shoe Company, Paradise Soda Company, American Rubber Company, Kears Billiard Parlor, Live Oak Billiard Parlor, Heintz Tailors, Bank of Fruitvale, Standard Gas Engine Company, Piedmont Merchants, Twenty-third Avenue Merchants, Great Western Power Company, Pierce Hardware Company, Sperry Flour Company, Boyle & Lawlors and numerous others have signified their intention of fitting out a team to represent them this season.

Joe Salari, the king of the semi-pros. of San Francisco, was an Oakland visitor Wednesday and reports the coming season for San Francisco to be a hummer among the bushes. Joe has been offered several managerial jobs in the various country towns, but as Joe says, "If you do not produce a 50-50 gate every Sunday, you no good," so he is kind of undecided on the proposition. Vallejo is trying very hard to get Salari to manage their club, and as Vallejo is a good baseball town, Joe might get away good there.

J. M. Carroll, manager of the Sperry Flour team, which will represent Suisun this season, is working hard to form a league around the bay cities, and from reports yesterday, he has been assured of the support of Vallejo, Concord, Crockett and Suisun, with two traveling teams. This would make a nice little league, and as these are all good baseball towns, there is no reason why it should not be a successful season for those interested. A meeting will be called to arrange details on March 22.

The fast Wixson team of Oakland won their second straight game by defeating the fast San Rafael team by the score of 9 to 4. The features of the game were the pitching of Mitchell and the catching of Kameua and sensational fielding of Healy and Franks.

ROCK RIDGE SUMMER SCHEDULE.

The Rock Ridge League will bring a most successful winter season to a close March 29. This has been one of the most successful semi-professional leagues around the bay and has developed some very fast players, several of whom have been signed by the professional ball teams. Four games are played every Sunday at the old State League grounds. These games have become quite popular and are drawing a large attendance.

The summer season is expected to start immediately after the 29th, commencing April 5. The plan of the league is to have six teams and to play two local games each Sunday at the old State League grounds, starting at 1 p. m. and 3 p. m., leaving two teams each Sunday to travel or play with out-of-town clubs, which is becoming quite popular in summer. This will give each team three games a month with the league, and one Sunday to play outside towns. Five of the present teams have signed to enter the Summer League and Rock Ridge team No. 1 will also enter the schedule.

There will be a special meeting of the league directors March 18, at the regular meeting place, room 264, 1444 San Pablo avenue.

Four regular games will be played today commencing at 9:30 a. m., at the State League grounds, Fifty-eighth and Grove streets. There will be some hard fighting, as four of the teams are very close to first place. The games [illegible]

No. 2—Great Western vs. Signal Corps, 11:30 a. m.

No. 3—Alameda Woodmen vs. Rock Ridge, 1:30 p. m.

No. 4—Piedmont Merchants vs. Coast Artillery, 3:30 p. m.

Kahn Bros. realize the strong team they are up against today and will put over their best brand of ball to slip over a win on the crack Standard Gas Engine Company team.

Coddington will be on the mound for Kahns and "Lefty" Ramsdale, the East Oakland phenom, will work for the Engine Co.

Next Sunday Kahns will play the opening game at Niles and will take down about two hundred rooters in a special train.

The Ambrose Tailors, with about fifty rooters, will go to Newark today, leaving Fruitvale in a large auto truck at 10 a. m. Manager Snow of the Newark club has gathered a crack bunch of players to represent the town this season. Those in the lineup are: Ball, formerly of Byres Springs fame, who will twirl; Watless, a catcher; Conway, Kersten, Raby, Leohnhardt, Speck, Walles brothers, Marshall, Risberg and Heffner. Pete Starasinich and Baldwin will do the battery work for Ambrose, while Ebner has been secured to play left field in the place of Mike Biltz, who will soon join the Stockton club of the State League.

Johnny Van Meurick, the clever southpaw, will hook up in a battle with Claire Wilson, the speed ball artist, this afternoon, at San Leandro, when Court United States, F. O. A., play Court Merritt in a benefit game. These are two of the best semi-pro. twirlers around the bay and should give the fans a good exhibition.

STRIPED BASS ANGLERS ANTICIPATE GOOD SPORT TODAY

Many fishermen anticipate good sport today and the different resorts along the bay will be well attended. The sunshiny weather has resulted in an abundance of striped bass along the San Pablo shores.

Good catches have been reported from several points, among them Corte Madero creek, and Point San Quentin, and Petaluma Creek. The lucky bait was bullhead.

For some reason poor luck has been the experience the past week of most fishermen who tried their skill along the Fort Point seawall and Bakers beach fishing holes.

Eighty-three petitions now being circulated at different points are receiving many signatures for initiative proceedings in changing the present steelhead law so that fishing for these ocean trout may be allowed in tidewater during January and February, instead of closing the fishing on January 1. The documents are receiving many signatures. It is believed there will be plenty of names and to spare, when the time limit expires July 31. Lompoc sportsmen have signed to the number of 200. Los Angeles, however, seems to be indifferent and apathetic. The roll in this city is daily increasing.

The referendum petitions for the nonsale of wild fowl, it is claimed, may not get the measure on the [illegible] It is estimated, through information given out by handwriting experts and others in a position to speak authoritatively, that big holes may be made in the list of signatures. If forgeries are found the petition will be attacked on that ground. The California State Fish, Game and Forest Protective league is conducting an active and wide-spread campaign throughout the State against the referendum.

The California Anglers' association will tonight dedicate the new club rooms in the Emma Spreckels building, in Market street, with a social reception and dance. Increasing membership required more commodious quarters than the club had at Stockton and Ellis streets, and a shift was made a week ago.

PLACER BOYS LIKELY TO WIN TITLE

AUBURN, Cal., March 14.—The cadets of the Placer high school finished shooting as a rifle club of the National Rifle association in the contest against nine other schools of the United States in Class C, last Wednesday, and scored 940 points. Unless their opponents in this shoot, Broken Bow high school of Nebraska, make a much higher score than did the eight other schools when shooting against the Placer boys, there is no doubt about the latter winning the championship of their class with nine straight wins.

When boys averaging 17 years of age can, in competitive shooting with school boys of the United States, roll up a score of 8,307 points out of a possible 9,000, a per cent of 92 249-1000, they are entitled to the highest credit, especially when they are picked from a school having but 61 boys on its roll, while some of the others had as high as 2000 boys to pick from.

The excellent showing of the Placer boys is in a great measure due to the careful coaching given them by Military Instructor F. S. Roumage.

The individual scores in Wednesday's shoot were: Otto Reynolds, 194; H. Ninas, 191; Paul Hunt, 187; W. C. Huntley, 185; J. K. White Jr. [illegible]

Total number of points made by each boy on the Placer teams, together with the number of times they shot, are given below.

Paul Hunt, eight times, 1491 points; H. H. Ninas, seven, 1303; Harold Engle, seven, 1291; Otto Reynolds, six, 1128; W. C. Huntley six, 1111; R. Terry, four, 725; J. K. White, four, 723; Ralph Vivier, two, 354; J. C. Schuester, one, 177. The possible points in each match were 200 and the team average was 92.3 per cent.

OAKLAND HIGH TRACK PROSPECTS GOOD

The Oakland high school track team anticipates a very bright season. The team has been working hard and keeping strict training rules, though greatly handicapped for space. The University of California has helped out by donating the use of its track. [illegible] felt at the loss of Captain Jeffery, who is leaving, but are confident that Leland Macauley will fill his place well.

There is a good turnout every day. Among those who will represent the school are Converse, Egilbert, Hawks, Appledorn, Buttler, Howell and Montague.

CHARLESTON IS ENJOYING EXTENSION OF 24 DAYS RACING'

Norfolk Will Have 15 Days of Spring Racing, to Start April 1.

(By JOHN D. CAWEIN)

Special Correspondent to TRIBUNE.

CHARLESTON, S. C., March 8—The blizzard which clutched the entire south and east in its icy grip last week was [illegible] of the meeting this season. Owing to the wretched weather last Wednesday and Thursday, the races were declared off, but under clearing skies and balmy temperature were resumed Friday.

Saturday was Derby day, the windup of the original scheduled winter meeting, and although the weather had again changed for the worse, a downpour of rain making it very disagreeable—an immense crowd journeyed to the course to see the running of the Palmetto Derby. This race is really a test of those three-years old in training in this neck of the [illegible] other track conditions it would have proven a much more satisfactory contest, as Old Ben, Yankee's good performer, was withdrawn on account of the heavy going. The race itself, a mile and a quarter event for $3000, as it was run, and the happenings which aided the winner, Ivan Gardner, to reach the wire first, were of a character to call for that criticism the public so eagerly grasps on occasions of less merit. Rounding into the stretch turn Indolence and Charlestonian were on about even terms six lengths in front of Ivan Gardner, who seemed hopelessly out of it. Charlestonian commenced to falter and Goose, his rider, deliberately locked and interfered with Indolence, who apparently could have won easily had it not been for the performance of Jockey Goose. Borel on Ivan Gardner, being an astute individual, did not fail to see his opportunity, and proceeded to urge his mount with whip and spur, and to such good effect as to land him winner by a short length. The stewards promptly suspended Goose indefinitely, a punishment, in the opinion of everybody which should be made permanent.

Monday was the beginning of the 24 days' extension and although weather conditions were most unattractive a large crowd witnessed a day's sport in which five events were of the hair raising order. Tuesday Republican showed his old-time form by galloping home in a mile and sixteenth, beating a mediocre field. The day was made notable by the win of Uncle Ned from the barn of William (Red) Walker, who ran unsupported at odds of 100 to 1. This is the second extremely long shot which Bertis, one of N. B. Davis' possessions, nosed out a good field with as good as 200 to 1 quoted. One of the noticeable features attending this meeting is the small proportion of favorites winning. It would appear to the layman that this would assure large profits to the book maker, but as an actual fact there is not a layer winner here this winter.

Johnnie Cimmer's Oakland friends will be glad to learn his indisposition was only temporary. A bad cold from which he recovered in a few days was all that ailed him.

Bob Levy, manager of the Norfolk race track, was a stopover here Wednesday on his way from Palm Beach to Norfolk. There has been some doubt as to whether there would be a spring meeting at Norfolk this year, owing to anticipated adverse legislation in the Virginia legislature now in session, but Mr. Levy assured all the horsemen there would certainly be a spring meeting of 15 days duration, commencing April 1st, and continuing until the 17th. The meeting should prove a good one, coming as it does just prior to the opening of the Kentucky season, and horsemen intending to take in the Blue Grass meetings can stop for the Jamestown meeting without inconvenience or loss of valuable time. Mr. Harry White, one of the officials of the Jamestown Jockey Club, was kept busy making stall reservations after Mr. Levy's announcement, and indications point to at least 600 horses being quartered there at the opening.

[illegible] Saturday at the sale of horses in the paddock he offered his Canadian bred horse, Floral Crown, at auction with a reserve price of $200 set. The horse was entered as a starter in the first race and no bid being forthcoming he was being led back to his barn when Senor Martinez, of Caracas, Venezuela, offered Fine $300, which he promptly accepted. Senor Martinez had the pleasure of seeing his newly acquired property returned the winner of the race, and having bet $100 on him at odds averaging 18 to 1, concluded his investment was not a bad one at all.

Sir Edgar, the unbeaten 2-year-old, for whom J. W. Johnson refused $5000, was sold at public auction, Saturday, bringing $2000. H. G. Bedwell was the purchaser.

William Carmody prominent on the turf, died at Auburn, N. Y., Tuesday, whither he had been taken after meeting with an accident in a gymnasium here some time day.

EASTERN BASEBALL

MACON, Ga., March 14.—"Maranville will make a better side-partner for me than Joe Tinker was," asserted John Evers, now of the Boston Braves, today. "Tinker is a great ball player and one of the best shortstops that ever lived, but I doubt if Joe ever possessed the speed that Maranville shows."

WILMINGTON, N. C., March 14.—The Phillies, though outbatted won a close game here this afternoon from the Jersey City Skeeters. The score:

Phillies	3	3	0
Jersey City	2	7	2

CHICAGO, March 14.—Injunction proceedings to prevent Catcher Bill Killifer, who signed a Federal League contract, from playing with the Philadelphia Nationals, will be filed early next week, probably at Grand Rapids, Mich., President James A. Gilmore of the Federals announced tonight.

TAMPA, Fla., March 14.—Making four errors and only one hit, the Athletics lost the odd game to the Cubs here this afternoon. The score:

Cubs	3	7	0
Athletics	0	1	4

Batteries—Cheney, Vaughn and Archer; Pennock, Baldwin, Shawkey and Schang.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., March 14.—The thermometer climbed above 60 for the first time during the training season here today, giving the Boston Red Sox almost a summer-time In- [illegible] vied with practice in interest today as the result of a report that Gilmore and Weeghman of the Federal Leag are due to arrive "almost any time."

HOUSTON, Texas, March 14.—Houston whitewashed the second team of the Yankees this afternoon, 4 to 0. The Buffaloes indulged in a batting bee in the first session, getting three runs. From that time on the game was a brilliant pitchers' battle. The score:

Houston	4	5	1

Batteries—Cooper, Hutchinson and Gossett; Harris, Clark, Allen and Burch.

DALLAS, Texas, March 14.—A home run by Manager Otto Jordan, formerly of Atlanta, made off Recruit Schumpp, and a three-bagger off the peerless Matty by Outfielder Stock of the locals, contributed to a loss, 4 to 0, by McGraw's Giants today. The locals under Jordan played bully ball, showing the results of climatic fitness and longer spring training over the visiting Giants' globe trotters.

SHREVEPORT, La., March 14.—Joe Tinker's Chicago Federals defeated the St. Louis Federals, 8 to 1, in an exhibition game here this afternoon.

He's to Be the Official Rabbit's Foot

Here's a photograph of little Jimmie Bishop of Oakland, who has been officially selected as the 1914 rabbit's foot of the Oaks. Bishop is the first member of the Oakland squad to receive his new home uniform, with the thin blue stripings, and quite naturally he is immensely tickled. Bishop has ambitions to become a great pitcher, and if the rest of the Oaks can help him to realize that ambition, you can bank that Jimmie will get there.

If Joe Beats White, He Will Have Turned Trick

If Joe Azevedo, who left here Friday morning for the East, succeeds in getting by Charley White at Racine on the end of this month, he will have accomplished something that should place him in line for the highest honors in the lightweight division.

Charley White is no one to be sneezed at. In his battles with the two Buffalo bearcats, Jimmy Duffy and Joe Kid Kansas, he made it clear to all beholders that he could start a pretty pace for the fastest adversary. Twice has White stopped Joe Kansas within the past two months and both times in a most decisive manner. Though the decision was a draw in his fight with Jimmy Duffy about a month ago, those who saw the fracas declared that White gave Duffy the worst lick the Lockport flash has ever received. White also had a generous shade on Johnny Griffith, the Akron phenom, when they fought at Canton a little while ago. And Johnny Griffith is one of the bright luminaries of the lightweight class today.

So successful has Charlie White been in his fights with the best of the American lightweights that he and his manager are now planning a tour of the globe with the deliberate intention of beating all the lightweights that can be found in England, France and Australia. They will probably sail from New York in June or July, going straight to London, where White is in demand for a go with either Matt Wells or Freddie Welsh.

From London the party will run over to France there to take on several of the best of the class to be found there, and as Charley has beaten most of the best American lightweights he will undoubtedly prove a big card abroad. From France he will sail to Australia, there to engage in dispute with the best of the class. Promoter "Snowy" Baker has planned to select some worthy opposition for Charley. And White expects that when he returns to the United States he will have put on enough weight to make it hot for some of the heavier lightweights.

Although the eastern papers persist in knocking Gunboat Smith, his shipmates stick loyally with him. This is shown in an article by Heine Miller, sporting editor of "Our Navy," in that paper.

Some writers have held that Smith "Wouldn't last a round with Fitzsimmons, Corbet, of Choynski," and that "Jeffries would have knocked him out in a punch." This is the kind of talk that Miller takes exception to. Miller, voicing the sentiment of his mates, says:

"Fitz, Corbett, Choynski, Jeffries and Sharkey might have polished Smith off in a few rounds and then again they might not. When the mighty James J. Jeffries reached the pinnacle of fame, these self same writers described him as a big, strong brute who would not have lasted a round with John L. Sullivan. When Gunboat Smith is an old has-been they will very likely tell some aspiring new heavyweight that "Gunboat Smith would have finished him in a round."

"And right here just let me tell you one thing, if Gunboat Smith ever hit Corbett, Fitzsimmons, Sharkey, or any other heavyweight square in the jaw with his right hand, they would very, very likely take a long nap! Probably Fitzsimmons, Corbett and the like would have beaten Smith, but the Gunboat could land once in twenty rounds methinks, and in Gunboat's case, just once is sufficient.

"Look over Gunboat's recent record: thirty-one fights, twenty-six knock-outs and all against men who outweighed him anywheres from 10 to 30 pounds. Can anyone of the earlier champions boast a better record? It is not the Gunboat's fault that the latter day crop of heavies do not possess the so-called 'class.'"

It will be the Calgary Club, one of the state league organizations, and the Portland Colts. The terms quoted to Devereaux are said to have been satisfactory.

IMPORTANT CONFERENCE ON HIGH SCHOOL ATHLETICS

Northern Delegates Will Go South March 20 to Boom Movement.

Plans for a comprehensive state-wide athletic organization embracing all the high schools of the State and making possible championship tournaments between Northern and Southern California, were outlined here yesterday at an important meeting of committeemen representing the region north of the Tehachapi.

Those present included J. D. Nash, W. Wright of Centerville; George H. Mercer, president of the A. A. L. and C. L. Biedenbach of Berkeley high. These committeemen were designated recently for the purpose of fostering the movement which had been begun in behalf of systematized high school athletics. After an all day discussion held at the Fruitvale high school a plan of action was agreed upon and it was resolved to submit the views of the northern schools personally to the south by means of a visit to Los Angeles, March 28, when it is hoped that permanent organization may be accomplished. Those who will make the trip will be Graham Moody of Berkeley, Principal Templeton of Palo Alto, Principal Williams of Sacramento; Biedenbach of Berkeley and Nash of Fremont.

The northern delegates will urge among other things the abolition of the paid coach in the high school; the limiting of trips to one day with the exception of championship meets; faculty representative to make the trips with the team; the holding of the captain responsible to the faculty for the conduct of the team; the emphasizing of a spirit of fair play over the desire for victory.

WELSH'S FUTURE RESTS ON HIS FIGHT WITH RIVERS

Will Go After Ritchie if He Wins From Mexican on Tuesday Night.

LOS ANGELES, March 15. — The Freddie Welsh-Joe Rivers go, which takes place here next Tuesday at the Vernon arena, promises to draw a big house.

Welsh is a wonderful boxer and he plays the game like a sport. That he is fit is very evident by his appearance. Freddie got under way slowly but is now showing his class.

Rivers has settled down to hard work and Sunday will probably see him in condition to give the dopesters, who view the workouts that day, something to talk about.

If Freddie wins this fight, there will hardly be excuse for Wolgast or Ritchie dodging him.

A good flock of preliminary artists have been engaged for the Welch-Rivers fight. Battling Chico and Roy Moore will decide who will call himself bantamweight champion of the Pacific coast until Kid Williams returns. Jimmy Lastro and Fighting Lee, also bantams, will entertain for six rounds.

Toledo to Cleveland Transfer Through

CHICAGO, March 14.—Final adoption of a 1914 playing schedule and consummation of the transfer of the Toledo club to Cleveland was the only business of importance which confronted the owners and managers of the American Association when they met here today.

The season schedule practically was completed at a previous meeting. Several alterations have been suggested, to avoid conflicts between the new Cleveland club and the Cleveland American league club. Thomas Chivington, president of the association, announced the schedule probably will consist of 168 games with three trips for each club.

COLLEGE CATCHER DRIVES OUT HOMER; SECOND IN OAK PARK

JOE OESCHGER, the young St. Mary's collegian who has just been signed by the Philadelphia Nationals, lost his game to the Oaks on the San Pablo ... noon, 4 to 2, but he displayed enough wares to convince Devlin's men they had been in a battle. Oeschger struck out eight men, and held the Oaks to six hits. Four of these bingles were gained by the first four men to face the young collegian. After that he settled down and pitched a fine game. Oeschger is a big right hander with great speed and a fast breaking curve ball. He has all the ear-marks of a chap who will make good, and Eddie Burns looks to have made no mistake in grabbing him.

Ray Loomis, the ... had a rough passage in the first inning, being greeted with a single and a home run right off the reel. The homer is only the second having been made inside the Oakland grounds and was perfectly legitimate.

Catcher Byler was the collegian who smashed the ball to left center and sprinted around the cushions before Elmer Zacher could get the sphere back to Arbogast at the plate. The smash was good for two runs, as it came with Shortstop Childs on third base where he reached by virtue of a single which Zacher had permitted to get away from him. That ended St. Mary's chances for a score, for Loomis settled down and held the collegians safely until Jack Killilay relieved him in the sixth.

St. Mary's batters could not master Killilay's curve ball any better than the Oaks could fathom Oeschger after the first inning.

Quinlan opened the game with a single. Middleton followed with a triple and Zacher singled. Gardner doubled to left but Elmer was held at third and subsequently run down between third and home. Murphy and Hetling fanned.

One of the bright features of the game was the spectacular running catch made by Park Wilson Jr., son of the famous catcher. Young Park robbed Hetling of a pretty hit and almost doubled the speedy Murphy at third.

Devlin used Gus Hetling at third and sent Rube Gardner to first base in place of Ness.

The boss of the Oaks had his eyes fixed on the work of the St. Mary's collegian, Catcher Byler, who has been spoken of as fit for faster company.

Outfielder Quinlan's spectacular catches in leftfield deprived the St. Mary's batters of more than one hit.

PLAN DAVIS MATCHES IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, March 14.—Bidding for the privilege of staging the Davis cup international tennis matches in this country this summer promises to be lively. The recent announcement of the Crescent Athletic club that stands accommodating 15,000 would be erected at Bay Ridge, Brooklyn, in the event of the Club securing the attraction has been followed by the statement from the West Side Tennis club of Forest Hills, Long Island, which direct attention to the advantages of their grounds from a transportation standpoint, the club record for handling the preliminary match last year between the United States and Australia and offering to provide seating facilities for 20,000.

It is known that in addition applications also will be made by the Longwood Cricket Club of Boston, Merion Cricket club of Philadelphia, Newport Casino and ... for consideration. It is reasonably certain that the challenge round will be played in New York, while the preliminaries, if any are played in this country, will be distributed.

Porroy, of the Ogden club in the Union Association, will catch, and Elmer Martinoni, now with the ... mound for the visitors. Martinoni was with the Oaks in 1912 and pitched several really fine games. He was troubled with weak eyesight, but seemed to have recovered judging from his work last year in the Northwest. Zamlock, now with Denver, will be with Dunne's team as extra pitcher and first baseman; Conner, of Quincy, will play short; Smith of Walla Walla, second; Webber of Emeryville, third; and the outfield will be cared for by Ryan, Bankhead and Dunne. Gibson and Grollett are down for utility roles.

The Oaks will shine in a double-header today, playing the White Sox in the morning and Hunky Shaw's Richmond Stars in the afternoon. Shaw has gathered together what he believes is an outfit that will give the Oaks some real fun. A big delegation of Richmond fans will cheer the home club on to battle.

The line-up for Richmond is announced as follows: Cleek, c.; Burns, p.; Gordon, 1b.; Shaw, 2b.; Hyatt, ss.; Ingram, 3b.; Hayes, lf.; Toneri, cf.; Woodberry, rf. MIDDLEWEIGHTS TO MEET FOR WHEELMEN'S CLUB MARCH 21

(By THE TIMEKEEPER.)

THE Bob McAllister-Sailor Grande match which has for several days been tangled up with legal difficulties has now been placed on a firm basis, according to a statement made by Jimmy Rohan of the Wheelmen's club yesterday. When the articles were signed on the 9th of this month they included the posting of $300 by McAllister for weight and appearance. The money posted with Jimmy Rohan in the form of a check, which bore, besides McAllister's signature, a notation "for weight and appearance in April." The "in April" seems to have been the main source of the recent trouble, the exact date having been left by verbal agreement to Rohan.

When McAllister's check was presented for payment by Rohan, it was marked "payment stopped." When Jimmy called up McAllister to find out what was the matter, he was told that the date was not satisfactory. So far as Jimmy Rohan knew, no date had been set, but McAllister had heard that the 28th of April had been selected.

Bob, it appears, did not want to fight on that date, but when informed that Rohan had decided on the 21st, was agreeable. Everything is peaceful now, and a second check has been placed in the hands of Lynne Stanley, to cover the forfeit and replace the check on which McAllister stopped payment.

Grande's recent knockout victory over Otto Berg brands him as a tough one, and the fans predict that the ex-Olympic club champion will have his hands full when the two meet. McAllister is a clever boxer, and as he is young, is liable to take on a good deal more weight. He may even develop into that much heralded white hope.

'THEY CAN'T TEMPT ME,' SAYS SHAFER; 'I'M REALLY THROUGH

Giant Third Baseman Insists Increase in Pay Will Have No Effect.

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, March 14.—Art Shafer, formerly of Stanford University, the star third baseman of the New York Giants, who is on the campus with the Southern Alumni team, stated definitely this afternoon that he will continue to turn a deaf ear to the fancy offers of a contract which John McGraw or any other of the major league managers may insist on advancing. "I have had my look-in on the game," Shafer declared, "and am through for good."

When asked what reply he would give President Hempstead of the New York Nationals, who will start for California tomorrow in an attempt to swing him back into line, he said:

"Hempstead will insist on my return to baseball, and will probably decorate the propositions which have already been made. No kind of inducement can persuade me to go back. I have had my look-in on the game, and am through for good.

"Before I left New York I tried to convince the Giant officials that my mind was made up, and that I wouldn't be tempted. Evidently, from indications I have received and read in the papers, they still think they can persuade me. Two weeks ago I got two telegrams from Hempstead in rapid succession, asking me to change my plans. I didn't think it necessary to answer.

"Tuesday a wire came from McGraw, renewing the bids. I replied that I would stick to my first statement."

In a reply to a question concerning other offers from the managers, Shafer said: "I am a member of the New York club, and am not open to offers from other sources. The Federal league wouldn't hold the least attraction for me anyway."

Shafer said regarding his plans for the future: "I am going to Los Angeles Friday, and will enter the real estate business with my father there. Later I expect to take up farming with my cousin, Tom Workman, when he finishes here."

During his stay at Stanford Shafer has made his home at the Beta Theta Pi house, of which fraternity he is a member.

Much Depends Upon His Good Right Arm

THIS OKLAHOMA OIL BARON AGAIN PROMISES TO FULFILL THE ROLE OF "IRON MAN" AND PINCH PITCHER, A JOB HE REVELED IN LAST YEAR.

Bill Malarkey's comrades are predicting that the Oklahoma oil baron will come very close to leading the Coast League this season. They base this upon the magnificent work done by Malarkey this year, the fact that he is in perfect condition this spring, and that the club figures to give him far better support than he got last year. Many unbiased critics figured Malarkey as the best pitcher in the league last year, considering the handicap under which he worked.

TRI-STATE LEAGUE IN BAD WAY

WALLA WALLA, Wash., March 14.—Announcements that both Baker City and Pendleton desired to withdraw from the Western Tri-State league owing to lack of funds, have been received here with surprise and regret. It was stated by local club officials tonight that the Walla Walla Commercial club would be called upon tomorrow to get behind the league morally and financially and to devise ways and means of assisting the smaller towns to organize in a satisfactory manner. Other towns have asked admission, and if it is impossible to bolster up the two Oregon towns, North Yakima and Walla Walla will probably endeavor to form another league. It is believed here that with the proper moral assistance Baker City can be retained and Lewiston added.

The Question Box

To the Sporting Editor: Where was C. Matthewson born? When? When did he join the Giants? What is his present salary? Is he the world's best ... some of the favorite appellations appended to his name? Have the Federals made any advances to him?

AN ANXIOUS BOY.

Mathewson was born in Factoryville, Pa., 1878. He joined the Giants in the fall of 1900. The salary he draws is a secret. Whether he is the greatest pitcher in the world is purely a matter of opinion. New York fans say yes. He is called "Matty" and "Big Six" and "Christy." The Federals offered him a three year contract calling for a total salary of $65,000.

CUBS COMMUNICATE WITH FEDERALS

CHICAGO, March 14.—Reports from Tampa, Fla., that at least six members of the Chicago National league club would listen to offers from the Federal league should the baseball war talk develop into a contract-ignoring contest agitated the followers of baseball today. With much detail, though with a careful elimination of names of players said to be involved, dispatches from the Cubs training camp related that six star players had been approached with offers from the Federals and that they had listened to the envoys and had freely declared that if given more money they would leave the National league.

J. CALLAHAN ARRIVES IN TIME TO SEE SOX SPARKLE

SAN FRANCISCO, March 14. — Manager Jimmy Callahan of the White Sox arrived from the east yesterday, and witnessed his aggregation of ball players take Del Howard's Seals into camp ... The game was the most spectacular seen this season, two home runs and two sensational one hand catches, making the fans sit up and take notice until the last man was out.

From the time Alcock flew out to Tobin in the first inning until Chase sent a scorching grounder past O'Leary, scoring Alcock and Lord, in the tenth frame, the game abounded with thrills that kept the fans in one continual uproar.

The first real thrill came in the fourth ... hit drove the ball into the leftfield bleachers for the first home run of the day. In the same frame Collins again shone, when he made a marvelous one hand catch of Sepulveda's long drive against the rightfield fence, thereby placing himself liable to prosecution for grand larceny.

"Spider" Baum was the first Seal twirler to face the Sox, and he was on the mound for five innings, when he was replaced by "Skeeter" Fanning in the sixth frame. House was the choice of the Sox for box duty for seven frames and was relieved by Johnson in the 8th.

Ping Bodie could not get his eye on the ball and struck out three times out of four times at bat, the fourth time drawing a walk, but he made up for it in a measure in the sixth frame when he nicked Fitzgerald's drive off the centerfield fence near the club house.

The Seals first scores came in the sixth when Schaller drove one of House's curves over the rightfield fence for a homer scoring O'Leary who had reached first on an error by House.

The Sox made it 3-2 in the next inning, Bodie scoring on an error by Corhan. The Seals came right back in the 8th and tied the score, when Fitzgerald scored on Cartright's single to left. The Sox can thank Chase for the victory for with Alcock on third and Lord on second and two out, he singled to left scoring the two runs which won the game. The score:

TIGERS CRUSH DOWN SECOND TEAM OF WHITE SOX

"Big Ed" Walsh Batted Out of Box in First Three Innings.

LOS ANGELES, March 14. — Proof that his good right arm is still far from right was shown here today when "Big Ed" Walsh of the second team of the Chicago White Sox was batted from the mound after working but three innings. Walsh allowed six hits for a total of four runs in the three innings that he worked, but his fellow moundsmen fared but little better, Venice winning the game, 10 to 0.

VARSITY VICTORS IN SEVENTEENTH INNING

UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA, March 14. — The longest game on the campus for many a season was played this afternoon between the varsity and the Zamlocks, the collegians nosing out in the 17th inning with the score 4 to 3. The visitors got away to an early lead, and had the varsity on the short end of a 3 to 0 score for seven innings.

In the eighth the varsity opened up on Cozens, putting across one in that frame and tying up the score in the last half of the ninth. There were few on bases from then on until the 17th, when Ford walked and was brought in by Hayes' two bagger.

MITZE WIRES, ACCEPTING TERMS

LEAVES MONDAY TO JOIN OAKS

Carl "Honus" Mitze, last year's manager of the Oakland Club, and rated as one of the most capable catchers the Coast League has ever seen, telegraphed from Marissa, Illinois, last night to President Leavitt accepting terms, and announcing that he would leave St. Louis for Oakland on the Overland Limited tomorrow afternoon. The terms of the contract offered Mitze are not made public but are understood to be the best ever made to a catcher in this league.

Manager Devlin is delighted at having secured the little Dutchman for he now believes that his catching staff is the superior of any on the circuit. The wonderfully improved form of young Alexander behind the bat this spring has made it appear that he is a coming star in the receiving line. With Mitze's experience and steadying influence on the pitchers, and Alexander's ... Charley Arbogast, the former Angel, and Frank Jones, the Fresno youngster, will round out the department nicely.

Served Across The Tennis Net

by Nelson G. Welburn.

WITH a big crowd on hand and with the air fairly sizzling with excitement the juniors started the ball rolling yesterday morning in Oakland's big singles and doubles tournament for the championships of the city. Today the entire event will be under way and the courts no doubt will resemble a bargain counter after the attack.

Yes, the Oakland city championship tournament is now a reality, and it certainly behooves those who have looked forward to this event with eagerness and anticipation to make the best of this opportunity.

The process of elimination will be a pleasure to some and to others a keen disappointment. But we must all remember that in all events the best man usually wins, and assuming such to be the case we beg to advise those who have fought and lost to bear that defeat with the same spirit that has held the American nation so high in the estimation of the foreign countries, namely, the ability to take our defeat cheerfully and pleasantly. And don't forget to give liberal credit to the man who has won his victory through ability, courage and determination.

The following men's events will be played today on the courts of the Oakland Tennis Club, at Fifth avenue and East Eleventh street:

Men's Singles, 9 a. m.—J. D. Van Becker vs J. C. Rolphs, J. E. Smith vs. M. L. Emerson, B. Sharp vs. Gorrill, Whitten vs. W. Brandschield, R. L. Gould vs. P. Crosby, R. W. Kearney vs. Proctor, I. C. Steele vs. B. Heath, N. G. Welburn vs. B. Moorhead, Holmes vs. R. E. Parr, M. P. McCarthney vs. Shrader, E. A. Klein vs. E. Sharp, C. F. Stickney vs. E. Sutter, Mc Boyle vs. W. P. Ellis, S. J. Smith vs. Miller, C. Swenson vs. C. Howard, G. Finkenstedt vs. Ambrose.

Men's Doubles, 9 a. m. — Agnew and Caig Jr. vs. C. W. Shepard and R. Lovdal, J. C. Rohlfs and Gorrill vs Shrader and Leimert, Holmes and Ambrose vs. W. Havens and M. E. McLoughlin, Miller and Whitten vs. C. F. Stickney and M. G. Emerson; J. E. Smith and partner vs. S. Talcott and F. C. Lang, S. J. Smith and E. A. Klein vs. E. Sharp and W. Brandschield, R. L. Finkenstedt vs. F. Clark and C. Donaldson.

Miss Niemeyer, Downing, Lipman and Gorrill have qualified for the semi-finals in the Berkeley Tennis Club's championship handicap singles tournament. The finals most likely will be played next Sunday.

Downing will play Gorrill, and the winner of this match will play the winner of the Niemeyer and Lipman match. These matches should prove exceedingly interesting and exciting. The honor thus achieved by clever Miss Niemeyer is a unique one, and her match will be watched with unusual interest by all. We wish her well.

The Oakland Tennis Club's courts were as busy as Alaskan bees in June last week, and some of the matches were splendid exhibitions of tennis. Caig and J. D. Van Becker formed a trust, but were compelled to dissolve by W. P. Ellis and E. White. This match went three sets, and up to the third set it was anybody's game. White made some fair smashes at the net, but his work as a whole was below par. Ellis, as usual, slipped them down the alley, which trick seemed to perturb his opponent very much.

E. C. Borton and Fred C. Lang proved too hot a combination for F. R. Godwin and M. P. McCarthney. In fact, they did just about as they pleased. Godwin is not playing the game he played six months ago. He is inclined to be too careless with his placements. Lang and Borton took the match by the score of 6-3, 6-1.

R. L. Gould and George Finkenstedt were unable to down the team of Godwin and Ben Heath. "Finky" played poor tennis in this match, as his strokes were miserable. Gould played his usual reliable game, and as "usual" failed to kill them at the net. Heath has been absent from the courts for a little while, but notwithstanding this his playing was above the average.

Charles Francis Stickney took the pride of Alameda, Ralph E. Parr, into camp by the score of 7-5, 6-4. Stickney played good tennis, and at times carried his game to a high point of excellency. Stickney without doubt is one of the club's best players, and maybe we will be saying soon the best. Parr played in fairly good form, but he has been seen to better advantage.

C. F. Stickney and R. E. Parr and E. A. Klein and N. G. Welburn locked horns in a pretty setto that bristled with excitement. Both teams revealed tremendous speed at times. Stickney drove accurately, and his partner Parr used his chop return to good advantage, these feats being slightly offset by Welburn's deep lob and Klein's corkscrew service. It was one of the best matches of the day.

The first set was won by Stickney and Parr by 7-5, in the second set they led by 5-3, which lead was brilliantly overcome by a remarkable spurt by Klein and Welburn, they capturing the set by 7-5. The third and deciding set was won by Stickney and Parr after a spurt had been made by both sides. In this set Klein lost his grip, with the result that Parr and Stickney took the set by 6-4.

Lanky and good-natured Carl Swenson again bit the dust at the hands of sly, foxy and tricky "Bill" Ellis. Though the fall was not achieved until he had executed every trick known to man, nevertheless it was inevitable. The first set was a mere tussle, the second developed into a mighty struggle which kept both players on the jump. Ellis won by 6-3, 9-7.

From Welburn's belt Sunday dangled the scalps of Frank "Stud" Weeden and J. D. Van Becker. The first was not a surprise, but to say that of the second would be an untruth. Welburn did not run away with Weeden; in fact, he only took the two sets by 7-5, 7-5.

In the contest with Van Becker it appeared that it was a sad case of "good night" for Welburn, this disillusionment only taking place after Welburn had won the second and third sets by 7-5, 7-5. In the second set Van Backer led by 5-3, Welburn overcoming this seemingly defeat by a remarkable brace, which told on both players.

With a swift drive down the side line, such, my mates, was the brilliant termination of the battle for supremacy between By Sharp and his brother Eldred. By played the game of his career. He lobbed, drove and smashed wonderfully, and is it any wonder that Eldred saw the handwriting on the wall that indicated defeat. By took the match by the score of 8-7, 3-6, 9-1, 6-1. Now that the great battle is over, and the generals have returned to their places of abode, and tranquility prevails in the vicinity of the Sharp home, we say amen!

Captain V. E. Breeden of the University of California Tennis Team left for Los Angeles recently to try and arrange for a series of games with the college teams of the south.

Breeden will try to get games with the teams of the University of Southern California, Occidental and Pomona Colleges, and it is possible that matches will be played against the Los Angeles Athletic clubmen as well.

A sensation was created in tennis circles this week by the unexpected news that Edwin Mastick Otis, the "grand old man" of tennis, had defeated his one-time doubles partner, George Finkenstedt, in a setto on the courts of the Oakland Tennis Club. It is stated upon good authority that Otis played as of old. He tore from one side of the court to the other, raced to the net and back to the base line, displaying remarkable vivacity. We can only ask in astonishment, what next?

"FEDS" ON TRAIL OF "REB" RUSSELL

CHICAGO, March 15.—Robert B. Ward, the owner of the Brooklyn Feds, is dickering with two pitchers, one from the American league and another from the National league, who were in the limelight last year more than any other twirlers, barring Walter Johnson and Christy Mathewson. One is Reb Russell, the star left-hander of the White Sox, and the other Grover Alexander of the Phillies. ... disclose the names of the two fielders he has in mind. He said, however, that he had received numerous letters from them begging to be taken into the new league regardless of their signed contracts with the major leagues.

"They are ready to jump at a moment's notice," said Manager Tinker. "We have been advised that Russell is displeased with the salary he is getting and tied up with a three-year contract at such a low figure that it would make the fans open their eyes if they knew the amount."

O CROSS THE OCEAN VIA AIR ERIAL LINERS ARE PREDICTED

"Travel across oceans by air is coming. I may not succeed, but the next man will. I predict that great aerial liners will some day furnish rapid transit to Europe, and believe that the younger generation will live to see this seeming wonder."

So declares Captain J. V. Martin, famed aviator and world's record holder, who next year will make the attempt to cross the Atlantic by aeroplane. Captain Martin arrived in Oakland yesterday for a week's stay with his wife, who, as Lily Irvine, is known as England's first woman aviator, and the second woman in the world to make an airship flight.

Captain Martin, one of the world's most noted aviators, is the man who brought Grahame White to America, and who originated the plan for crossing the Atlantic in an aeroplane. Captain Martin is to make his death-defying attempt to cross the Atlantic next year. He and his wife are now touring the country raising funds for the experiment, and will return to New York, where their machines are stored, in several months.

DESIGNED OWN MACHINE.

The plan to cross the Atlantic, as conceived by the noted aviator, called for a large machine, which he designed. Lord Northcliffe, famed English aviation enthusiast, has put up one-half of the funds necessary to outfit the trip, and the remainder is being raised by the aviator and his wife through vaudeville tours. Miss Irvine is being featured in an electrical display act, including many novel effects invented by her husband. This will be seen all next week at the Columbia Theater.

The funds raised by the tour wil go toward the construction of a great machine in which the aviator and his crew will attempt the flight from continent to continent. The machine, when first planned, created a furor among aviators. It was shown throughout the country on the first page of the Scientific American, and at the same time caused a controversy among noted aviators, which finally resulted in an agreement that the plan, first thought foolhardy, was feasible.

OAKLAND HARBOR PILOT.

Captain Martin began his career as a nautical pilot on the Pacific Coast, and was one of the first mariners sailing big vessels into the Oakland harbor. He holds the first-class pilots' license in California at the present time. Some years ago he went to England, where he took up aviation. Here he met and wedded Lily Irvine, who leaped into fame as the first woman aviatrice. Captain Martin holds the world's record for accurate flights, landing a machine one foot three inches from his starting point. He made a 6000-mile flight in Alaska, many European and American flights and designed several of the famous machines of today. He is the designer of "Baby White," in which Grahame White, his pupil, achieved fame; built the noted "Harvard II," and was the director of the great Philadelphia aviation meet. He was the organizer of the Harvard Aero Society.

"My one aim now," declared Captain Martin, "is to show that the Atlantic can be crossed by air. I am confident of success. Even should I fail, some one will surely do it some day, and I predict the time when ocean travel will be more quick and easy by great aeroplanes."

Captain Martin designed one of the largest rotary engines ever used on an airship, and with this he has achieved wonderful results. He plans even a larger engine for his coming trip.

CAT LEAVES ALL FOR HOSPITAL

Collections Made by Trick Maltese Become Nucleus for Institution.

PHILADELPHIA, March 14.—Thanks to "Billy" there's many a wandering, scrawny alley cat or much abused homeless dog that will hereafter be able to find refuge when sick of starving. "Billy" was a huge Maltese cat that for sixteen years was a member of the household of Dr. William B. Griggs, of 1326 North Twelfth street.

Before "Billy" was five years old he had become famous among the doctor's patients and along the neighbors and hundreds of school children who passed the house daily, through the tricks he had learned. One of his favorites was begging coins. To patients who were waiting in the doctor's reception room "Billy" would stretch out his paws and in unmistakable sign language beg for money. If the patient happened to be a man, Billy would stand on his hind legs, and resting one of his front paws on the patient's leg would strike the man with his paw until he heard the jingle of coins in a pocket. In the case of a woman "Billy" would jump to the patient's lap, and struggle with a handbag or purse until the owner produced a coin for him. He would take the coin gingerly in his mouth, run with it to the edge of the rug and push it under. No amount of coaxing could get "Billy" away from that spot until Dr. Griggs or his wife removed the coin. The doctor and his wife kept the coins in a bank that belonged to "Billy."

A few days ago, Billy departed from these nine feline lives. The diagnosis was old age and complications. The bank was opened and found to contain $5.83—all of it earned by "Billy" through his tricks. With this as a nucleus Dr. Griggs added another sum and presented it all to the Morris Refuge Associations to be used in establishing a hospital here devoted exclusively to the treatment of cats and dogs. The fund which "Billy" started by bequeathing all his worldly wealth to the Morris Refuge Association, is soon to be increased materially and the hospital is to be opened in a few weeks. No animal, no matter how sick, no matter how cold, no matter what his antecedents and environments, will be refused treatment at the hospital.

PARIS TO TAKE CARE OF POOR

PARIS, March 14.—Paris is preparing to take care of her poor. By June of next year municipally owned and operated model tenements will have been completed sufficient to house 60,000 people, according to a statement just issued by M. Chassaigne-Goyon, president of the Municipal Council.

The city was some months ago authorized to borrow $40,000,000 for the purpose of buying ground and building sanitary lodgings for workingmen, to be rented at low rates. However, the state has been obliged to raise some $250,000,000 for army purposes, hence the time was not deemed propitious for floating a municipal loan. But determined that the model tenement plan should not be delayed in its execution, a first loan of $4,000,000 was obtained from the government's workingmen's pension funds, at 4.2 per cent interest, and the building of the houses has begun.

One half the tenements constructed for the poorer classes at low rentals will be reserved for large families where there are at least four children under the age of 13.

The state's participation in this work will mean a considerable expenditure which will be especially felt owing to the enormous fund now being raised for the "national defense," but it has been declared that the expenditures to be made for sanitation is really a help towards the "national defense."

Plastered Houses That Will Not Crack

Material and workmanship must be dependable. Our experience enables us to be the first among Oakland builders to guarantee a plastered exterior against cracking and as being waterproof.

No person should be so careless in the use of money as to buy a house that is not guaranteed. Our houses, all of them, are guaranteed from basement to attic, and should any defects develop at any time we cheerfully correct them. Our guarantee is good, and it has no limit.

TRACTION BUILDING NOTABLE IMPROVEMENT

CITY PLANNING EXHIBIT BIG ATTRACTION

Announcement last week of the San Francisco-Oakland Terminal Railway's plans for the erection of a three-story building at Twenty-second and Grove streets to house its general offices is [illegible] than appears at first glance. It means that the era of improvements covering the entire Key Route and street car system is at hand and that the community as a whole will derive benefit. Real estate trade will come in for its share of advantage through the widespread betterments.

The new traction building will replace one of Oakland's landmarks, once well outside the business district, but now on the path of marvelous development northward along San Pablo avenue. An important commercial district is growing up on the avenue at Twentieth and Twenty-second streets. At the former point the seven-story Moody estate hotel has recently been completed, opposite the Arcade Hotel, a large flatiron structure, built in recent years.

The traction building will be of class A construction and plans for its erection are already being prepared.

The opening of the first city planning exhibit in Oakland was another significant event of last week. No more opportune time for interesting the progressive citizens of this community in such plans could be chosen. Oakland's renaissance is at hand. It may be seen in the municipal and private building enterprises undertaken and in numerous other advancement projects. The housing of hosts of immigrants expected to arrive during 1915 and in the years following the opening of the Panama canal will be a problem in connection with the city planning project not easy to solve, but one demanding serious attention, nevertheless. A study of Oakland's physical conditions as a whole has never been made. This is another phase of the subject. It is late for the study of contours and grades, streets and squares in this city, except in special instances, for the thoroughfares are likely to remain as they are for the most part.

There are several street extension and widening projects, however, that require attention, some of these being in the downtown section. Advocates of the opening of Fifteenth street from Franklin to Harrison remain active, despite the action of the city council in sustaining a protest of property owners. Several building enterprises hinge on the extension of this street as an outlet eastward from Broadway into the old "lakeside" district north of the Hotel Oakland. There are many who believe Sixteenth street would prove a more satisfactory thoroughfare for opening, providing a cross-town artery east of Broadway, between Fourteenth and Seventeenth streets. Neither Fifteenth nor Seventeenth now reach continuously any further east than Franklin, and an opening toward the lake is almost imperative. It is argued that greater development of the business district would result from the Fifteenth street extension than from the Sixteenth. Nothing has recently been heard of the proposed Jefferson street opening, but it must receive attention in any large city planning scheme.

Development of the retail district west of Broadway has added to the importance of this project, and eventually provision will have to be made for a street car line on a Seventeenth street extension or on some nearby parallel thoroughfare, between San Pablo avenue and the estuary section, traversing a district between Clay and Market streets which will be added to the shopping district.

It is asserted, also, that the projected extension of Clay street through the long block between San Pablo and Telegraph avenues will have a resurrection day.

The many bargains advertised in the real estate section of THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE are proving attractive to the inventor seeking to make a profitable turn-over. There is much activity in the re-sale line, according to the brokers.

Building keeps up to a high level of cost each week, approaching the $200,000 mark regularly. The total cost for the week ending last Wednesday was $171,480.50.

There is a steady inquiry being made of Oakland dealers for suburban acreage and for farms throughout this and other counties. The interior will be invaded during the next few years by hordes of home-seekers.

Trips of inspection that have recently been made for that purpose show that the crop situation at this time is ideal. The rains have assured an abundance of production in all lines—particularly in fruit and grain. A tone of optimism prevails and all transportation lines are expecting a heavy movement of freight this year.

The building of various sections of the state highway in which the counties of Northern California have taken the lead away from those of the San Joaquin Valley and the southland by hearty co-operation in the sale of bonds is going hand in hand with projected railroad improvements particularly on the part of the electric systems that are now in operation. Reclamation and irrigation districts are being formed and there is a steady increase in industrial activity in all lines.

Land transactions are heavy and involve in some single deals millions of dollars. But the best sign in realty circles is the inquiry that is being made for small farms and the transactions in that regard that are being recorded every week. Many of these people, in fact the majority, come from the middle west and east and are well informed as to the valley as a result of the publicity campaigns that have been carried out.

PEORIA, Ill., Mar. 14.—Five thousand six hundred and thirty-five dollars of the $6400 stolen from the Adams express agent at [illegible] was recovered in an outbuilding 30 feet from the scene of the robbery, behind the store of Brown & Rollo, and the Steenberg bank by Kinneth Gerling, a clerk.

OAKLAND'S BACK COUNTRY IS RICH

Two Coming Years in Interior Expected to Be Most Prosperous.

Reports received from all parts of the Sacramento Valley and Northern California by the Sacramento Valley Development Association indicate most strongly that the season of 1914 and 1915 will be one of the most prosperous that the people of this section of the State has ever enjoyed. Every phase of activity is covered by these reports, and there is yet one to be filled that is not optimistic in tone. At the same time the judgment upon which they are based is sound and well matured and has been given in all instances by those who are not prone to over-estimation.

One of the features which the valley residents expect to result in great future good for Northern California, much of which is tributary to Oakland, is the proposed improvement of the Sacramento and Feather rivers by the government. The Greater Sacramento River project as authorized by Congress commits the government to the ultimate expenditure of $5,860,000 for river improvements, and of this sum $200,000 will be available for the initial work, subsequent appropriations being made as the work progresses without securing further authority from Congress. Snagging and temporary wing dam work will be carried ahead on the Feather river, according to Major S. A. Cheney of the Engineering Corps, U. S. A., as long as that river is used by regular transportation lines. In addition to the work that will be done by the government, hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of improvements will be carried on by private corporations. For example, two of the largest dredgers in the world, costing $90,000 each, equipped with 200 feet booms and reinforced steel hulls, are now being built in Pittsburg for the use of one of the many realty firms interested in river development, and will be used on the Sacramento near Knights Landing.

COAST STEAMER ON RIVER.

With these improvements being made and in view for the near future the residents of the valley are justified in the belief which they hold that a wonderful impetus will be given to the cheap water transportation which they have had for some time, and particularly when they bear in mind the successful trip that the steamer Grace Dollar, loaded with 1,100,000 feet of lumber at Puget Sound made down the Pacific Coast and up the Sacramento river, unloading her cargo without mishap at Sacramento on February 2 last. With the opening of the Panama canal for traffic a number of new markets will be at the disposal of Northern California, for then ocean-going vessels will be enabled as a result of river improvements to load with cargoes of alfalfa, rice, raisins, citrus fruits, grain, potatoes and hundreds of other products, steam down the river through the Golden Gate to any of the busy marts of the world with traffic charges that will prove a great incentive to all interests of Northern California.

ROCKRIDGE SECTION DEVELOPS RAPIDLY

Building Business Since Tract Opened Has Been Remarkable.

Probably no residential district in the whole bay section is developing more rapidly than the Rockridge properties on Broadway, just beyond the Claremont Country Club.

It was planned to make Rockridge a beautiful California residential park, in which would be built the homes of those appreciating the beautiful in nature—trees, flowers and winding roadways. A visit to the property today will show how near this ideal has been reached.

Perhaps there is no other feature that has contributed more to the success of this property than the fact that the tract has not been divided into small lots. This has made it unnecessary to cut down the many trees, which, of course, add to the beauty of the section.

Another feature contributing to the beauty of the property is the fact that all board fences higher than three feet are barred. Lattice fences with vines running over them, wire fences and hedges are used rather than the unsightly board fences seen in so many districts.

People who have bought in Rockridge have done so with the idea of making it their home. Therefore, everything with the atmosphere of business—or buying or selling—has been excluded. Even flats and apartments are barred.

RESTRICTIONS VARY.

The building restrictions vary, according to the location. The property has been so planned as a whole to begin with smaller restrictions of $3500 and build up to one grand central place, which has been set aside for the homes of the wealthy—some restrictions being $20,000.

In Rockridge Terrace, where the activity is centering at the present time, prices are as low or lower than are being asked for any similar property in California.

Here property is selling as low as $22.50 per front foot for wide sightly building sites—lots on which any man should be proud to make his home.

The Fred E. Reed Co., Inc., with offices in the Syndicate building, is handling Rockridge and expects to start an active campaign within the next few weeks.

ENJOINS STRIKERS FROM USING PARADE

ONTONGAGON, Mich., March 13.—A temporary injunction was granted on application of six companies operating copper mines in Ontonagon county, restraining striking mine union men from picketing and from holding threatening parades.

Mass mine is the only one now in operation in the county.

Others will resume, it was reported. Since Mass mine started up some days ago the strikers are alleged to have made several threatening demonstrations against workmen.

The injunction is similar to the one in force in Houghton and Keweenaw counties.

OFFER PRIZE FOR SUBDIVISION PLAN

In connection with the City Planning Exhibit, which opened on Friday in Oakland's City Hall, H. C. Cutting and W. H. Wernse are offering prizes totaling $12,500 for the best plans and suggestions as how to divide their property, the Richmond Canal Subdivision.

The remarkably strategic location of this property at the head of the new government channel of the Inner Harbor of Richmond makes it so valuable and important to the future traffic and business problems of Richmond that the owners, rather than depend upon their own plan or the plan of any one person, decided to submit the problem of dividing it to the general public.

It is a fact that the more minds that [illegible] valuable ideas will be gained. The owners' whole object in this contest is to lay out the property to the best advantage for the future development of Richmond, with which they have been identified for the past 10 years, as a great deal of traffic, both passenger and freight, will eventually center and radiate from here.

Some of the engineers of the City Planning Exhibit, experts of national reputation, are unanimous in their opinion that the property, located as it is between the inner harbor and the gateway to the outer harbor—the municipal tunnel—is of such paramount importance to Richmond that in their estimation the property will become almost priceless in value as the building of the harbor increases.

The planning contest promises to be a very interesting one, furnishing very instructive amusement and prize rewards, which will make it worth while for many to enter.

Cutting has been the most persistent worker for the Inner Harbor of Richmond, and it is due in a large measure to him and his associate, W. H. Wernse, secretary of the Richmond Industrial Commission, that the harbor plans were finally approved and are now on the point of execution.

FREE OLDEST CONVICT IN POINT OF SERVICE

JEFFERSON CITY, Mar. 14.—Simon Begley, the oldest convict in point of years of service in the penitentiary was paroled to his brother, John Begley, of Eldorado Springs. Begley had served 21 years, 4 months and 24 days. He was sentenced for 99 years from Cedar County, Mo., for killing his brother-in-law in a family fight. He is nearly 73 years old.

During all of Begley's term he never violated a rule, and was permitted to do such odd jobs about the penitentiary as suited him. Until recently he would fly in a passion if anyone suggested to him that he accept a parole.

NEW RAILWAY STATION FOR BERKELEY

BERKELEY, March 14.—Nearing completion is the magnificent new waiting station at Northbrae of the Southern Pacific lines, which the Mason-McDuffie Company has been erecting. It is expected the structure will be ready for use before the end of this month. It is the last of three depots to be completed in Northbrae, the others being at So- [illegible] Colusa.

The structure, though comparatively small, is beautiful in its exterior and surroundings. Nestling beneath giant trees it is built of white concrete and red tiled roof that make it blend harmoniously with the landscape. A space equal to that of the waiting room itself is being finished with concrete fountain, walks and seats. A spring coming down from the hills above furnishes a perpetual water supply for the fountain. Besides commodious waiting-rooms and convenience stations the depot is provided with public walks and shelter room.

Basing their conclusions on the marked improvement in realty sales and building transactions since the first of the year local dealers have reached the unanimous opinion that this will be one of the biggest years in their line of business in Berkeley. Of special note recently has been the number of queries from tourists and other out-of-town residents for local properties. Sales in both houses and lots are increasing in numbers steadily, and all indications point to a continued increase. Several Berkeley real estate dealers, recently interviewed, declare the market shows every signs of improvement, and this in the face of excellent conditions that have prevailed for months past.

Many of them have been interested in the proceedings by which the council has started the purchase of a park site in North Berkeley. This site lies 240 feet south of Berryman and 360 feet north thereof between Shattuck avenue and Walnut streets. The site was the last one available toward the north within a reasonable distance from the center of the city that could be used for this purpose. It is believed the purchase of this site, which is to be completed in five yearly payments totalling $72,500, is a preface to a general extension of the parking system of the city, and that Codornices Park, further east, now leased to the city by the Peoples Water Company, will next be purchased for municipal use.

The analysis of what Berkeley has to offer in the way of factory sites, recently made by H. W. Force of the California Corrugated Iron Company in a communication to the commercial bodies of the county, has aroused much local attention. Force points to the accommodations afforded by the two lines of continental railroads serving the bay district, besides "unequaled shipping facilities, practically eliminating drayage."

WANTS HOMES FOR POORER CLASSES

UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA, March 14. — Shall the poor man, his wife, and his children, live crowded together in one or two roms in a noisome tenement, or shall he have a real home?

This, one of the most serious problems the modern city has to face, is to be discussed by Dr. Jessica B. Peixotto, assistant professor of social economics, in a lecture at 8 p. m. Tuesday evening, March 17, in 101 California Hall. Her subject will be: "The Garden City, the Tenement, and Other Experiments in the Housing Problem."

The marvelous development of transportation facilities for modern American cities gives opportunity for the ideal of the individual home to be rescued as against the alternative of tenement habitations for rich and poor alike. Dr. Peixotto will tell of some of the wonderful things that have been done in England and elsewhere in Europe in the way of "garden cities," where beauty of surroundings is made possible even for a man of meager income. One German plan that has proved highly successful is that of building houses several hundred feet in length, which means economy in construction, each family, however, having a slice clear through the loaf, with a door-yard and bit of garden behind the house, where the children can have mother earth to play on. Family privacy and the feeling of having an individual home can thus be maintained.

The succeeding lecture in this course on "City Planning Problems" will be given on Tuesday, March 24, at 8 p. m., by Duncan McDuffie, whose development of tracts in Berkeley and San Francisco has been an interesting example of success in making beauty a primary aim in the building up of new residence regions. His subject will be "The Development of Residence Districts Under Wise Restrictions." The lectures of this course are open to the public without charge. The object is to arouse public interest in the economic, social and aesthetic importance of forethought in planning the future development of cities and towns.

BARGAIN HUNTER ABROAD IN LAND

"While things are not all that might be desired the last two weeks has shown a marked improvement and it is evident that the bargain hunter is still dominating the market," said S H Masters manager of the city sales department of the Laymance Real Estate Company, commenting on the realty conditions.

Properties that can be resold at a profit are taken up unhesitatingly. This is a forerunner of steady improvement. Also the demand for suburban acreage, both in the vicinity of San Leandro and Hayward, shows there is an inclination for acreage near metropolitan centers. The recent two weeks of fair weather has brought out much inquiry for this class of property, which now appears at its best.

Among the largest sales during the past week in and around Hayward is the beautiful home of Dr S B Wakefield, adjoining the Hayward Home Farms containing 38 acres, together with all improvements, which was sold to M Robinson for $35,000. Following this sale in smaller subdivision we might mention the transfer of two and one-quarter acres in Hayward Home Farms for a country home to Nannie Stoddard of Oakland for $2000. Also to R R Paul of the American Dye Works for three acres for $3200. Both are to improve their property immediately.

Alameda County Had Immense Berry Crops in the 60's

An Oakland pioneer, the late Francis Cutting, sent the first California canned fruit East in 1860, and about the same time a farmer named Josiah Lusk was growing so many raspberries in Alameda county that the canneries couldn't handle his crops. These facts are given in an article on the evolution of the canning industry, in the current issue of McClure's Magazine. Alameda county has since become more famous for its berries and fruits, as well as for its great canning plants, the products of which are known throughout the world. The reference to Cutting and Lusk is as follows.

"After gold was discovered in California a man named Daniel Provost went out there as representative of a cannery in Yonkers, N. Y., and about 1855 he established the first cannery on the Pacific coast. Probably the first California fruit came East in 1860, when Francis Cutting, who was running a small canning plant in California, sent samples to the Fifth Avenue Hotel in New York and the Parker House in Boston.

"Along in the 60s a farmer named Josiah Lusk was growing raspberries in Alameda county, California, for the canneries out there. One year he had such a big crop that the factories couldn't handle more than half of it, and the rest spoiled. Lusk vowed that if other men couldn't handle his product he could do it himself. Next year he had a small cannery of his own, and from this developed the great Lusk firm, now a part of the largest food-canning company on the coast."

RICHMOND BLDG. $10,000 A MONTH

RICHMOND, March 14.—Figures submitted today by City Architect J B Ogborn shows that since the city of Richmond established its [illegible] bureau 18 months ago there has been building permits [illegible] cost of $[illegible] [illegible] $10,000 per month. Of these permits issued all the [illegible] new construction and the remainder for repairs and alterations.

After having laid quietly for the past [illegible] there is a resumption of [illegible] in the Pullman district where the city is preparing to erect a new school house, pave Pullman avenue and Cutting boulevard and to construct a comprehensive sewer district to serve the entire neighborhood. These public improvements will reach nearly $[illegible] and means that this district will at once take its place as a very attractive home center with Pullman avenue and sections of Cutting boulevard as business districts. The Pullman company is at work without giving any definite announcement on plans to greatly increase its shop facilities here and to employ many additional men. The company at present is doing a great deal of a new class of repair work and reconstruction which has formerly been done at the main shop at Pullman, Illinois. All of these things have made Pullman [illegible].

Another indication of a turn in the tide towards better business for the operators and the investors is in the resumption of work on the municipal tunnel. This means a great deal for the west side hill property and also for the tracts in the canal subdivision. The canal subdivision is to be pushed with vigor as the filling of the western end of Cutting boulevard and the petition of property owners there to have the street given a first class asphalt pavement has increased values and the demand for realty.

All over the city the trend is for livelier activity in all lines and with many new buildings planned and the business conditions here improving the market promises to show the greatest activity that it has experienced in years.

WAREHOUSE TO BE BUILT IN NEW SECTION

Evidence of the rapid expansion [illegible] of the new warehouse district is afforded in the sale last week of the old Whitehead property at the southwest corner of Third and Jackson streets, a lot 75x100 feet, to the W. P. Fuller Company. The consideration is not announced. The firm is contemplating the erection of a warehouse upon the property and will [illegible] whether this use will be made of its purchase.

It is understood that arrangements have already been made for a spur track from the Western Pacific line on Third street.

Interesting Contest
$12,000 in Prizes
$5,000 First Prize

For the Best Plan or Suggestion to Subdivide Our Property

$7,000 Other Prizes

No Matter Who You Are, With a Little Common Sense, Foresight and Logic You Should Win at Least One of These Prizes.

The Property
Richmond Canal Subdivision

The property to be subdivided is the logical business center and the best part of the waterfront of Richmond. It is located between the Inner Harbor and the Municipal Tunnel—the gateway to the Outer Harbor, and extends to the inner arm of the Government channel. Its similarity with the Embarcadero and the business part of Market street, San Francisco, and Oakland Harbor and Broadway is obvious.

The Reason for this Contest

Having studied the industrial conditions of the Atlantic coast cities and realizing the tremendous effect the opening of the Panama Canal will have upon the industrial development of the Pacific coast and that of Richmond in particular, we feel that the correct planning of this vitally important piece of property will have far-reaching consequences upon the future traffic and business problems of Richmond.

With this in mind and having the future of Richmond, with which city we have been identified for the past ten years, at heart, we feel ourselves inadequate to the task, and rather than use our plan or decide upon the plan of one single person we have decided to call in the general public and by a planning contest secure the best idea possible.

Contest Open to All---Not Skill but Common Sense

You need not be a draughtsman, architect or engineer, all you require is common sense logic and application. San Francisco and Oakland both harbor cities are laid out along certain lines, like all other harbor cities. Bear this in mind, and then suggest where the main thoroughfares will be located on our property.

We Furnish Maps, Charts and Full Instructions Free

All you need is a pencil, a little thought and you may win one of these prizes.

This May Help You In Your Planning

Visit the City Planning Exhibit at the Oakland City Hall from March 13th to March 22d. It has just arrived from New York, where it attracted nationwide attention. It embodies the thoughts and imaginations of the best thinkers of the world. By attending this exhibit you have all this knowledge at your hand, and your task will become very easy indeed.

We appeal to young men and women of a serious turn of mind, business men, professional men, societies, clubs and all level-headed people who observe and do not go through life with their eyes shut.

These Are the Prizes

5 prizes of $1000 for the next best suggestions.
$500 to the person who will write the best and most logical essay on the development of Richmond within the next ten years.
5 prizes of $100 each for the next five best.
$500 to the person who will write the best essay on this property being the logical business center of Richmond.
5 prizes of $100 for the five next best.

We reserve the right to use any or all of the plans or a portion of any or all of them because we think even the best plans might be improved by a composite plan made up of ideas drawn from the many which will be submitted. The prize money will be paid in Richmond real estate which is ever better than gold dollars.
The Judges will be announced in this paper later.

MARKET SUMMARY SHOWS SENTIMENT

The Uncertainty and Irregular Movements Give Fair Reflection of Outlook.

NEW YORK, March 14.—The irregular movements in the securities market this week gave a fair reflection of the uncertain state of speculative sentiment. Opinion as to the outlook was confused, and operations in the stock market were limited chiefly to the day-to-day dealings of professional traders. The Mexican situation, the freight rates question, the proposed anti-trust legislation at Washington and conflicting reports as to the business outlook all served to restrict speculative operations pending settlement of these problems.

The week's trade news gave little indication of what was to be expected in the way of a general business revival, such as was predicted confidently at the beginning of the year. The February statistical returns from the steel and copper industries were unexpectedly good. Reports from the steel trade for the first half of March, however, indicated that new business was not large. Railroad earnings continued to fall off.

ALLEGES CRUELTY ON HUSBAND'S PART

SAN FRANCISCO, March 14.—Mental cruelty of a more or less poignant nature was testified to by Mrs. Phoebe R. Hunt in the trial of her divorce action against Harry C. Hunt, the wealthy liquor merchant of 125 Second street, before Superior Judge Mogan this morning.

The court, after hearing the recital, indicated that he believed the evidence rather weak and continued the matter until Monday, by which time he will determine whether or not he believes the [illegible] separate the couple.

Mrs. Hunt stated that the cruel treatment of her spouse started when she returned from Europe last Christmas. She declared that her husband frequently came home at midnight at 1 o'clock in the morning, much to her displeasure, and acted queerly toward her.

TRAFFIC BUREAU OF CHAMBER IN READINESS

The Traffic Bureau of the Oakland Chamber of Commerce is now ready for business, according to the announcement of Secretary A. A. Denison, who is directing the work of this department. Denison has several experts on his staff and declares that he is in a position to handle any matter relating to community interest in railroad rates and service. He will also be glad to entertain any matters relatnig to transportation of shipping as affecting Oakland.

POLICE SEEK MISSING MAN.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 14.—The police have been asked to look for E. A. Long, of 2738 Grant street, who disappeared from his residence Thursday night and has not yet returned. He went to Oakland that evening, expecting to return later, but has not been seen since by any relatives. He is described as being 31 years of age, 5 feet 7 inches in height, weighing 160 pounds. He has brown hair, is smooth shaven and wore a blue suit with soft dark hat.

$200,000,000 OMELETTE WASTED

U. S. Contribution to Garbage Heap Represents Tremendous Egg Extravagance.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 14.—The annual American egg crop is estimated to be worth $500,000,000 but according to the egg specialties of the Department of Agriculture the value of our eggs should be $700,000,000. Between the hen and the consumer, there is a waste of $200,000,000 annually. Of this waste, $50,000,000 is due to needless breakage of eggs in transit from the nest to the retailer. The balance, $150,000,000 represents unnecessary addling, spoiling and deterioration of good eggs due to bad handling. The egg as the hen lays it is almost invariably a good egg. But one out of every ten eggs which she lays for market are broken in shipment. Three out of the remaining nine good eggs are so badly handled that they are either stale or of a much lower market grade by the time they are opened by the housewife or dropped into the boiling water. In other words not more than six out of every ten eggs laid by the little gray hen reach the consumer in anything like the shape that nature intended when she provided this form of food for humans. This means that about 40 per cent of our eggs are fit only for unusually strong palates or for use in tanning leather or else go add to the crematory bills and dump heap bills of our great cities—the unpleasant monuments to needless American waste of good food in the face of lowered food production and increasing ppulation.

TACKLING EGG PROBLEM.

Uncle Sam through his Department of Agriculture is tackling this problem of egg food waste in two practical ways. Through the Bureau of Animal Industry he is trying to teach people how to raise more and bigger eggs and also how to raise pullets at such times and feed them in such ways that they will lay in the fall after the hens have stopped laying. But Uncle Sam also feels that it will take an awful lot of egg raising to [illegible] of every ten gets smashed or contribute to the size of his costly garbage heap. He is doing his utmost to see if he cannot get those four extra eggs to the tables of his nieces and nephews with whole shells and insides that will promote rather than kill egg appetites.

TO LESSEN BREAKAGE OF EGGS.

The country gets its eggs from the great central corn belt where the gray hen does not have to scratch so hard for her living. Egg production on the east coast and on the Pacific coast consists principally of eggs raised for individual home use or for the fancy local trade in newly laid eggs. There are not nearly enough left over to supply the cities and towns. The important supply of eggs along our coasts therefore must come by rail considerable distances from the central corn belt. In the past, every mile the egg had to travel meant broken eggs and the arrival of "scrambles" in New York. Before eggs were shipped in refrigerator cars every mile traveled through the summer heat meant good eggs deteriorating, growing more and more stale and nearer the explosive stage —30 per cent of each car lot lowered in value, and 6 per cent more consigned to the dumping barges of the coast cities.

INSTRUMENT RECORDS SHOCKS.

The latest experiment undertaken with the egg crates has been to place delicate instruments which record shocks in such crates and ship them across the country. At the end of the journey, the instrument shows exactly the force of the blows that the case has undergone and consequently the amount of shock from which the eggs have to be protected. As fast as experience proves any device to be practical, the Department's discoveries are made common knowledge throughout the egg-handling trade. Meanwhile, the Department is sending its Egg and Poultry Demonstration Car through the corn belt and showing egg shippers all the little improvements in egg grading, handling and packing that the experiments have revealed.

SENTENCED TO SEVEN YEARS FOR BURGLARY

SAN FRANCISCO, March 14.—Andy [illegible] Dunne's department of the Superior Court, was sentenced to serve seven years in San Quentin Prison this morning. The convicted man broke into the Maryland Apartments, 383 Page stret, on December 3 and made a large haul.

Another burglar, Harry Fischer, who rifled a barber shop at 3042 Octavia street, was sentenced to three years in San Quentin in the same court.

GETS THREE-YEAR TERM.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 14.—For passing a spurious check for $2.50, Wendell D. Smith will spend the next three years of his life in San Quentin Penitentiary. Superior Judge Dunne passed sentence upon him this morning after denying a motion for probation. On November 22, Smith gave the check to Howard Lowenthal and was arrested for violating Section 476A of the Penal Code.
